MEANS GUILTY IN BABY HOAX; SENT TO JAIL

Convicted in Larceny of $104,000; Jury Out Only Two Hours.

PLEA OF LAWYERS FOR BOND REFUSED

Maximum Possible Penalty Is 20 Years in Prison and $2,000 in Fines.

(By Associated Press).

Gaston B. Means last night was found guilty in the District of Columbia Supreme Court of larceny of $104,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean in a fantastic plan to recover the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Two hours after it had been given the case, the jury of 11 men and one woman returned verdicts of guilty on two counts of larceny of the $100,000 ransom money and of $4,000 expense money.

Verdicts of not guilty on two counts of embezzlement of the same sums were returned.

Remanded to Custody.

Justice James M. Proctor remanded the former Department of Justice agent and former convict to custody after T. Morris Wampler, defense counsel, made a plea that Means be freed under $50,000 bond, the same amount on which he had been at liberty during the trial.

Failing to get favorable action on this plea, Wampler and his associate, J. William Tomlinson, said they would try for a writ of habeas corpus from some other justice.

Defense counsel has four days, beginning today, to make a motion for a new trial. If this is not made, Justice Proctor will then set a date for sentence.

The maximum penalties possible on each of the larceny counts are ten years imprisonment, and, or, $1,000 fine.

The weird plan to recover the kidnaped baby became known May 5, when Means was arrested and negotiations between himself and Mrs. McLean, stretching back to three days after the child was stolen from his crib in the Lindberg's New Jersey estate, were revealed.

Tale of Trips Unfolded.

A tale of trips by Mrs. McLean to Aiken, S. C., and El Paso, Tex., to receive the baby was unfolded. There were negotiations with a mysterious "Fox" who, in the trial, was also given the name of "Neil Williams," though this was stated by witnesses as not being his real name.

A $100,000 ransom fund was turned over to Means, who later claimed he paid it over to a mysterious "No. 11," whom he described as an agent of Mrs. McLean, early one morning on a railroad bridge at Alexandria, Va. A further sum of $4,000 had been given to Means by Mrs. McLean as "expense money."

Means was indicted five days after his arrest.

When the jury returned from its deliberations last night, he stood calmly facing the twelve members as they lined up and, except for a slight flush, was unperturbed as the foreman announced they had reached verdicts of guilty on both counts of larceny.

Crupper Is Chosen To Succeed Slemp

Virginia Delegates Name Rosslyn Man; Lankford on Resolutions.

Chicago, June 13 (U.P.).—The Virginia delegation to the Republican national convention tonight elected Joseph L. Crupper, Rosslyn, Va., as national committeeman to succeed C. Bascom Slemp, who refused to run. Crupper defeated Henry W. Anderson, Richmond attorney, who, as a member of the Wickersham Commission, drew up the Anderson plan for Government control of the liquor traffic.

Mrs. Murray Boocock, Charlottesville, was named committeewoman, and Representative Lankford, of Norfolk, was named to the resolutions committee.

No instructions were given Mr. Lankford. The delegation was split on the prohibition question, and it was decided to leave the matter of his vote entirely to Mr. Lankford.

Doctor States Hoover Is "Physical Rarity"

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was described by his personal physician last night as a "physical rarity" and in excellent health despite the strain and burden of his office. Dr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, told an assembly of medical men gathered at the fortieth annual meeting of the National Society of Physical Therapeutics that:

BRITAIN TO DEMAND RIGHTS FROM CHILE

Will Exact Compensation for Any Interests Affected; Merino Heads Junta.

London, June 13 (A.P.). — Great Britain takes a serious view of the confiscatory measures contemplated by the new Socialist government of Chile, Parliament was informed today, and if they are carried through the British government will demand full compensation for British interests affected.

The undersecretary for foreign affairs made the announcement in the absence of Sir John Simon, the secretary, who is with Prime Minister MacDonald in Paris. He said Great Britain had not yet entered into official relations with the present Chilean government.

The confiscatory measures to which he referred are the announced intention of the Chilean junta to seize foreign currency or deposit in Chilean banks and to take over certain foreign industrial interests.

Santiago, Chile, June 13 (A.P.).—Rolando Merino, minister of the interior, was chosen by the revolutionary junta tonight to fill the place in Chile's new Socialist government vacated by the resignation of Carlos G. Davila.

Finance Minister Alfredo Lagarrigue at the same time announced that a long study would be given the Cosach nitrate combine, a $375,000,000 corporation principally controlled by American capital, with the assurance that nothing detrimental to any interest would be done soon.

The central bank, which the junta had planned to fuse with a newly formed state bank, would continue to function independently, he added.

Arturo Ruiz Mafei, hitherto unknown in Chilean political circles, was appointed minister of interior to succeed Senor Merino.

The finance minister's announcement tended to make foreign opinion here more favorable toward the junta, which deposed President Juan Esteban Montero nine days ago.

The selection of Senor Merino to

HOUSE AGREES TO VOTE TODAY ON BONUS BILL

Leaders Have No Doubts That Measure Will Be Passed.

GLASSFORD RENEWS EVACUATION EFFORTS

Veterans' Committee Plans Campaign to Win Over Foes in Senate.

A campaign on two fronts—the first and most intense, against bonus opposition in the Senate, and the second, to keep the House votes in line—will be undertaken today by the Bonus Expeditionary Forces in their battle for enactment of the $2,400,000,000 bonus bill.

Flushed with victory in the House, which yesterday overrode its party leaders and decided to vote today on the bonus bill, the legislative committee of the forces will concentrate today in the Senate where leaders claimed 55 votes, more than a majority, are aligned against the measure.

Thomas to Seek Vote.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, chief sponsor of the bonus bill, announced last night he would propose an immediate vote in the Senate today when the bill comes over from the House. He said he believed a majority in the Senate would vote for the bill.

In a protest against the reported refusal of the District Bicentennial Commission to permit decorated men of the bonus army to lead the Flag Day Parade tonight, the District Department of the American Legion last night threatened to withdraw from the parade unless the men are accorded the place of honor.

The vote in the House to give formal consideration to the legislation asked by the ragged army of veterans was 226 to 175. The vote to make it the order of business today was 225 to 169.

Glassford's Report Denied.

As veterans continued to pour into the drab encampments, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, announced that 1,000 had left for their homes. The report was immediately branded as untrue by leaders of the army.

While the legislative committee planned its campaign for votes in the Senate, Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters announced that no representatives will be sent to the Republican convention in Chicago. There had been rumors that a delegation would go there to ask insertion of a bonus payment plank in the Republican platform.

In a renewed effort to evacuate the veterans, Gen. Glassford made public an offer to the veterans to transport them toward their home. Eleven veterans yesterday were transported to Frederick, Md., in a District refuse truck.

To the report of Gen. Glassford that 1,000 veterans had left the city, Waters said: "There is no information that any large groups have left the city. There have been a few desertions on the part of those who were sick or didn't have the guts to stick it out."

Sends Telegram to Fess.

In a telegram to Chairman Fess, of the Republican national committee, Waters informed the chairman that there were no official representatives

VARYING VIEWS BALK CONGRESS ECONOMY PLAN

NEW SAVINGS URGED BY ADMINISTRATION

Democratic Attacks Beaten in Senate; Conferees Are Facing Hard Task.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Broad gaps in House and Senate economy programs, still unspanned after seven hours of conference, forced overnight adjournment of conferees without agreement on either compulsory Federal furloughs or horizontal salary slashes.

Budget Director J. Clawson Roop, who framed the original furlough plan in conference with the President, was asked to appear before the group at 9:30 this morning.

While conferees sought to wring the maximum of economies from divergent retrenchment measures, administration estimates of additional savings necessary to balance the budget drew Democratic fire in House and Senate.

Reed Counters Attacks.

Attacks were countered by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, who denied President Hoover had ever said that between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 in additional savings are necessary.

Earlier, Senator Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, offered a resolution asking the President for specific recommendations. On the other side of the Capitol Representative Crisp (Democrat), Georgia, told the House he would oppose levying additional taxes to make up the deficit. He favored new economies and cutting down expenditures.

Meeting yesterday at 9 a. m., economy conferees found they had a more difficult task than bargained for in harmonizing differences in House and Senate bills. Little had been accomplished when a two-hour recess was taken at noon.

When adjournment was voted at 6:30 o'clock last night, one member of the conference group said it was altogether likely decisive action may not be taken today.

May Find New Plan.

Presence of Herbert D. Brown, chief of the Bureau of Efficiency, who was consulted by both House and Senate economy committees in framing their pay cut plans, indicated the group may be attempting to work out a variation of furlough and pay cut proposals.

On the floor of the Senate, Senator Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina; Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, and Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, joined with Senator Robinson in the attack on the administration.

Senator Robinson charged the

Benjamin Denied Resolutions Post

Close Friend of President Passed Over; Teague Is Victorious.

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—The California delegation to the Republican convention refused today to put President Hoover's close friend, Ray Benjamin, on the resolutions committee, voting instead to have C. C. Teague, former member of the Farm Board, represent the State on that group.

A little later, the Massachusetts delegation chose for the resolutions committee William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee in 1924 and close friend of former President Coolidge. He was defeated, however, for national committeeman.

During the day two members of the President's Cabinet were given seats on the resolutions committee. They were Secretaries Mills and Hyde, representing New York and Missouri, respectively.

Another former member of the Farm Board—Sam R. McKelvie—was selected as Nebraska's member of the committee.

King Carol Dissolves Roumanian Parliament

The decree calls for new elections for the Chamber of Deputies on July 17, for the Senate on July 20, and for the convocation of a new Parliament on July 30.

HOOVER MEN STRIVE TO AVERT STAMPEDE BY WETS AND PLANK MAY BE PUT UP TO PRESIDENT

"SMITH THIRD-PARTY" THREAT IS UTTERED

Western States Demanding Consideration of Silver as Monetary Basis.

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—Administration leaders drafting the troublesome prohibition plank returned late tonight from a secret conference prepared to put the issue up to President Hoover. They indicated they were hopeful of an early solution.

Postmaster General Brown, who was entrusted by the administration with finding the resubmission formula, went back to national headquarters tonight to confer with Lawrence Richey and Walter Newton, secretaries of the Chief Executive.

Those who came out of the conference room said the language of the prohibition plank had not been whipped into shape. It also was stated on the highest authority that a plank had not been put up to President Hoover, pending a solution of the dogged deadlock over the wording of the platform declaration.

Smith and Third Party.

Despite expressions of hopefulness by the administration high command it was conceded that long work was ahead.

Last week in Washington the word was passed on reliable authority that the President had agreed to the principle of resubmission, but late tonight the formula for this complex problem was still missing.

The threat that Alfred E. Smith might be called upon to lead a third party if neither the Republican or Democrats adopted a plan calling for prohibition repeal tonight was raised by Raymond Pitcairn, Philadelphia antiprohibitionist, in an address at a wet rally attended by several thousand persons in the Coliseum. He was one of half a dozen speakers at a meeting ending a three-day wet demonstration.

At about the same time the strong Pennsylvania delegation to the Republican convention was deferring a decision on the prohibition plank.

Hoover Man Defeated.

Its action was regarded as favorable to the administration's move to halt the drive toward repeal at the midway point of resubmission of prohibition to the people.

Repeal Revolt Spreads.

Meanwhile, rumors and evidences of a revolt for repeal spread rapidly through the hotel corridors as delegation after delegation caucused. Prohibition was the outstanding task of the platform workers and it seemed headed certainly toward the floor of the convention for settlement.

Raymond Benjamin, right-hand man of the President, was denied a place on the resolutions committee

Texas Democrats To Vote on Repeal

State Committee Decides on Referendum at July Primaries.

Austin, Tex., June 13 (A.P.).—The Texas State Democratic executive committee decided today to submit the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment to a referendum of voters participating in the July party primaries. The vote was 16 to 13.

The resolution would provide for an expression of Texas Democrats on the question of whether the next Congress should submit the question of retaining or repealing the eighteenth amendment to the "people through conventions especially elected in the separate States to consider that issue."

The committee voted to submit the prohibition amendment on a ballot separate from the one containing the names of candidates for State offices.

Fleeing Former Ruler Of Abyssinia Retaken

Addis Adaba, Abyssinia, June 13 (A.P.).—Libj Jeassu, the former Emperor of Abyssinia, who escaped last week from the captivity in which Emperor Haile Selassie had kept him for fifteen years, has been recaptured.

An official statement issued today by the Abyssinian foreign office said Libj had fled into the hills of the Cojjam region pursued by Selassie's troops. The army surrounded him, and he was captured in a gorge north of the Blue Nile. Today, the statement said, he was brought back and handed over to the commanding officer of the emperor's troops.

Dawes Closes Door To Vice Presidency

General Issues Statement, Asking Friends Not to Embarrass Him by Urging His Candidacy; Move Seen as Curtis Aid.

(Associated Press.)

Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes said formally last night that he was not a candidate for the Republican vice presidential nomination, and requested his friends not to embarrass him by their support.

After press reports that the Illinois delegation to the Chicago convention was considering presenting his name for the nomination Gen. Dawes issued the following statement:

"I am not a candidate for the nomination for Vice President. No one is or will be authorized to present my name to the convention, and I request my friends not to embarrass me by their support."

After his resignation unexpectedly last week as president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to return to private business in Chicago, Gen. Dawes again was drawn into speculation as a possible successor to Vice President Curtis.

His statement was the second of the day, disclaiming ambitions for the vice presidential nomination, Secretary Hurley having said earlier that he was not a candidate and would not be.

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—Gen. Charles G. Dawes' announcement he was not a candidate for the vice presidential nomination was accepted generally in Republican convention circles tonight as overturning one of the major obstacles remaining between Vice President Curtis and renomination.

Some of Gen. Dawes' friends may continue to urge his selection, but an organized move for him seems unlikely.

The Illinois delegation was meeting, with the question of indorsing the former Vice President before it, when news of his statement reached Chicago.

NAZI STORM TROOPS TO BE LEGAL TODAY

Ban on 400,000 Soldiers to Be Lifted; Tailors Rejoice at Uniform Orders.

Berlin, June 13 (A.P.).—Adolph Hitler's storm troops, which were dissolved by the Bruening government April 13 on the ground that they constituted a "private army" menacing the state, will be made legal again in a government decree to be issued tomorrow.

The storm troops, 400,000 strong, were disbanded just before the Diet elections April 24. The dissolution order caused bitter protests, Hitlerites declaring its purpose was to hamstring them in their preparations for the voting, from which they emerged, nevertheless, as the strongest party in Germany.

In raising the ban, the new government of Chancellor Franz von Papen indicated the extent to which it has swung to the right from the ministry headed by Dr. Heinrich Breuning.

News that the ban would be lifted pleased the tailors of Germany, who started turning out uniforms at top speed.

When the government dissolved the storm troops all war materials found in the various headquarters were seized. These materials included uniforms as well as traveling kitchens, airplanes, automobiles and field gear of all sorts.

Four in South Carolina File in Senatorial Race

Columbia, S. C., June 13 (A.P.).—A four-cornered race involving three rivals of former campaigns was assured today when entries closed for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, equivalent to election.

Senator Ellison D. Smith, nearing the end of 24 years' service, qualified as a candidate for his fifth term. His opponents are Cole L. Blease, of Columbia, defeated by James F. Byrnes two years ago, after serving one term in the Senate; Leon W. Harris, of Anderson, who ran third in the Blease-Byrnes contest in 1930, and Ashton H. Williams, of Florence, advocate of prohibition repeal. The primary will be held the last Tuesday in August.

10 LOCAL MEASURES ARE VOTED IN HOUSE

Seven Bills Passed at Final District Session Ready for President.

Ten District measures, including a sweeping license law and measures looking to industrial development holding promise of unemployment relief, were forced through the last District session of the House yesterday.

Meanwhile the Senate, moving hastily through its calendar, passed three District bills. They were sent immediately to the House for action. Seven of the measures passed by the House yesterday have obtained Senate approval. They go to the President for his signature.

The comprehensive Gibson bill, completely revising District license fees on everything from Turkish baths and drug stores to hotels and apartment houses, was unexpectedly pushed through yesterday's House session. The measure has no Senate counterpart. The Commissioners, who favor the revision, will attempt to get action on the House bill at a meet-

Hope for 10 Gone In Mine Explosion

Six Bodies Are Located by West Virginia Rescue Crews.

Norton, Va., June 13 (A.P.).—Rescue squads tonight offered no hope for recovery alive of any of ten men caught this morning by an explosion in the mine at the Splashdam Coal Corporation operation, 40 miles from here.

Three bodies had been found and identified early tonight. Three others had been located and were soon to be brought out.

An emergency call sent back here for 3,000 feet of telephone wire was basis for opinion the explosion occurred deep within the mine. Only meager news of the explosion accompanied the call for help received at the Virginia Coal Operators Association headquarters this morning, and the cause of the accident was not stated, although it was believed to be due to either gas or mine dust.

"Make Believe" Fire Horse Dies After 27 Years of Toil

Auburn, N. Y., June 13 (A.P.).—Thelma, America's strangest "fire horse," is dead. The 37-year-old black pony that was Archie Goodwin's last interest in life died today with her master's arm about her neck. For 27 years Thelma and Archie "made believe" whenever a fire alarm sounded.

When Archie was a youth, more than a half century ago, he was rejected as a fireman because he was only 5 feet 2 inches tall. So he got his first pony, converted a stable into a miniature fire house, and has lived in it since.

The buggy he equipped with gongs, attached to a table clock. At an alarm, Thelma dashed to her place, harness was lowered, and Archie sprang to the seat, speeding to the fire.

So unusual was the improvised fire station that in three years since newspapers first told of his hobby, 6,035 persons from eleven States have visited it to register.

"Tomorrow morning for the first time in 45 years I will have no pony to look after," Archie sobbed. "If Thelma was too old to live, so am I."

Legion Threatens to Leave Parade for Slight to Heroes

Demand Dr. Havenner Rescind Refusal to Allow Bonus Army Holders of Medals to March at Head of Column.

Withdrawal of the American Legion from the Flag Day parade with the threat that it would form a procession of its own, inviting all the bonus marchers to take part, was made last night when it was understood that Dr. George C. Havenner, executive secretary of the District Bicentennial Commission, had refused medal men of the bonus marchers permission to lead the procession.

The action came at a meeting of the executive committee of the District Department of the Legion, which had already voted $1,000, practically all its available funds, for food supplies for the besieging veterans.

Raymond Burke, of the Victory Post Drum and Bugle Corps, reported to the session that a request of Congressional Medal of Honor men and wearers of the Distinguished Service Cross and Medal that they be allowed to do homage to the flag in the parade had been answered by Dr. Havenner with the statement there was no room for them save at the end of the column.

Later Burke reported Dr. Havenner said that the men could march with the American Legion. The committee last night adopted a resolution authorizing Department Commander Fred G. Fraser to demand of the Bicentennial Commission that these honor men be placed at the head of the procession with the ultimatum that unless this was done the legion would withdraw and organize its own parade.

William H. McGrath was appointed chairman of a committee to call on Dr. Havenner and present the ultimatum. Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, who was present and to whom the $1,000 was turned over for distribution, stated that he thought that Dr. Havenner did not understand the honor due the medal-of-honor men.

Gen. Glassford thanked the legion

DRY CHIEFS' VOICES ARE DROWNED OUT

President May Repudiate Party Stand if Not Satisfactory to Him.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

Chicago, Ill., June 12.—The sonorous bass of the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will roll out of 60 loud speakers in the Chicago Stadium at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, calling on the Heavenly Father to give wisdom and guidance to the 3,000 delegates and alternates assembled for the Republican national convention.

Thus, as is the custom, the big political conclave will open on a note of spirituality. Having bowed their heads in prayer, however, the delegates will figuratively roll up their sleeves for what promises to be one of the most bitter fights a Republican national convention has ever known.

Cabinet Members Active.

Tonight the forces of the Hoover administration, members of the President's Cabinet, his secretaries and his other advisers and associates, were trying to work out some kind of a prohibition resubmission plan that would head off a wet stampede on the floor of the convention. Unless they are more adroit than anybody believes they are, however, they will fail, there is every indication. To those who have come here from Washington, the existing situation is nothing short of amazing. A month ago the question in Washington was whether the Republicans would again adopt a dry enforcement plank or whether they would adopt a moist or resubmission plank. Now that is not the question at all. The issue now is resubmission or repeal.

Meantime the movement to sidetrack Vice President Curtis passed from the whispering to the action stage.

Two large delegations—those of Texas and Iowa—met in caucus and decided to cast their votes for Charles G. Dawes as the vice presidential nominee. They took this action in spite of Dawes' declaration in Washington that "No friend of mine will put my name in nomination."

Drys' Voices Drowned.

Taking everything into consideration, it is just as well that Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, decided to stay in Washington. In this atmosphere, he and his bone-dry views would be overwhelmed.

The professional drys, men like Dr. F. Scott McBride, of the Antisaloon League, and Dr. E. C. Dinwiddie, of the prohibition board of strategy, have gone down under the tidal wave of wet and moist sentiment, and their voices, once enough to make politicians quake in their boots, are now heard only at the local prayer meetings.

There is not a single outstanding politician who is willing to appear before the convention and fight for what they and their champion, Borah, were so lustily demanding a few weeks ago, a plank saying that national political conventions have nothing to do with prohibition, and that only by electing a wet Congress can the people again get a chance to vote on the question.

The Hoover prohibition plank, and it will be called that regardless of whether the President openly indorses it, will declare for resubmission of the prohibition problem to the States, leaving up to Congress the

BITTERNESS GROWS IN PROHIBITION WAR

Party Leaders Strive to Find Compromise Before Gavel Falls Today.

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—The roll of drums and the blare of bands resounded through Chicago streets tonight as wets and drys came together in the mightiest prohibition tussle that the Republican party has seen since the dry laws were put upon the statute books.

Demonstrations, parades and mass meetings were the outward manifestations of the dispute, but its full bitterness found an outlet in the numerous conferences that wet and dry leaders held behind closed doors.

While party leaders sought in last-minute meetings to find a point upon which the two sides could agree before gavel-rap for tomorrow's convention, statements from prohibition and antiprohibition leaders emphasized the wide gap between their opposing demands.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, said there would be a prohibition plank which would please every one, yet not evade the issue. He added that the question "must be ironed out so that both sides will be fully satisfied" and that there must be "no straddling or ambiguity."

Wide Variety of Demands.

On the one extreme is the demand of such drys as F. Scott McBride, Bishop James Cannon, jr., and the national prohibition board of strategy for a continuation of the present laws with a pledge of vigorous enforcement.

On the other extreme is the demand of such opponents as Pierre S. du Pont, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, and the United Repeal Council for Straightforward Repeal.

The Oregon delegation voted for a plank providing resubmission of the prohibition question to the people, but no return of the open saloon.

Former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts, who is being put forward by his own delegation for the vice presidential nomination, said he favored modification of the eighteenth amendment and expressed approval of the resolution adopted by the New York delegation last night, except for its "eventual repeal" provision.

Stand of Other Delegations.

The Missouri delegation voted, 23 to 9, to ratify a resolution of its State convention calling for a national constitutional convention to deal with prohibition.

The New Jersey delegation arrived with a plank for submission to the people of an amendment to repeal the eighteenth amendment, but providing Federal police protection for States desiring to remain dry.

Walter A. Dodd, delegate from San Francisco, announced on his arrival he would ask the Republican Service League tomorrow night to adopt a resolution calling prohibition a failure, and would urge the group to work for repeal.

Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, an antiprohibitionist leader, expressed dissatisfaction with the repeal proposal of the New York delegation, saying it was in his opinion "a very carefully worded proposition amounting only to resubmission."

Bingham said he wanted the convention to declare for repeal as well as for a vote by the people.

Dry Pleads With Rockefeller.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of the woman's national committee for law enforcement, told a prohibition meeting that John D. Rockefeller, jr., accepted the "erratic thinking" of Dr. Butler when he indorsed the repeal plank the university president plans to submit.

"Come back to your real friends, John, jr.," she urged. "Give your life and wealth to make America safe for children."

The union of antiprohibition organizations appointed Du Pont, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin and Ralph M. Shaw, a Chicago lawyer, as a strategy committee to map out a fight for repeal on the floor of the convention if the resolutions committee fails to approve such a proposal.

E. C. Dinwiddie, secretary of the union of prohibition groups, described the "philosophy" of the Republican convention as similar to that of "a fellow in a circus ring trying to ride two animals going in opposite directions at the same time."

Threat of Prohibitionists.

"The Republicans," he continued, "think the Democrats are going to adopt a plank favorable to the wets, so they say:

"'We must carry the election and hold the wets, so we will go as far as we can to please the wets, but not far enough to lose the drys.'

"They also say they can hold the drys because they will have no other place to go."

He said national leaders should take a warning from New York State, "where, as they grow progressively wetter, they go down in progressively larger defeats."

If both parties have wet planks, he said, the prohibitionists will call "a great council of war and then we'll make plans for a real campaign."

A mass meeting of anti-prohibitionists, preceded by a parade of hundreds of floats and motor cars, was the final blast tonight of the Crusaders and the Republican Citizens Committee Against Prohibition.

United Council's Pleaders.

The United Repeal Council named the following to appear before the resolutions committee in a plea for outright repeal: Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll, New York City, Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform; Fred G. Clark, jr., Cleveland, Crusaders; Frank A. K. Boland, New York City, American Hotel Association; Ralph M. Shaw, Chicago, voluntary committee of lawyers; former Senator James W. Wadsworth, jr., New York City, Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Wadsworth, Clark, Shaw, Arthur L. Race, of Boston, and Mrs. Sabin were named a committee to handle questions of policy for the council.

"Arriving delegates are bringing vigor into the discussion," Wadsworth said. "In increasing number they want a clear-cut decision."

Man's Body Found in Canal.

The body of an unidentified colored man about 40 years old was found floating in the canal at Thirty-sixth street southwest. It was removed to the Morgue.

Lausanne Session's Slogan Is "Leave Guns at Door"

By JOHN J. DALY

At the Lausanne conference, called to consider reparations, war debts and other problems, a promise to keep the peace is expected to be asked of all nations represented.

"Leave your guns at the door," the old slogan of the Western trails, will be in vogue at Lausanne.

Like a justice of the peace, the head man at the international conference will arraign the representatives at the bar and request, if not demand, of them, one by one, that they be on their good behavior; that they promise in the name of their nations to behave themselves; to obey the golden rule; to do unto others as they would have done unto themselves.

At present, of course, all is quiet along the national frontiers; but there is no telling when some one is liable to jump over the fence and go on the war path.

Nations, families grown large, are human. In the midst of peace they are at war—internally and externally.

* * * *

So the benign powers, assembled at Lausanne, want the boys to sign the pledge. A right good move, too; for this is no time to start a fight.

To begin military operations, any nation that wants to stir things up must first of all have the necessary wherewithal—and most of the nations sitting down to this conference are broke. Not one of them has finished paying for the last war. It would seem kind of foolish, therefore, to start on another rampage before getting over the last; but nations, like individuals, are that way, too.

The best thing in the world to do is line 'em all up and make 'em swear, on their word of honor—if they still possess any—to go home and be quiet.

* * * *

There are, as there are in almost any large gathering, some suspicious characters among the Lausanne assembly, though diplomacy keeps the finger from being pointed at them. Some of the nations are well armed, well heeled and well-nigh nearing a scrap.

At the present moment the world has many things to think about without war to divert its attention. There is, as a starter, dat ol' dabil, Debt. Get him out of the way and then buy the fireworks, but not before.

And, if each nation pledges itself to pay off its honest debts before going to war again, the world will be reasonably assured of peace for many generations to come.

If the foreign debtors want something to keep them out of mischief all they have to do is to remember their Uncle Sam and send back some of the hard-earned cash he loaned them to finish the war to end wars—a war that is liable, at the drop of a hat, to start another war.

What the world needs is peace, and plenty of it, to rid itself of the inevitable aftermaths of war—depression, taxation and bonus parades.

HOOVER MEN FIGHT TO AVERT CONVENTION WET STAMPEDE

question of an alternative to the eighteenth amendment.

If the plank as reported out to the convention by the resolutions, or platform, committee goes any further than that, President Hoover, so his associates here say, will issue a statement demanding that it be modified, and, failing in that, will proclaim his own plank in his speech of acceptance.

President Hoover's spokesmen insist that in the end the delegates will do as all good Republicans are supposed to do, accept what their party leader puts before them.

Meantime, however, there is a good-sized element headed by Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of New York, who have no intention of being good Republicans. They have girded their loins, as they say of politicians who are spoiling for a battle, and are ready for a last-ditch fight for a straightout repeal plank.

Moral support was given their crusade today by the arrival in Chicago of the man who is largely responsible for the present upheaval, John D. Rockefeller, jr., of New York, a lifelong dry, who confounded the Anti-saloon League recently by announcing his conversion to the ranks of repeal and temperance.

Split in Dry Ranks.

Just why John D. came here unless it was to give moral support to the repealers is a mystery. The multi-millionaire arrived unannounced on the Twentieth Century Limited and went immediately to the home of his sister, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick. He remained there most of the day. It was said that he had reservations for a train returning to New York tonight.

In the dry ranks a significant split has occurred. On the one hand there is the group of radical bone-drys like McBride, Dinwiddie and Cherrnigton. On the other there is a group of so-called moderates, headed by Dr. Daniel Poling, leader of the Allied Forces for Prohibition.

Like a military strategist, Poling has retreated somewhat in order to strengthen his position. Knowing that a resubmission plank is inevitable, he is ready to accept it and then launch a fight to retain the eighteenth amendment, or at least to salvage something in that amendment.

"We have the wets licked," Poling said today.

"How do you mean?" he was asked.

"Well," he said, "they won't get a repeal plank."

But drys of the type of McBride and Dinwiddie think that any kind of a plank other than a law-enforcement plank is a wet plank, and so they are holding out.

There also arrived in Chicago today a quartet of women whose names and deeds are a part of the social and official lore of Washington. They are Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Dolly Curtis Gann, Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms and Eleanor Patterson.

Mrs. Longworth, widow of Nicholas Longworth, Republican Speaker of the House, and expert at political intrigue herself, was, as usual, uncommunicative.

"I never had less to say in my life," she told reporters.

Meanwhile, friends of Vice President Curtis were accusing "Princess Alice" of fomenting the movement to ditch Curtis and put another man, preferably her brother, young Teddy Roosevelt, on the ticket with President Hoover.

"Princess Alice" didn't really start the revolt against Curtis. Just the same, the accusation made for some lively gossip in the corridors of the Congress, the Blackstone and the Stevens Hotels.

Mrs. Gann Confident.

Mrs. Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, and a principal in the celebrated Longworth-Gann social precedence war in Washington, scoffed at reports that her brother might be dumped overboard.

"He will be nominated on the first ballot," Mrs. Gann said. "That's right," said her husband, Edward E. Gann.

And the indications tonight were that she was right. Nevertheless, the politicians opposed to Curtis continue their work of trying to undermine him. They are whispering that Charles G. Dawes didn't mean it when he said he would not take the vice presidential nomination again for a million dollars.

Administration men friendly to Curtis say that this talk is designed simply to weaken Curtis and pave the way for the nomination of somebody other than Dawes when the balloting stage is reached.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms was part of the crowd that milled around in the corridors of the Congress. With her was her new husband, Albert Simms, of New Mexico. The romance between the two blossomed when they were members of the House of Representatives.

In 1930 Mrs. Simms sought a seat in the Senate, but was defeated by that Democratic cavalier, James Hamilton Lewis. Her defeat was attributed largely to her dry stand on prohibition.

Showdown Held Needed.

In an interview today she said that she still was dry, but that she thought the time had come for a showdown.

"The only way to take prohibition out of politics," she said, "is to submit to the people for a vote."

Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Washington Herald, has come here to write pieces for her paper. She came out in her private car, the Ranger, along with Mrs. Henry Snydam, wife of the Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle.

For an hour or so at tomorrow's opening session the delegates will do what the Hoover spokesmen out here want them to do. They will forget the prohibition feud in their own ranks and turn their scorn on their enemies, the Democrats.

In the two principal orations of the day, that of the keynoter, Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, and that of the permanent chairman, Representative Bertrand G. Snell, of New York, the Republican delegates will find the ammunition they are expected to use on the Democrats in the campaign of 1932.

Richey Real Liaison Man.

Dickinson and Snell will praise the reconstruction program sponsored by President Hoover and contrast it with the do-nothing policy of the Democrats under Speaker John N. Garner.

The situation being what it is, neither of the two men is expected to say anything about prohibition.

The real "eyes and ears" of President Hoover out here is not, as is popularly supposed, the mysterious Ray Benjamin, sometimes called the President's "Col. House." Rather it is Larry Richey, the least talkative and least publicized member of the President's secretariat. Richey, a former detective, is the real liaison man between the convention and the White House.

It is in his room that the important huddles are taking place. Throughout the day Cabinet officers like Postmaster General Walter Brown and Secretary of the Interior Wilbur are contacting with Richey.

If there now exists such a thing as a finished Hoover prohibition plank, it very probably saw the light of day in Richey's room here in the Congress Hotel.

DISTRICT DELEGATES CAUCUS IN HARMONY

Capital Franchise and Plank on Prohibition Occupy Focal Point.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Chicago, Ill., June 13.—The District of Columbia delegation held a caucus here tonight in the Blackstone Hotel and finished up its business without a single serious controversy, a rare achievement in this quarrel-ridden atmosphere.

Edgar C. Snyder, United States marshal for the District, was selected as chairman of the delegation. He also was named the District of Columbia representative on the credentials committee and on the important resolutions committee which tomorrow will wrestle with a prohibition plank.

The Rev. Dr. W. H. Jernagin was named for the committee on organization and for the committee on rules and order of business. The Rev. Dr. George Flake Dudley was selected as honorary vice president of the convention. Edward F. Colladay and Mrs. Virginia White Speel were again selected as members of the Republican national committee.

Samuel J. Prescott was selected for the committee to notify the nominee for President and Robert V. Fleming for the committee to notify the nominee for Vice President.

District Franchise.

It is understood that either the chairman of the delegation, Mr. Snyder, or Mr. Colladay, the national committeemen, will bring before the resolutions committee a suggestion for the inclusion in the platform of the national convention reference to the franchise in the District of Columbia.

At the Republican convention held in the District of Columbia on May 11 one plank of the resolution adopted at that time recited, "We again invite the attention of the Republican national convention and our fellow citizens throughout the country to the anomalous condition which obtains in the District of Columbia with reference to the franchise and we beg in the 'interest of a square deal' and in recognition of the immortal truth 'that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed' that the Congress enact legislation proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States providing for national representation for the people of the District of Columbia; and we earnestly urge upon our delegates to the Republican national convention to do everything possible to secure the indorsement of such an amendment in the national platform.'"

All Members Present.

Just what time will be alloted the delegation to present this resolution to the platform committee is, of course, problematical.

The delegation will also present reasons why there should be an increase in the number of delegates from the District of Columbia and that matter which will come before the rules committee will be handled by Dr. Jernagin.

The entire membership of the delegation from the District is present in Chicago. Samuel J. Prescott, the chairman of the Republican State committee in and for the District of Columbia, presided over the meeting tonight until the delegation selected its chairman when Mr. Snyder presided.

Akron Is Moored At Parris Island

Ends Its Transcontinental Voyage in Light Rain Without Mishap.

Parris Island, S. C., June 13 (A.P.).—Completing its transcontinental flight from Sunnyvale, Calif., without mishap, the naval airship Akron arrived here late today and tied up at the Marine station mooring mast for the night.

A light rain was falling when the big silver-hulled craft sailed over the Marine barracks at 6:15 p. m., Eastern standard time. It circled the station with two of its eight motors running and drifted slowly toward the mooring mast. Within 30 minutes the queen of the air was safely moored.

Lieut. Comdr. Charles H. Rosendahl, in charge of the Akron, advised the Marine station by radio this afternoon the craft would refuel here. A supply of 4,000 gallons of gasoline was provided.

Commander Rosendahl and the crew spent the night on board the dirigible. Brig. Gen. Harry Lee, commanding officer of the Marine Barracks, said the Akron's commander did not plan to leave Parris Island for Lakehurst until 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Noted Women at Chicago Overshadow Rum Battle

Mrs. Gann, Mrs. Longworth, Mrs. Yost and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms Prominent Figures at Preconvention Sessions.

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—Dolly Gann and Alice Longworth, in person, Mrs. Ellis A. Yost with a home-State fight, and Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, back on her Illinois stamping ground, today took the white light from Republican conventioning women.

They even relegated into second place the wet and dry fight, with Mrs. Henry Peabody, a prohibitionist, publicly chiding John D. Rockefeller, jr., and Mrs. Charles Sabin being named wet strategist to help two men plan the floor fight.

Dolly Gann, breezing in from preconvention speeches, said Vice President Curtis "deserves renomination and every body knows it."

Alice Longworth cured of whooping cough, chatted vivaciously with leaders and left the dopesters puzzling about her vice presidential views.

Ruth Hanna Simms had her old crowd of Illinois Republican women hanging on her every word, as she plunged straight into convention politics and challenged them to "forget bridge and golf and go to work."

Declaring the present primary system was "playing havoc" with the party, she put that issue above prohibition and favored resubmission of the latter question to the people in an "off year" to avoid "befogging all issues."

"Get down into the precincts and make your power felt in the primaries," she exclaimed.

Beckoned from a far corner, her new husband, Albert Gallatin Simms, of New Mexico, said a few words in the midst of her very feministic speech. She humorously scored the way men deal with women in politics. Simms said they had real equality out in New Mexico, and his wife agreed with him. There was much applause.

"Don't get an inferiority complex because you do not fit on the rules committee, or have a corporal's guard of delegates," Mrs. Simms advised.

To the same crowd, Mrs. Yost, heading National Woman's activities for the party, said Herbert Hoover's home ownership and child welfare program had "fully justified" women's faith, and predicted 1932 returns would show "women of America have not parted from their standard bearer."

Back of the scenes, Mrs. Yost was embroiled in a fight to save her 12-year job as West Virginia committeewoman from her opponent of 1928, Mrs. J. Gale Ebert, of Parkersburg. Walter Hallanan, committeeman for that State, said home women were complaining that Mrs. Yost was "out of touch" with them, due to her national position.

Order of Activities At Convention Today

Prayer by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, D. C.

Call for convention read by George de Benneville Keim, of New Jersey, secretary of the national committee.

Election of temporary chairman.

Address of temporary chairman.

Election of temporary officers.

Selection of committees on credentials, permanent organization, rules and order of business, and resolutions.

Miscellaneous business.

by the California delegation. C. C. Teague, an appointee of the President to the Farm Board, was given his place.

Secretary Mills, an advisor of Mr. Hoover, was put on the committee by the New York delegation but was promptly bound by a resolution declaring for submission of a repeal amendment. Another member of the Cabinet, Secretary Hyde, will be the member for Missouri.

Amid the conflict, the national prohibition board of strategy issued a statement tonight declaring against any action by the Republicans "which attempts in any way to influence Congress again to propose action on the prohibition question in any form."

From Senator Smoot, of Utah, at the Capitol, came to the resolutions committee a strong demand for a declaration in behalf of an international conference on silver.

F. Scott McBride, counsel of the Antisaloon League, called at national headquarters to reassert his stand against resubmission of the prohibition question or any alternative for the eighteenth amendment.

Silver Plank Is Sought.

Several of the Far Western States also were clamoring for a plank which would provide for international cooperation designed to improve the silver industry.

In other quarters were rising demands for varying farm relief proposals—including the time-worn equalization fee and export debenture plan—while the Oklahoma delegation was advocating an oil tariff.

In the midst of the dispute raging over the prohibition question, among the other State delegations, the Idaho delegates were described by some of their leaders as determined to follow the leadership of Senator Borah in his opposition to resubmitting prohibition to the people.

Meanwhile, Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, antiprohibition leader, confidently went ahead with plans to force a floor contest on prohibition. He gave notice "the convention will have the opportunity to vote on repeal." He scored New York's repeal submission plank as "not strong enough."

"I want the convention to declare not only for submission of a repeal plank, but in favor of repeal," he said.

Poling Sees Wets Losers.

Leaving the office of Chairman Fess, of the national committee, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, newly arrived head of the allied forces for law enforcement, said "we will win the fight."

"I mean the wets want repeal and they won't get it," he added.

Throughout the day members of President Hoover's Cabinet conferred over the platform problem with the party leaders here, and the talk centered on prohibition.

The close of the day brought private expressions of confidence from the Republican pilots that the prohibition dispute would end in the modified resubmission declaration, but every one agreed that a battle royal seemed inevitable.

Other planks, including those on the vital economic issues, farm relief and foreign affairs, have been lost sight of in the storm over prohibition.

Stimson Backs World Court.

Secretary Stimson left no doubt that he was ready to fight for Republican support of American adherence to the World Court—a controversy now before the Senate that has split the party wide open.

Secretary Mills, who was put on the important resolutions committee by the New York delegation, has a brief case full of planks dealing with the depression and reconstruction. These indorsed wholeheartedly the policies of President Hoover on relief and steps taken to meet the emergency.

Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, arrived to plead for farm relief. He expressed confidence of a satisfactory declaration by the Republicans on this issue.

Western delegates named a committee to bring the silver question before the platform committee and urge a plank declaring for international consideration of making silver a primary money basis.

The Westerners asserted that to maintain the gold standard monetary metal reserves must be increased. They proposed to put the party on record as "strongly favoring sound money based on metal as against fiat money, which merely expands and weakens our credit structure."

Hold Hearings on Issues.

The resolutions committee itself will go to work at 4:30 tomorrow afternoon. Open hearings on outstanding issues are in progress. A report to the convention by Wednesday night is the goal, and it is then probable that the prohibition contest will be threshed out on the floor.

A concerted drive was started today to have the platform makers of both parties approve planks indorsing the continued development of the waterway systems.

Only a few doors from the room where the Republican platform committee will start deliberations tomorrow, the National Rivers and Harbors Congress opened a special session.

WHITE HOUSE TAKES CONVENTION ASPECT

(Associated Press.)

The White House yesterday settled into its convention aspect, deserted by Cabinet advisers and with President Hoover publicly silent upon political issues—but with a telephone open to Chicago.

Secretary Hurley, carrying the latest views of the Chief Executive upon Republican problems, left the Capital hurriedly late yesterday for Chicago. He told newspapermen earlier he had not decided whether to attend the convention.

Although Mr. Hoover had nothing to say publicly about it, there was further indication at the White House that moves to replace Charles Curtis as the vice presidential candidate did not have his sanction.

Mr. Hurley told newspapermen that he himself did not seek the place, and would make clear to the convention delegates that "You can't shoot at my old friend Charley Curtis with me."

"I am not and will not be a candidate for the Vice Presidency," he asserted.

Upon reaching the convention, Mr. Hurley will take a place on the all-important resolutions committee, which will handle the prohibition question.

With his departure, the entire Cabinet, except Secretary Adams and Attorney General Mitchell, was en route or present in Chicago. Meanwhile there was some authoritative indication that the President is considering making the White House his campaign headquarters.

For the most part the White House remained politically quiet during the day. It was indicated that it would remain so at least until a more complete check could be obtained upon the views of the delegates assembled in Chicago.

BUDGET DIFFERENCES REMAIN AT CAPITAL

President in advocating the furlough plan is undoing the work of the economy committee. Senator Byrnes declared it impossible to estimate economies under the furlough plan, charging they are considerably below the $83,000,000 claimed by its advocates.

Asked Further Study.

The Robinson resolution, blocked by Senator Reed, called on the President to confer with his Cabinet in an effort to find "suitable ways and places to accomplish the proposed $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 reduction the President has suggested is necessary to balance the budget."

The Democratic floor leader said the resolution would bring out "whether the President would accept the 10 per cent pay cut for Federal employes instead of his furlough plan, and what other economy items he would approve."

Senator Harrison was critical of varying estimates of budget needs presented by the Secretary of the Treasury. A similar note was sounded in the House by Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns. In the space of one month, the administration estimates of budget needs were changed $321,000,000, Mr. Byrns charged.

Representative Henry T. Rainey, Democratic floor leader, accused the Treasury of "gross incompetence" in suggesting additional budget needs.

While Representative Crisp opposed additional tax levies, Representative Rainey favored this means of meeting the deficiency. He said the problem "can best be met by taking out of the law some of the nuisance excise taxes before they become effective and replacing them with a sensible general sales tax."

G. O. P. Poison Ivy Slogan Is Suggested by Pegler

Writer Says Platform Could Include Constructive National Plan to Relieve That Itchy Sensation, Not Altogether Pleasant, and Offend No One.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Chicago, Ill., June 13.—The Republicans at the Congress Hotel headquarters are having a bit of a wrestle with themselves trying to draw up a platform for Mr. Hoover, although that should not be hard.

A platform is used only in the campaign and is not binding after the election so even if Mr. Hoover should promise a saloon on every corner he would not have to put a saloon on every corner. He promised a speakeasy on every corner the last time and there are still a number of empty corners in Chicago. He also promised a chicken in every pot, but the citizens could not even furnish their own pots; that let him out.

It is strange that the Republicans have not thought of the great poison ivy question, an issue which is crying for bold treatment this year. I do not know about the slogan, "Poison ivy must go!" as a campaign cry for Mr. Hoover. It sounds rather radical and destructive, but, as a substitute, the phrase, "Poison ivy causes an itchy sensation, which some of our citizens find not altogether pleasant," would be dignified, thoughtful and sympathetic.

The Republican platform could deal with the great poison ivy question in a manner to give no offense to any possible poison ivy lovers and at the same time endear the candidate to those who find the itchy sensation not altogether pleasant, somewhat as follows:

"The poison ivy question; the Republican party has always taken the stand that our native American shrubs, trees and sprigs, and the little wildflowers growing in our woods and templed hills should be dealt with according to the changing circumstances of the time in a fearless but helpful manner. Numbers of our citizens have seemed to think it might be desirable of the Government to take steps to formulate a program looking toward the adoption of a vigorous, constructive national plan to the end that some relief might be contemplated for those who find that poison ivy induces an itchy sensation, not altogether pleasant.

"It is the purpose of the Republican party to institute inquiries by an impartial commission, with authority to subpena witnesses on both sides of the poison ivy question, to consider ways and means of effecting remedial measures consistent with the great principles of peace, prosperity and patriotism which are the foundation stones of this great republic of ours but without interfering with the rights of either side.

"This is not time for equivocation—or, at any rate, not a very good time for it, the police are said to believe, according to rumors current tonight—and the Republican party will endeavor to procure legislation with this principle in view, not forgetting, however, that each case must be judged on its own particular merits, unless, of course, it should seem advisable in the interests of our citizens to extend consideration of the problem further. On this the Republican party takes its stand."

I have been seeing Mr. James Farley, the chairman of the New York State Democratic committee and of the New York Prize Fight Commission, moving swiftly through the Republican statesmen in the Congress Hotel these last few days, and I suspect that he is trying to interest them in a dry plank. Mr. Farley is the manager of Franklin D. Roosevelt, it is true, but he is very generous and kind, and I am sure he would be glad to write a dry plank for the Republicans promising to spend seven or eight billion dollars a year on the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, the money to be raised by a special income-tax levy, and extolling Bishop Cannon as the greatest living American.

Mr. Farley is a Democrat, but if the Republicans want his help they will find him a true pal, nevertheless.

I could write a specimen platform, off-hand, leading off with a flat statement that honesty, if not the best policy, is regarded by many as an excellent policy, although there are two sides to every question, and it is unjust to pass sweeping judgment on a proposition having so many intricate phases.

No. 2 would recommend chewing the food 69 times except in the cases of oatmeal, soup, ice cream, finnan haddie, hamburger, and turkey stuffing, unless the individual finds that a few times more or less are better suited to his, or her, particular requirements.

No. 3. The Republican party holds that so far as experimenta have shown, a rolling stone is likely to gather no moss, or, at any rate, rather less moss than a stone which is not rolled, although even a non-rolling stone might gather none if it were not in a mossy place.

No. 4. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush at the present rate of exchange and efforts will be made to maintain this ratio as long as it is consistent with the public interest to do so.

No. 5. It is sometimes darkest before the dawn, but there are some nights in the dark of the moon when it is very dark at 11 o'clock.

Fumigation for Carpet Beetles, Moths, Etc.

Hydrocyanic acid gas (HCN) fumigation is the most successful fumigant for household insects. The Security Storage Company has been fumigating its entire storage depository with this gas every Summer for many years, and has thereby acquired a knowledge and experience in its use. There is a large fumigating chamber in the depository where furniture and effects can be "de-mothed," and experienced men will be sent to fumigate houses.

TRADE COMMITTEE PRAISES GLASSFORD

Foresees Veterans Leaving Peacefully for Homes at Early Date.

The bonus marchers were visioned returning peacefully to their homes in the near future, thanks to the capable handling of the situation by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, by the public order committee of the Washington Board of Trade, meeting at a dinner last night at the Raleigh Hotel.

The committee, including in its membership a number of District officials, adopted a resolution expressing faith in the ability of the Superintendent of police to handle the situation, and expressing gratitude for his work.

Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby declared that Gen. Glassford "has done a good job."

Representative Charles West (Democrat), of Ohio, a guest at the meeting, viewed the presence in the city of the bonus petitioners "as a serious situation, fraught with potentialities of startling consequences." Admitting the right of American citizens to petition, Representative West declared "the line must be drawn somewhere, to prevent hordes of citizens trying to enforce legislation."

Representative Byron D. Harlan (Democrat), of Ohio, a member of the District committee, declared that the country can not expect Congress to exercise leadership at this time. Leadership, he said, must come from business groups, educators and scientists.

The Crime Prevention Bureau, now being introduced in the Police Department, created a lively discussion. Members of the committee were divided on the opinion of whether the group should express any opinion on the bureau.

It was finally decided to submit the matter to the law-enforcement committee for study.

Maj. D. A. Davison, Acting Engineer Commissioner, and Capt. R. C. Montgomery, retiring chief of park police, were recipients of farewell speeches and gifts prior to their departure for the Army School at Fort Leavenworth. Odell S. Smith, chairman of the committee, presided.

HOUSE BONUS VOTE TODAY

of the bonus army at the Chicago convention. His telegram was in response to an offer of Col. James E. White to represent the bonus marchers at the convention.

That the resolution of Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, will pass the House this afternoon is not questioned by House leaders. The vote will be taken after four hours of debate, two hours to be allotted to the proponents and opponents of the measure.

An indication of the fate which awaits the bill in the Senate is in the declaration yesterday of Senator Pat Harrison, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, that he did not care if "a million soldiers come to the City of Washington and fill these corridors, they could not influence me."

Leaders of the Democrats and Republicans in the House were counted among the opposition on both votes. Representative Snell, the Republican leader and probable permanent chairman of the party's national convention, was paired in opposition. Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, voted "no."

The roll all found party lines split asunder. There was a preponderance of Democrats for consideration and a majority of Republicans against. Votes for consideration were 60 Republicans, 165 Democrats and 1 Farmer-Labor. Opposing were 42 Democrats and 133 Republicans.

In the other wing of the Capitol, Senator Harrison was delivering his address against the bonus. "I shall not vote for any immediate payment of the bonus at this time, regardless of the effect on my political career," he shouted.

The Senate had under consideration a resolution to create a permanent committee on veterans' legislation sponsored by Senator Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa. It failed to reach a vote before the time for its consideration expired.

Attacked by LaGuardia.

In opposing the bill, Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, who has a distinguished war record, said: "You are to give $2,000,000,000 to 4 per cent of the population. It will not solve a single problem. There are 8,000,000 unemployed. I refuse, for one, to sacrifice them to this distorted, selfish purpose. Eight weeks after they get the bonus the veterans will have no money and the situation will be the same as before."

Other former service men who opposed the bonus were Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York, a combat officer in the war, and Robert G. Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, an Army balloonist. Representative Patman is a former service man.

If the House passes the bill today, it must still run the gantlet of the Senate, where the stiffest opposition will be encountered. Even should it pass the upper House, President Hoover has promised a veto, and it is doubtful that two-thirds of the members of either branch of Congress could be mustered to override a veto.

Raised Petition Names.

The campaign for votes in the Senate will be started today by the legislative committee of the army, headed by Harold B. Foulkrod, of Philadelphia, which also will be instructed to keep the House votes in line. It was this committee that lobbied the House and raised the total of names on the Patman petition to discharge the rules committee from consideration of the bill from less than 90 to the required 145.

The House agreed to meet at 11 o'clock today at which time the debate on the bonus bill will be started. Representative Patman will support his measure and Representative Crisp will control the two hours' debate against the bill.

There was a motley gathering of veterans in the gallery when Representative Patman presented a motion to discharge the rules committee from consideration of the bonus measure. Representative Rainey, who presided in the absence of Speaker Garner, warned the galleries against a demonstration of approval or disapproval.

Amendment Favored.

Representative Ragon (Democrat), of Arkansas, supporting the bill, favored an amendment to the bill to provide payment of the bonus by a bond issue to back the proposed new currency.

"Remember, gentlemen, this doesn't take a thing out of the Treasury. It would let the Government discharge a debt it owes to the veterans."

Representative Fish, opposing the bill, said: "The title of this bill should be to scrap all ideas of Government economy and bring disaster to the American people. We do not owe the able-bodied veterans anything. We do not propose to be coerced by veterans here in Washington or elsewhere in the United States."

Arguing for his proposal, Representative Patman said the bonus "will go to more people than ever could be reached by public building or road building."

At an executive committee meeting last night, Ernest Albright, of Oklahoma City, Okla., was selected to represent the Sixth Regiment to replace Iler C. Schooler, of Texas, who resigned his post. J. B. Jeck, of Illinois, was removed from office as secretary because he was "unqualified to join the army."

Committee Organized.

Decorated men and the colors of the Army will take part in the Flag Day parade tonight, the committee decided. It also created a welfare and relief committee, with Joseph M. Fabiano, of New York, as chairman. The veterans at 2626 Pennsylvania avenue northwest were received into the army. About 183 are quartered there.

Veterans continued to flock to the encampments. Last night Waters estimated there are 20,000 in the city, with thousands on the way. Gen. Glassford sent letters to all the encampments offering transportation toward home.

Nearly 500 men were treated yesterday at the headquarters of the Sixth Marines Reserves Brigade by Lieut. Comdr. Don A. Knowlton. The veterans' relief clinic will be opened today at the Marines' Armory on John Marshall place. A corps of volunteer dentists and doctors will treat the sick and ailing.

The rain caused many veterans to call at the sick bay suffering of colds and sore throats. However, the rain was looked upon by health officers as a blessing in disguise, since it eliminated for a time the germ-laden dust which has been blowing about the encampments. It also destroyed disease-breeding larvae.

Gen. Glassford yesterday announced that the "bomb" which officers of the bonus army had reported found in a building near their quarters at Fourth street and Pennsylvania avenue, was a hand grenade from which powder and cap had been removed. The men who reported the discovery denied last night that it was a hand grenade.

Health Officer William C. Fowler and J. B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering, inspected the Anacostia camp yesterday in an effort to provide better sanitary facilities, but because of the nature of the land they find it almost impossible to provide anything but showers for the veterans to bathe in.

Dr. Fowler is also trying to locate sufficient room to set up a clinic so as to be able to examine the marchers and send those in need of treatment to the temporary hospital.

Eligible for Postmastership.

(Associated Press.)

The Civil Service Commission certified to Postmaster General Brown yesterday that the following persons had been examined and found eligible for appointment as postmaster at South Boston, Halifax County, Va.: Charles B. Lovelace, William M. Mullins and Lee P. Woody.

Long Lost Son, in Bonus Army, Sought by Mother

Illinois Group Member Will Find Family Waiting Here.

It was just fourteen years ago that an eager doughboy bade farewell to his family in Chicago, Ill., set out for New York and boarded an Army transport for France. The long years that followed brought no word of his whereabouts—except that he was a member of the 501st Aviation Squadron.

But now, for the first time since that day he left a happy home to serve Uncle Sam, his family know where he is, and that he is alive and well. George E. Kimerling, late of the United States Aviation Corps, is in Washington—somewhere in Washington—a part of the mammoth army of veterans seeking payment of the soldiers' bonus.

A mother, perhaps somewhat changed with anxious years of waiting, wants her boy to come back. No longer a boy in appearance, she knows, but still a child to her, this mother has appealed to The Post to help locate George and return him to his welcoming family.

She is Mrs. Lydia M. Kimerling, of 915 Fifth street northwest. Through the untiring efforts of Kimerling's sister, now Mrs. Mildred C. Evripis, who came here from Chicago, it was definitely learned that he was in Washington with the Illinois bonus delegation.

Mrs. Evripis came here to be with her mother, who moved from Chicago shortly after the war. At a time when all hope of ever seeing George again had faded, the bonus marchers began to reach Washington.

On the chance that he might be among them, George's sister went to the camp in Anacostia. Inquiries revealed that he did come with the Chicago marchers, but no one had seen him since Friday.

His "buddies" said that George strayed from camp, and efforts to find him had failed. Mrs. Evripis vainly searched the city streets and parks. But even though she found him, the chances are that they would not recognize each other.

Several of George's friends were taken to the Kimerling home for food and rest. They told of how George had tried to locate his family, but not knowing where his mother moved or his sister's married name, he had failed.

George's father died just before Mrs. Kimberling came to Washington. And now comes a plea from a mother's aching heart——

Pennsylvania Includes Modification in Wet Plan

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—After three hours of hearings and debate, Pennsylvania's special resolutions committee late today asked Joseph Mackrell, Pittsburgh, to redraft his resolution calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Mr. Mackrell resubmitted his resolution divided into two parts, one calling for repeal and the other for modification of the enforcement acts. He said he was the only person of the half dozen the committee consulted today who mentioned modification. Leaders of the delegation said the committee probably would take no action tonight, but would submit a report to a caucus tomorrow.

"Hobo King" to Address Bonus Marchers Today

Jeff Davis, "king of the hoboes," who recently joined the Cincinnati contingent of the bonus marchers, will address the men at Anacostia Camp at 1 p. m. today.

The hobo leader sent out a command to the knights of the road to stay out of Washington while the bonus seekers were camping here. Their presence, he said, might interfere with the veterans. Davis aided in recruiting 30,000 hoboes for military service during the World War.

QUIZ APPEARS SURE IN ABDUCTION HUNT

Five Major Blunders Charged to Police Working on Lindbergh Case.

Alpine, N. J., June 13 (A.P.).—Repercussions, State and international, rumbled in the distance today as the State police investigation into the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder reached an apparent dead-end and Gov. A. Harry Moore came to the defense of the police handling of the case.

An investigation into the police tactics in the case was said to be a virtual certainty by Senator Emerson L. Richards, Republican leader. He asserted the case "has been slaughtered to make a Democratic holiday."

Parliament Members Angry.

Meanwhile, in London, Labor members of Parliament, aroused by the suicide of the English waitress, Violet Sharpe, in the Morrow home on Friday, signified an intention to ask the British government to make representations to the United States Government over the suicide. Newspapers there expressed indignation against New Jersey police, some accusing them of driving the girl to suicide by their questioning.

Gov. Moore took cognizance of the situation in an official statement in which he said he stood "squarely behind" Superintendent H. Norman Schwarzkopf.

The statement, issued after a long conference with the State police head, was termed by Moore his "one and only statement" in reply to criticism of the police.

Third Degree Denied.

"I have talked with Col. Schwarzkopf," the governor said, "and am satisfied that the police have done nothing anywhere nearly approaching so-called third degree, and I believe them in no way deserving of censure; I stand squarely behind Col. Schwarzkopf in his efforts.

Ernest Brinkert, the New Rochelle taximan whose picture was identified before her suicide by Miss Sharpe as the man with whom she went to the Peanut Grill the night of the kidnaping but who later was cleared by the statements of two other members of the party that he was not in the group, was preparing a written statement for police. Schwarzkopf said Brinkert "has volunteered to stay at Alpine until it (the statement) is completely verified."

No British Action Here.

British authorities in the United States were said in London not to have been empowered to lodge a complaint in the suicide case. This was substantiated by Washington dispatches that no representation from the British government had been received at the State Department. The British Embassy added it had received no instructions from London.

Detroit, June 13 (A.P.).—Robert Burns, held for questioning since Friday in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, was released today.

Harry Fleisher, who surrendered to police last week after being sought for months in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, stood mute today when he was arraigned in Recorder's Court on a murder warrant outstanding for nearly a year. A plea of not guilty was entered, and Fleisher was remanded to jail without bond for examination June 22.

SEABURY'S ANALYSIS ATTACKED BY BLOCK

Publisher Asks Retraction as New Charges Are Made Against Walker.

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—An assertion that Samuel Seabury's "analysis" of the Mayor Walker testimony contained "wholly unwarranted inference" with respect to his dealings with the mayor was made tonight by Paul Block, the publisher.

He asked the counsel to the Hofstadter legislative committee investigating Walker's city administration to "amend your statement to Gov. Roosevelt insofar as this inference to me applies."

Coincident with Block's announcement a new set of charges against Mayor Walker was made public by the "no deal" party, a group of Democratic business and professional men.

Their petition to the governor asked for the mayor's removal "for misconduct and misfeasance in office, even though your excellency should find, with respect to other facts before you, that there is not sufficient proof of official or personal dishonesty on the part of Mayor Walker while in office."

Block's protest against the Seabury "analysis" was the second made by men whose dealings with the mayor formed the basis for Seabury's contention Walker was "unfit" to continue as mayor. Samuel Ungerleider, broker, yesterday protested to Gov. Roosevelt against what he called "unwarranted inferences" contained in the analysis.

Friendship With Walker.

Block, who explained in public hearing that Mayor Walker drew nearly $250,000 from a joint brokerage account he opened for himself and Walker after Block's son, Billie, had expressed doubt the mayor could live on his $25,000 a year salary, told Seabury, "You should know that my joint account with James J. Walker was opened and conducted solely because of my many years' friendship with him as an individual, and not as Mayor of New York.

"You should know that I expected and received no favors from the mayor or the city administration, and that any inference that my motives were for personal profit is unwarranted, unjustified and untruthful."

He asserted Seabury's analysis sought "to establish, by wholly unwarranted inference, that there was some connection between that account and the desire on the part of a corporation in which I had an interest to sell tile for use in the city subways.

"You know, as well as I, that I opened this joint account fully nine months before I had any interest in the Beyer Co. You know, as well as I, that this Beyer Co. never manufactured for sale, nor did it sell, any tile to the city or to any subway contractor or any one else."

Objected to Proposal.

He told of objecting to the company's plan to manufacture subway tile because he felt it would cause him embarrassment because of his friendship with Mayor Walker, and said he sold his entire interest in the Beyer Co. soon after the plan was discussed.

"If there was any doubt in your mind as to this," Block wrote, "you should have questioned me while I was on the stand rather than publicly make me the victim of unjust inferences unsupported by fact.

"I am surprised at this action on your part. The only explanation of this unfair insinuation must lie in an endeavor to strengthen your case against the city administration, at the expense of the reputation of one who is not involved in any way."

Five Counts in Demand.

The "no deal" party's charges are unlike the Seabury "conclusions" which Gov. Roosevelt said he would consider "formal charges." They demand Walker's removal on five counts:

1—That Mayor Walker "has, by making false statements about his stewardship, wilfully, continuously and seriously injured the public which he swore he would faithfully serve."

2—That Walker "has for over six years been guilty of enormous waste and gross inefficiency."

3—That he "has knowingly and wrongfully permitted and fostered city-wide inequalities of assessment."

4—That he "has permitted and fostered irregularities and graft, even after having publicly admitted that they were extensive."

5—That he "has neglected and mishandled great problems of the city."

LOVE SONGS FOR A DEPRESSION.

No. 1—The Passionate Shepherd to His Love.

Come live with me and be my love,
And we will all the pleasures prove
That hills and valleys, dales and fields
All offer (at their present yields).

And we will sit upon the rocks
And see the shepherds feed their flocks—
And maybe we, my pretty lass,
Can cultivate a taste for grass.

And I will make thee beds of roses—
They're cheaper now, the shop discloses;
A cap of flowers and a kirtle—
Embroidered with some borrowed myrtle.

A gown made of the finest wool,
Which from a starving lamb we pull,
But, sweet, you may as well be told,
Your slipper buckles won't be gold.

A belt of straw and ivy buds—
But nix on coral clasps and studs—
You'll have to show economy—
Things aren't what they used to be.

Although I haven't much to hoard
I know the Reconstruction Board;
If these prospects thy mind may move—
Come live with me and be my love!

Mooney Demonstration Against Rolph Averted

Chicago, May 13 (A.P.).—A threatened Communist demonstration directed at Gov. Rolph of California, and protesting the imprisonment of Tom Mooney, evaporated today with the arrival of five carloads of plainclothes men at the scene.

Police stationed on Michigan boulevard reported that several well-known Communists were passing out hand bills in front of the Stevens Hotel criticizing Rolph's decision in turning down Mooney's plea for a pardon. Rolph is a delegate to the Republican National Convention and is staying at the Stevens.

The Senate couldn't go to the convention, so the convention is to be brought to the Senate—by radio.

A Democratic senator—Dill, of Washington—arranged yesterday for installation of a big receiving set in a room just off the Senate chamber to enable members to hear the broadcast of the Republican national convention, opening today.

COBLENTZ ASSERTS FULL FAITH IN BANK

Accused Financier Quizzed on Values of Wardman Properties Here.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 13.—With a mass of records before him, State Senator Emory L. Coblentz, president of the Central Trust Co., Frederick, was on the stand all day, opening the fourth week of his trial on a charge of accepting a deposit when he knew the bank was insolvent.

In his analysis of the Central Securities Co., of the affairs of which an audit was made in August at the request of the Baltimore Trust Co. and Union Trust Co., of Baltimore, Coblentz said he thought it could meet its obligations and be $140,000 to the good. In his analysis he includes $2,518,003.24 as the total owing by the Wardman interests which he places in the doubtful column. On the Wardman items he thought at least 50 per cent could be realized.

The Blue Ridge Investment Co., he thought, would leave enough assets to meet its obligations and in making up this schedule he classed obligations of the Wardman interests totaling $938,343.43 as doubtful. He classed $2,747,918 of the company's holdings as good, and found a shortage of $747,792 that would have to be assumed by the guarantors.

Coblentz said that he not only believed but knew that the Central Trust Co. was solvent the day it closed. He said he did not look into the bank's assets with the fixed viewpoint of an auditor, but rather that of the banker who is familiar with the possibilities of his investments.

Investments in Realty Here.

Coblentz was asked to explain various items, introduced into the testimony by the State's witnesses, relative to certain trust notes, in reports of the audits of the Central Trust Bank and its subsidiaries. He went into detail and explained the transactions. The witness declined to take the same view of William B. French, treasurer of the Central Securities Co., that some of these notes were worthless.

The witness was questioned to some length as to the Washington realty investments, held by Central Trust Co. He explained he had always felt that the trusts on the property they held, several on apartment buildings, had sufficient security to protect the obligation. This was in reference to the Prinz Karl Building, which, he again asserted, he felt was worth the amount of liens. The Washington investments were all short term.

With reference to the Clifton Terrace notes, he explained this was a purchase money trust. The building sold for $1,850,000 with three trusts. He declared it was his understanding it was a good property, with no defaults, earning its way, when turned over to the Blue Ridge Investment Co. Coblentz related how later it was conveyed to him as trustee, against his wishes. He explained the Wardman loan of $60,000 as a second trust. As to the Woodley tract, his estimate on the property was purely guesswork. He told how it was turned over by Wardman, being regarded as an exceptional site for an apartment building.

Effect of Shoreham Hotel.

He stated the lien on the Gordon Hotel also was turned over by Wardman interests. It was valued then at $450,000. While there is a trust of $154,000, Mr. Coblentz asserted it was carried in the bank assets at $89,000.

The loan on Wardman Park Annex was collateral on a loan to Wardman. He admitted that he thought the loan was too high.

The witness next was asked about the Wardman notes and debentures, which have figured in the trial. He referred from time to time to records he had and the corporate set-up and cited the working capital of this corporation from its prospectus was shown as $2,400,000, but was really $2,250,000. He declared its income was over $1,000,000. Later its operations were curtailed by cessation of building in Washington. The receivership of the Wardman companies formed in 1928, however, he asserted, did not result from loss of working capital, but the building of the Shoreham Hotel opposite Wardman Park Annex.

Coblentz in opening his testimony today said he owned almost 7,000 shares of its stock at the time the bank closed. Of these, 6,300 were in his name and more in the name of another party for which he was paying at that time. He said he subscribed to 3,500 shares of stock in April, 1931, making settlement by note, paying $60,000 on it and finally reducing to $45,000.

Dear Mr. Marks:

We are extremely gratified with the results obtained from our advertising in the Washington Post since we started using your paper on May 6.

There have been more direct returns from this series of ads than any other men's advertising used by us in recent years.

Gentlemen:-

It might be of interest to you to know that the first ad that I ran in your paper on June 4th 1932, sold one hundred and eight dozen golf balls, at our Groce's store, located at 11th & E. Sts. N.W.,

For your further information and guidance I am enclosing an ad which appeared in the New York Times on the same item.

Thanking you for your cooperation, I remain,

Very truly yours,
President.

A ONE-COLUMN by 4½ inch advertisement, featuring a $2.98 golf ball item, gave an unprecedented golf ball business to GROCE'S store on the day of its insertion . . . B. RICH'S SONS, starting a new campaign of advertising, featuring men's fine shoes, in The Washington Post May 6, claim more DIRECT RETURNS than from any men's advertising used by them in recent years.

Both of the letters reproduced above were sent to The Washington Post without solicitation, in genuine appreciation of the RESULTS given by this newspaper. Before such testimony all advertising THEORIES must give way to substantiated FACT—The Washington Post can, and DOES, offer greater returns to the advertiser.

There are many ways of juggling figures in order to give a surface impression of greater advertising value—but of what effect can carefully prepared, naturally biased, supposition be, when compared with the actual experience of receiving direct and unparalleled returns from an advertising message published in The Washington Post?

From golf balls and men's shoes to $25,000 homes, The Washington Post is the logical medium for the advertiser—and the invaluable directory of appealing values to the reader . . . Honest circulation among families who are "able to buy" tells the story!

BIG PARADE TONIGHT TO HONOR FLAG DAY

150 Marching Units and Floats Will Be Seen in Pennsylvania Avenue.

Renewal of Flag Day Faith Urged by Hoover

President Hoover yesterday called for a Flag Day renewal of faith and courage by the Nation as a contribution to today's traditional flag ceremonies.

He said, in a formal statement:

"One hundred and fifty-five years ago the Continental Congress established the fundamental design of our flag and Gen. Washington set it afloat as a symbol of national unity and determination.

"It is today a symbol enormously more significant, for it stands for all that has been accomplished by our people in the century and a half of the Nation's existence. That accomplishment was based on and made possible by faith, fortitude, resolution, courage and character.

"What we need to do on this Flag Day, June 14, 1932, is to renew that faith, resolving that we will hand on to the next generation, unimpaired by the passing emotions of temporary distress, these national traits and the American system which they have builded."

The birthday of the American Flag will be celebrated tonight in Washington with a gigantic procession of tribute, in which more than 150 units will march down Pennsylvania avenue to the east plaza of the Capitol. The colorful and historic procession will start from Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue promptly at 7:30 o'clock, and by 8 o'clock the grand marshal and his staff will arrive at the reviewing stand opposite the rotunda of the Capitol.

The grand marshal, Brig. Gen. Derry L. Miles, U. S. A., and staff, will be followed by the U. S. Marine Corps Band and the U. S. Navy Band, leading the first dvision of the procession, including military units.

The U. S. Army Band will head Section A of the second division, which will include veteran and patriotic organizations. Heading Section B will come the newly-organized Overseas Military Band; Section C will be headed by Victory Post Drum Corps, which will include other drum corps of the American Legion also, and Section D will be headed by the Fox Theater Band.

The third division, including units representing the State societies, will have the Washington High School Cadet Corps Band at its head, and will include the Community Center Colored Band, Washington Y. M. C. A. Boys Band, Washington Gas Light Co. Band, National Training School Band, Wheeler Club Boys Band, Altoona Pennsylvania Junior Band and the Virginia State Band of Lynchburg, Va.

Boy Scouts and G. A. R.

Bands in the fourth and fifth divisions will be the Washington, D. C., Lodge, No. 15, B. P. O. E. Band, Washington Boys Independent Band, Morning Star Lodge, No. 40, B. P. O. E. Band, Americanization School Association Band, Polish National Alliance Band, Philadelphia Turngemeinde Band, Coast Artillery Military Band, from Lynchburg, Va., and Langley High School Band, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The entire body of the District of Columbia Council of the Boy Scouts of America, commanded by Col. E. L. Mattice, will take part as a unit in the fourth division, which includes civic organizations. They will be headed by Troop 49, Drum and Bugle Corps.

Among the outstanding floats in the procession will be those of the District of Columbia Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, the orginators of the observance of Flag Day.

"Friendship, Charity and Loyalty" will be represented in the float of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Woman's Relief Corps.

The float of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will have Miss Jessica Smith, daughter of the former Governor of North Carolina, carrying the "Stars and Bars" designed by her father as the insignia of U. D. C., while beside her will be carried the Stars and Stripes in token of a united Nation.

Women's Organizations Floats.

A float representing the dome of the Capitol in miniature, with 48 State flags flying from the balcony surrounding the dome, surmounted by the American flag, will be entered by the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The District of Columbia Daughters of the American Revolution have entered a float, displaying United States flags and D. A. R. banners.

The Service Star Legion, first national patriotic organization of women in the World War, will be represented by members of the Baltimore and Washington chapters, employing the five-pointed symbol of the legion, sisterhood, education, relief, remembrance and vigilance.

The Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia, will have a float depicting "Washington Crossing the Delaware."

The Federation of Polish Jews in America will have a marching unit and a float dipicting Haym Salomon, a Polish Jew who helped finance the Revolution.

The Ukrainian Bicentennial Committee of New York City will have a float showing the apotheosis of Ukrainian immigration to the United States.

The Polish National Alliance, of the District of Columbia and Maryland, will have an illuminated float depicting the figures of General Kosciusko, General Pulaski, and other distinguished military heroes of Poland.

The Swiss float will depict some of the high spots in the history of Switzerland. It is entered by three Swiss organizations, The Swiss Club, the Stauffacherin, and the Helvetia Association.

The procession has been arranged by the United States and the District of Columbia Bicentennial Commissions and it is expected to take two hours to pass a given point.

for its cooperation in the past and for the donation to feed the marchers. The meeting replied with a rising vote expressing its confidence in his ability to deal with the situation in the best interests of the veterans and the city.

Committees were appointed to supervise the collection of food, clothing, bedding and medical supplies for the veterans. Norwood P. # ARGENTINE LEFTISTS PLEDGE AID TO JUSTO

Take Steps to Back Regime to Prevent New Coup; Others to Act.

Buenos Aires, June 13 (A.P.).—Six Leftist opposition political groups, at a mass meeting today, pledged themselves to support the government of President Dr. Augustin P. Justo and prevent any possibility of return to a dictatorship. There had been rumors of a possible coup against the regime.

The six organizations were the Socialists, Independent Socialists, Progressive Democrats, Entereries Radicals, the Argentine University Federation and the Buenos Aires University Federation.

The Yrigoyenist Radicals and Alvear Radicals did not participate in the meeting, but it was understood they planned a similar expression independently.

The government was believed by some to be alarmed at restlessness manifested in current strikes and other agitation.

Mexico City, June 13 (A.P.).—Exiled members of the Nicaraguan Nationalist party assembled here today and discussed a resolution calling on the Republican party to "do something about Nicaragua."

Nearly 100 exiles attended the meeting. They intended to send the resolution, on its approval, to Republican leaders at the national convention in Chicago.

"The American and Nicaraguan people are entitled to a clear definition of policy from the Republican party regarding Nicaragua," Horacio Espinosa, former minister of public works in Nicaragua, said.

G. W. U. TO HOLD EXERCISES TONIGHT

Kennedy Watkins to Deliver Salutatory Address In Colorful Program.

Class night exercises will be held tonight by members of the graduating classes of the George Washington University.

In a colorful ceremony the graduates will assemble in cap and gown in Stockton Hall at 7:30 o'clock and will proceed across the college yard in academic procession to Corcoran Hall.

The program will open with the salutatory address, delivered by Kennedy Watkins. Mr. Watkins is an honor student and a member of a family which has been associated with the university for 67 years. His great-grandfather, John Clement Kennedy, was professor of law in the university from 1865 to 1874 and received the honorary degree of doctor of laws in 1873.

Valedictory addresses will be given by Charles Fleck, for the medical school; Douglas Hatch, for the law school, and Samuel Greenberg, for the undergraduate schools of the university.

Last night sixteen law seniors were inducted into the Order of the Coif, honorary legal fraternity, at a banquet held at the Cosmos Club. Those whose high scholarship merited this honor are Leon H. Amdur, Harold Biesemier, Louise Feinstein, Douglas L. Hatch, Joseph York Houghton, Robert Lee Johnson, Day Payne Karr, Winfield Scott Macgill, Carvell Mattson, Kirby Patterson, Reynolds Robertson, J. Rupert Allison, Dwight Taylor, Merrill B. Twining, Clinton De Witt Vernon and Jesse Rink Wallace. Charles Warren, who was the speaker at the banquet, was elected an honorary member.

JEAN FUGITT,

WILLIAM REDFIELD, WILSON AID, IS DEAD

Expert on Tariff and Former Cabinet Member Passes at Age of 73.

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—William C. Redfield, 73, a former member of Congress and Secretary of Commerce during the Wilson administration, died at his Brooklyn home during the night. He was found dead by his wife, Mrs. Elsie Redfield, whom he married in 1885, when she went to his room this morning to awaken him.

As a member of the House, which he entered in 1911, Mr. Redfield took an active part in tariff matters and came to be regarded as an expert on the subject. His views on tariff were backed by many years' experience as a manufacturer of steel products.

Mr. Redfield entered Wilson's Cabinet in 1913, remaining in that office until 1919, when he resigned to return to business as vice president of the Warp Twisting-In Machine Co. and a director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. During his secretaryship he reorganized and enlarged the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. He was active in the War Trade Board, the Bureau of Standards and the Council of National Defense. He favored a large Navy for the protection of American business interests.

Mr. Redfield was born in Albany on June 18, 1858, and was educated at Pittsfield, Mass.

He entered politics in 1896, when he made an unsuccessful bid for Congress. Besides his widow he is survived by two children, Humphrey Redfield and Mrs. Charles K. Drury.

"Let sleeping dogs lie"

BY this time you must be pretty well convinced of the fact that other cigarettes do not like to talk about inhaling.

And yet—this subject—so "untouchable" in cigarette advertising—is very close to your welfare! For you do inhale—we all do—knowingly or unknowingly, every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

"Let sleeping dogs lie" may be the cigarette trade's answer to us! But what's their answer to you? Do you inhale? Lucky Strike does not avoid this vital question. It meets the issue fairly and squarely—because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Lucky Strike's famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

THE BONUS SURRENDER.

While the bonus army looks on with pride in its accomplishment, the demoralized House of Representatives will vote today to pay $2,400,000,000 to former soldiers by debasement of the currency. The vote in favor of considering that measure was 226 to 175. It may be assumed that the House will pass the Patman bill by a similar vote. Weak-kneed politicians have succumbed to the pressure of an insistent lobby. On the eve of a national election they would rather be charged with destroying the credit of the Government than with refusing to comply with the demands of the bonusites.

Affirmative action by the House was expected. So far as the country is concerned this vote is only one more gesture by an undisciplined and leaderless body that long ago ceased to hold the public welfare above vote-getting tactics. The House has displayed its utter lack of responsibility on so many occasions that the public is no longer alarmed by a fresh dereliction. Every one knows that the Senate and the President stand between the bonus bill and its enactment. In recent months the public has come to place the confidence it once distributed to all agencies of the Government almost solely in the Senate and the White House.

When the bonus measure reaches the Senate it will have a hostile reception in the finance committee. Both the regular Republican and Democratic members of that committee are opposed to it. The committee may have the courage to pigeonhole the measure. If not, it will doubtless be sent to the Senate with an adverse report. If that body acts on the bonus at all, it will probably defeat it. Responsible members of the Senate are too conscious of the public rebuke that would follow if they should repeat the performance of the House.

President Hoover has announced in unequivocal terms that he will not countenance such a raid upon the national finances at this time. Bonusites in the House can not command a two-thirds majority vote. Every one on Capitol Hill knows that it is impossible for the bonus measure to become law. Consequently, any favorable vote is a deliberate attempt to deceive the veterans.

Probably the most serious result of the action by the House will be the enlargement of the bonus army in Washington. Veterans throughout the country can not be expected to understand the parliamentary deadlock toward which the Patman bill is headed. They know only that the House has surrendered to the pressure of the bonus lobby. In view of that fact, why should not the Senate and the President surrender? Several thousand more destitute ex-service men may be expected to flock here on a futile mission. The desperate plight of these stranded men is the most powerful reproach that can be administered to the demagogues in Congress who have encouraged them to come here.

ECONOMY, DOLES AND PORK.

It must be painful indeed for President Hoover to remind Congress once more that the budget has not yet been balanced. Congress seems to have taken the attitude that when it passed the $1,000,000,000 revenue bill its worries were over. But current estimates leave the budget nearly $200,000,000 short of being balanced.

As the tax bill was finally signed by the President its estimated yield was a little more than the Treasury had counted on. It is on the economy end that Congress has fallen down. The House set out to cut expenditures by $250,000,000 and finally adopted a few doubtful economies aggregating about $40,000,000. With a similar goal in view the Senate managed to cut expenses by about $120,000,000, chiefly by penalizing Federal employes. Neither the House nor the Senate had the courage to invade the field of pork-barrel extravagance nor the payment of allowances to veterans who saw nothing of the war and suffered no injuries whatsoever because of their service.

This is a bad situation. Congress has imposed heavy charges upon every citizen's income, besides levying extensive nuisance taxes upon articles in common use. But Congress stubbornly refuses to diminish the nourishment of political machines and bureaucracy.

Nepotism has played a considerable part in the defeat of several members of Congress recently. The total of funds wasted by that practice pales into insignificance beside the enormous sums that are squandered primarily to give legislators an advantage over rivals in their districts. When Congress refuses to sacrifice any of this political pork for the sake of balancing the budget, taxpayers ought to know about it.

THE FLAG.

The American flag is no fetish. Men understand its function and know the values it symbolizes. Only a few yards of silk and a little thread, only a flash of color against the sky, it is but a token, a sign, a symbol of quantities and qualities which defy adequate representation. No single design ever could be conceived to portray the whole nation, the whole people, the whole body of ideals about which American civilization revolves, and the flag is admittedly only a gesture toward the impossible. It is as such that the people comprehend and appreciate it.

The oldest national banner in the world, it is the ensign of one of the youngest of the world's family of commonwealths. But it is neither its relative age nor the country's relative youth that inspires the beholder as it waves in the breeze. It is rather the flag's presence in all that has made the nation what it is. Scenes change, men come and go, parties rise and fall, issues wax and wane, but there is continuity in American history, and the flag bespeaks the bond that links man to man. So it is that when a citizen salutes the flag he pays tribute not to the symbol itself but to the unity, harmony and fellowship which it denotes.

Citizenship implies responsibility, and the flag deserves respect. Flag Day is intended to remind the people of these facts. This year to a particular degree the significance of the occasion is worthy of special thought. Crime rides rampant, radicalism is rife, economic disorder prevails. American institutions are being tested. But none of these evils can constitute any real danger if the people of the nation stand firm. The plight of other lands is far more disturbing. The United States has already weathered much of the storm. The future is bright and secure if American men and women will practice the faith which is in them, the faith which their heroes personified and which their flag, free flung to the winds of heaven, typifies.

One evening recently dark storm clouds hung over Washington. Late workers, homeward bound, saw lightning flash from blackness and illuminate the pure white dome of the Capitol. A mighty drama of the empyrean raged. But through it all, graceful and proud, floated the Star-Spangled Banner, untouched and untouchable in the storm. Men stood a moment to watch the spectacle, then went their way to their rest, smiling and content. There was nothing to fear. The flag was still there.

THE LAUSANNE DILEMMA.

Preliminary discussions between Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Herriot are kept under a cloud of secrecy, but nothing they can say will make much impression on the dilemma that confronts Europe at Lausanne this week. Mr. MacDonald would like to transfer the burden of paying for the war from Germany to the United States on the theory that this country is better able to raise the money. M. Herriot seems to be leaning toward that view also, but that does not in the slightest degree facilitate a solution of the problem that must be faced at Lausanne. The game is not between the United States and Europe, but between Germany and her creditors.

Whatever is done at Lausanne must be with the understanding that there will be no cancellation of the debts owed to American taxpayers. There has never been any indication that Uncle Sam would demand more than the debtor nations are capable of paying. But cancellation is no longer a debatable issue. Great Britain, France and Italy must work out some arrangement with Germany that will be entirely independent of the fiscal relations between them and the Government at Washington.

In view of the prevailing sentiment in the chief European countries it is extremely doubtful that a lasting settlement of the reparations issue can be worked out at Lausanne. Germany insists that she can pay no more. Experts who have investigated her financial status seem to agree that Germany is not now in a position to resume payments without disrupting her national economic structure. But it is absurd for Germany to insist that reparations be wiped out entirely when the allied powers remain burdened with war debts. Consequently, Germany will doubtless be forced into an agreement to resume payments as soon as the depression lifts.

If any French government agreed to relieve Germany of all reparations payments, without receiving a similar concession on France's war debt to the United States, it could not remain in power for a day. Even if the American Government were willing to saddle the war debts upon its own taxpayers, France would not be inclined to relieve Germany of all payments, for in that event Germany would succeed France as the strongest economic power in Europe. The determination to keep a grip on Germany is mingled with the financial argument for continuation of reparation payments.

For this reason, as well as the refusal of the United States to take any part in the reparations squabble, only one agreement seems possible at Lausanne. Germany must resume payments when the depression is over. It would be futile to make any attempt at this time to determine Germany's future capacity to pay. No one can foresee what the outcome of the depression will be or how soon the world will once more be on its feet. Hence, the formulation of a new reparations plan must await future developments. Even if the conference should find that Germany is able to pay something at this time, no one would be willing to base a future schedule of payments on the present capacity of the Reich. If the conference agrees that Germany is not in a position to pay anything at this time, another moratorium will be inevitable. This latter course seems to be the most probable outcome of the Lausanne gathering.

NO WAR BOARD NEEDED.

The President's position is sound in declining to act upon the suggestion of a notable group of citizens who propose the creation of a Council of National Defense, similar to the organization that existed during the world war. However much conditions brought about by the depression may be referred to as worse than war, or demands made that we wage war upon hard times, no such metaphorical comparisons can in any appreciable manner make the situation the same. No such unifying issue or leadership can create in the prosaic work of economic reconstruction the patriotic appeal which stirs the people to militant enthusiasm.

The proposed procedure is contrary to the whole spirit of American government in peace times. Political objections are many, particularly in an election year. Any such attempt to centralize authority at this time would be looked upon with suspicion. Congress has refused to grant executive power in such simple and eminently fitting lines as the consolidation of minor government agencies for the purpose of effecting economies. How much less would legislators be disposed to grant the wide powers that have been suggested, on the eve of a national campaign?

It is highly improbable that the essentially bi-partisan character of the government would be surrendered at any time except under the exigencies of war. In times of national danger an entirely different psychology animates the nation. Politics can be forgotten. Cooperation in and out of administrative circles is the natural order, without thought of minor differences of opinion. Such unity of spirit and action is not engendered by the troubles attendant upon a depression. The people can mobilize to exercise force against a physical enemy, but the depression is an invisible enemy.

The various agencies that have been set up through the cooperation of Congress and the President go as far in this direction as can be expected at this time. Supplemented as they are by other privately organized forces formed to assist in giving effect to the credit and confidence provided by the Government, Executive efforts are doing all that can be done in the way of aiding recovery without overstepping the legitimate bounds of government activity in the business world.

If Congress will now complete the generally accepted plans for financing credit and relief, no more complicated machinery for their application is necessary. The agencies in existence can go as far in the way of contributing to a managed recovery as will be acceptable in peace times. The American people are concerned about present conditions. There is a healthy determination abroad in the land to terminate such features of the depression as can be remedied by a better display of confidence in the nation and its inherent wealth and capacity to weather an economic storm. The country always has returned to prosperity after hard times. There is no doubt that it will do so again. The American people are not in a panic of fear about the future. They are going about the work of helping recovery along a rocky road, but they are not disposed to yield their liberty to a Government board.

A TOAST TO THE FLAG

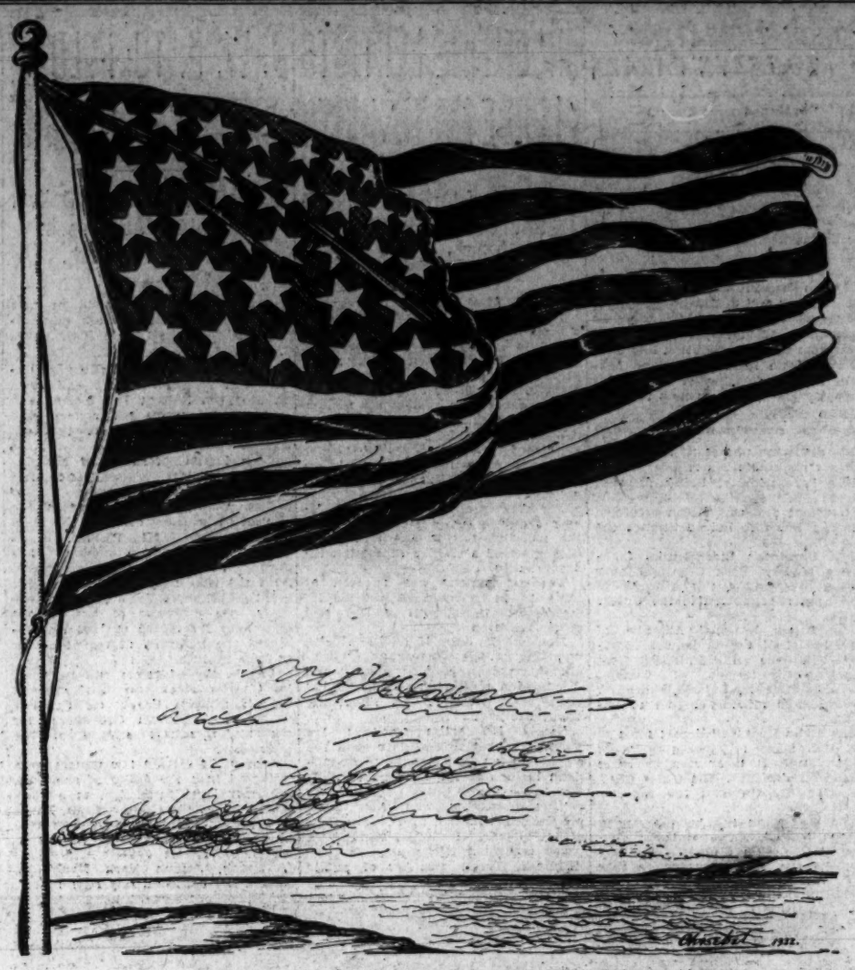
By JOHN J. DALY.

Here's to the red of it—
There's not a thread of it,
No, nor a shred of it
In all the spread of it
From foot to head,
But heroes bled for it,
Faced steel and lead for it,
Precious blood shed for it,
Bathing it red.

Here's to the white of it—
Thrilled by the sight of it,
Who knows the right of it
But feels the might of it
Through day and night?
Womanhood's care for it,
Made manhood dare for it,
Purity's prayer for it
Keeps it so white.

Here's to the blue of it—
Beauteous view of it,
Heavenly hue of it,
Star-spangled dew of it,
Constant and true.
Diadems gleam for it,
States stand supreme for it,
Liberty's beam for it
Brightens the blue.

Here's to the whole of it—
Stars, stripes and pole of it,
Body and soul of it,
O, and the roll of it,
Sun shining through.
Hearts in accord for it,
Swear by the sword for it,
Thanking the Lord for it,
Red, White and Blue!



Long May It Wave!

POST HASTE.

Good morning! What a fine House of Misrepresentatives. Good night!

The best bet: That the absolute stand-patters and the outright repealers will meet in the middle on resubrendum.

Quite a ferment in Roumania over the Fleischmann entertainment of royalty, but it may be just Carol's ruse to raise the dough.

Anyhow we are suspicious of any alleged Fleischman hour that isn't announced by Graham McNamee.

While the world worries about the radical designs of the new weekly president, Chile kicks him out for despoting too weakly.

The Lausanne conference will ask all nations to keep the peace. Japan will agree to keep the pieces.

It was to be expected that the ex-kaiser's mustache would curl up in scorn over Hitler innovations.

Pedal extremities frappe? No, nothing as serious as that; the Speaker has an honest-to-goodness bad cold.

James R. Garfield, drafted as a plain carpenter and joiner to hew platform planks, may do it so well that he will resume cabinet work.

Just in case he is offered no opportunity a fortnight hence Chairman Shouse delivered a keno address for the Republican convention opening.

Good Scout Charlie Davila lasted only a week as President of Chile, and now Col. Marmaduke Grove will try his hand. It sounds like an attack of the F. F. V.

Brazil is in such financial difficulty that the government has decided to buy 23 war vessels, evidently trying to curry European favor with the flattery of imitation.

Anyhow, the veteran army is holding its own. They are no farther from the bonus, and no nearer, than they were before the House vote was taken.

ANCIENT SHIP DESIGN.

The record of a forerunner of the Europa and Bremen, fastest of modern German transatlantic liners, has been unearthed in Oldenburg, says the Christian Science Monitor. Dredging of the Weser River near the town of Hamelvarden has brought to the surface numerous relics of past periods. One was a bone on which has been cut hieroglyphics and the outline of a ship. Savants fixed the writing as of Saxon and Frankish character, dating about the third century A. D. The drawing of the ship is believed to be one of the earliest records of a German seagoing vessel, comparable to the craft of the Phoenicians, the Vikings and the Romans. Details of rudder and rigging, however, indicate that it was of typically Germanic design. The fact that it carries sails marks it as a commercial vessel, as warcraft of that period required the greater maneuvering supplied by oars alone.

A MANX OATH.

A quaint oath was used recently in a Manx court when Deemster Stevenson More was recalled to the bench after an absence of ten years. He vowed: "By the wonderful works that God miraculously wrought in between heaven above and the earth beneath in six days and seven nights, to execute the laws of the isle justly between Our Sovereign Lord the King and his subjects as indifferently as the herring's backbone doth lie in the midst of the fish."

The oath is reminiscent of the time when the herring constituted the chief food of the Manx people.

Coward's Fear of Death Is Overcome by Fear of Seeming a Coward.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

FEW motives that determine the conduct of men are stronger than the desire to win public approval.

Each pursues his desire in a different way because each is judged by a different crowd and different standards.

But the young gangster who shoots a cop to show how tough he is has precisely the same motive that prompts a clergyman to labor long over his sermons. It is the desire to win applause—to shine in his environment.

Yet neither of these is content to win the approval of his own intimate circle. Each is aware of a larger public whose judgments are final, and each in his secret heart yearns for the world at large to recognize him as a "big shot."

That explains the power of public opinion; for as each of us covets the world's admiration, so he dreads the world's contempt and condemnation.

Much depends, of course, on the nature of the criticism. The good citizen who believes himself in the right and the gangster admired by his own kind are not affected by moral condemnation or personal abuse.

But all men are vain, and all alike dread the world's ridicule and contempt.

Society, then, has a weapon to overcome evil, and, being thus equipped, is morally responsible for evils not overcome.

The power of the weapon is beyond question.

Bandits flourished in the old West while wrath alone opposed them. They disapeared quickly when honest scorn classed them with rattlesnakes.

Men who cheat in business will not cheat at cards because the punishment in one instance is moral condemnation and in the other contempt.

No man invites the world's honest scorn.

If the public would end crime, let it quit the silly practice of making heroes of criminals. Laws can have no force without the support of public opinion.

If "good citizens" ever become decent enough to loathe and abhor criminals as decent men now abominate a sex pervert, their contempt will be more effective than all the jails in Christendom.

PRO AND CON

Principles and Pork.

St. Paul Pioneer Press.

The business men of Riverton, Wyo., have exhibited an unusual and commendable deference to national interests over local advantage in petitioning Congress to turn down an appropriation for a $70,000 Federal building in that city. All too frequently the attitude, not only of business men, but of congressmen as well, has been determined by local prejudices and desires instead of national consideration.

It is one of the discouraging characteristics of American Government, not only in the national, but in the State administrations as well, that successful politicians have all too frequently been those who have proved the most skillful in securing parks, monuments and roads for their constituents. Voters have been too prone to judge their representatives by the ability with which they have defended the appropriation for a new postoffice or the authorization of a new bridge. Such interests have been permitted to bulk larger than the attitude of lawmakers upon questions of national policy.

It is probably too much to hope that the example of the Riverton business men will be widely followed and that principle and not pork may become the most important part of the record of public servants.

Just Silly.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Since he is serving his fifth term in Congress Representative Black, of New York, can hardly plead the exuberance of youth as an excuse for his sophomoric suggestion that a dictatorship of five be set up to run the Government while Congress is in recess. There is no constitutional warrant for such a body, so its decisions would be without effect.

In a thoughtless moment a United States senator remarked the other day that this country needs a dictator. But what it really needs is a Congress that will do its whole duty and do it promptly. Then the administering of the legislation may be safely left to the President.

Garner Pork Offices.

Chicago Tribune.

Other towns and cities are being heard from in protest against the Garner postoffice pork bill. They say they do not want unnecessary Federal expenditure under pretense of relief. These protests should be taken up by every community whose citizens are intelligent enough to see through the Garner fallacy and realize that any immediate benefits they may derive from it will cost more than they are worth. As for local pride, there will be reason for pride in not having a Garner postoffice, for such an edifice will be only a monument to bad public policy and unscrupulous politics.

National Regret.

Houston Post.

There can be only a feeling of regret throughout the country that Gen. Dawes is leaving the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. That body has enjoyed popular confidence, in large measure, because of the knowledge on the part of the people that he was directing its policies.

Under his leadership the corporation has done a mammoth work. The largest financial enterprise ever undertaken in peace time in the history of the world, it was a pioneer in its field. During the short time since it was established, however, the corporation has functioned smoothly and has succeeded in large measure in accomplishing the aims set for it. Through its services the financial structure of the country has already been measurably strengthened.

The country was fortunate in having at its command at the crucial time in which the corporation was brought into being a financial genius of the character of Gen. Dawes. He has placed the Nation under a debt of gratitude to him. As he returns to his private business his fellow citizens wish him success and contentment.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Mr. Ullman Says His Reference to Safety at High Speed Did Not Apply to Congested Traffic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I answer, briefly, the letters of Allen B. Hood and Charlotte Fielding with reference to my article on motor vehicle speeds, published in The Post on June 9? Neither critic, I am sure, understood its point.

The article did not represent effort to encourage high speed motor vehicle operation. Its point was that because passenger automobiles possessed high peak speeds, they were capable of comfortable and safe cruising speeds of 45 miles an hour "on the open road." That such a cruising rate is safe is not a matter of personal judgment. It is accepted as such by virtually all motor vehicle and traffic authorities. Moreover, these men whose contact with the tragedy of street and highway fatalities is close and constant need yield to no one in the depth of their sympathy and human understanding and their intelligent grasp upon the subject.

The letters of both critics overlook the fact that the article made absolutely no reference to speeds under congested conditions, or circumstances which create a conflict between pedestrian and motor traffic. Naturally, then, it needs no defense from that perspective.

WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Wisconsin Republican State Platform Praised by Mr. Fruit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Milwaukee Journal, speaking of the Wisconsin Republican State platform, says, "It is a better platform than the national parties have made."

Perusal of the document itself discloses that its principal emphasis is placed on economic issues. It is a business platform. It is faithful to the needs of the people in the emergency of the depression.

Most striking is the fact that it makes no reference to prohibition. A minor issue, the Republicans of Wisconsin have wisely left the matter for another, less troubled time. This is sound sense, and the Journal is justified in applauding it.

Shakespeare says that it is better to bear the ills we have than fly to others that we know not of. He did not refer specifically to the liquor question, but his guidance is wise in all matters of this sort, and I commend it to the readers of The Post. Conditions may be bad, but why risk making them worse?

HENRY D. FRUIT.

Lamentation of Jeremiah on Decay of American Republic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In this column Charlotte Fielding says Helen Langstream was a martyr to the speed mania, being twice struck, finally fatally, within twenty minutes. She doubts the sanity of people who longer tolerate such crimes. In this age of cocktail parties and flippant male and female graduates who smoke cigarettes and giggle as they drive the high-powered locomotives through the streets of Washington and other cities, I doubt the sanity of the American people who are about to repeal prohibition, which if enforced would be some protection.

Such executives as Gen. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, are for repeal, but will not permit their engine drivers or other employes to touch liquor. We can not have in profusion airplanes and automobiles and mix gasoline with liquor. As all leadership seems gone in our beloved and beautiful country, I am constrained to believe we are entering another long period of The Dark Ages.

JEREMIAH JOHNSON.

Richmond Reader Says Mr. Rockefeller Wastes Time on Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Rockefeller's letter in behalf of repeal hurts. Not because he has turned his coat. Not because he has gone wet. But rather because at a moment when captains of industry ought to be spending their mental energies in honest endeavor to solve the problems of the depression he has seen fit to waste his time considering an utterly artificial issue. It is pathetic that a man whom the Nation has honored as a philanthropic leader should be taken in by wet propaganda.

Mr. Rockefeller should be serving his country. Instead, he is serving his country's foes.

TAYLOR DE LANCEY.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

FLAG DAY.

In times of war the Flag inspires
High thoughts of our courageous sires.
All hats come off as it goes by,
As, singing, brave hearts march to die.

The red, the white, the starry blue
Which floats today o'er me and you
Must wonder as it hears us whine
Just what has sapped that courage fine
Which held the last grim battleline.

The days are hard! The Flag requires
Not dying boys on tangled wires;
Not trenches deep where poppies flower
And soldiers wait the zero hour,
But men despair can't overpower.

The Flag is asking one and all
To stand once more at duty's call,
To put our selfish whims aside
And face the dark days, trouble-tried,
As bravely as the boys who died.

Now more with idle boast and brag
Greet we the birthday of our Flag.
Now let us humbly pledge anew
Our strength and full devotion to
The tasks our country has to do.

ARMS PARLEY HOPE REVIVED IN GENEVA

MacDonald and Herriot Are on Scene; Important Step Is Expected.

Geneva, June 13 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Premier Edouard Herriot arrived in Geneva tonight for a brief visit which will have important effects on the future of the disarmament conference here.

There has been much agitation in Geneva the past week because of two widely circulated reports. One was that the British were preparing to launch a new disarmament idea in the hope of reviving the conference. The second was that the British and other important European governments had decided to suspend the arms conference until the reparations meeting at Lausanne is over, and perhaps for a longer period.

The conference bureau will meet tomorrow and the situation is expected to be cleared then. The American delegation is sticking to its contention that the disarmament parley should stay on the job until concrete results have been attained.

Mr. MacDonald and M. Herriot are here on their way to the Lausanne meeting, which opens Thursday. Foreign Minister Dino Grande, of Italy, also en route to Lausanne, arrived in Geneva today.

The French and British statesmen came here after arriving at "the basis of a common viewpoint" looking toward the solution of current international problems. They achieved this in week-end discussions at Paris.

The last time Mr. MacDonald and M. Herriot appeared in Geneva together was in 1924, when they launched the Geneva protocol, and some observers expected a similar important result as the offspring of their present collaboration.

The Geneva protocol called upon all signatories to apply, in the event of aggression, all existing sanctions against the aggressor, and it laid the groundwork for armament reduction. It was followed by a change in government in Great Britain, and the new administration rejected it.

10 LOCAL MEASURES ARE VOTED IN HOUSE

ing of the Senate District committee tomorrow.

Hostilities between Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District committee and Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, subsided at yesterday's session. Obstructionist tactics were resorted to only once by the Texan, who demanded a quorum call in opposing a bill for incorporation of credit unions in the District. With minor amendments the bill was passed over Mr. Blanton's opposition.

After experiencing two fruitless District days, when objections by Representative Blanton blocked all local legislation, Mrs. Norton expressed pleasure with the outcome of yesterday's session.

"I did not want to leave the District until those bills were passed," she said. "Some of them mean jobs to a lot of people."

She referred specifically to two measures clearing the way for industrial development of the Buzzards Point area, which now go to the White House. One will allow the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad to construct a track extension from the navy yard to Buzzards Point, and the other authorizes closing of streets for the Potomac Electric Power Co. to build its new $5,000,000 plant.

The credit union bill, which will permit incorporated groups of people to lend money to each other at low rates of interest, passed the House only after a hard fight.

The bill was amended to prohibit use of "United States" or "Federal" in any of the incorporated credit unions, after Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, had charged this might lead to misrepresentation.

Four bills for the closing of streets and alleys, one giving the Commissioners general authority to close such thoroughfares and another clearing the way for construction of the Keene School in the Northeast section, were among those approved. Another measure for the modernization of descent and distribution of property laws was passed. Representative Stafford (Republican), Wisconsin, blocked passage of the Copeland bill, closing District barber shops one day in seven.

The three Senate bills passed provide a stringent firearms law for the District; propose a District Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole, and provide for the regulation of the plumbing trade in the District. The firearms bill has passed the House, but the Senate voted additional amendments.

Covering virtually the entire local license field, the Gibson bill passed yesterday removes inequities in the present antiquated law. Fees levied are imposed for the three-fold purpose of regulation, compensation for use of public space and cost of required inspections.

Noted Geologist Drowns in Peru.

Lima, Peru, June 13 (A.P.).—A brief wireless message from Iquitos today said Prof. J. W. Gregory, Scottish geologist, had been drowned near the Megantone Falls, in northern Peru. Prof. Gregory came to Peru early this year at the head of a scientific expedition to study earth movements and volcanic epochs in the Andes.

National University's Graduates Told Democracy Is Facing Its Supreme Test

Justice Charles S. Hatfield Is Speaker at 63d Convocation.

Declaring that democracy in America today is facing its greatest challenge, Justice Charles S. Hatfield, of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, in an address at National University's sixty-third convocation in Memorial Continental Hall last night, contended that the trouble with the Federal, State and local governments of this Nation is the failure of their leaders to measure up to the standards fixed by the university.

The university, Justice Hatfield said, prepares its graduates to think and to reason and to apply the doctrine of controlled doubt to the alleged facts which are presented to them. Facts, he continued, are "passing things" so that "the fact of today is the fallacy of tomrorow, just as the wisdom of yesterday may be recognised as the folly of today."

The commencement at which Justice Hatfield spoke marked the conferring of 365 degrees in course upon National University's Law School and School of Economics and Government graduates.

Some of the National Capital's leading jurists were drawn to the commencement by the award of the honorary degree of doctor of laws to Justice Oscar R. Luhring, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court; Justice D. Lawrence Groner, of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, and Crandal Mackey, former Commonwealth's attorney for Arlington County, Va.

Dr. Hayden Johnson, chancellor of the university, presided, and Leo Speer delivered the valedictory. The Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton pronounced the invocation and the benediction.

Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District Supreme Court, awarded the following prizes after the conferring of degrees: University gold medal for the highest average in the post-graduate class to Ugo Carusi, and honorable mention to Merritt L. Smith; MacArthur gold medal for the highest average in the senior class to Marie C. McCathran, and honorable mention to Clarence B. Weise; Hurst gold medal for highest average in the junior class to Laurie Burns, and honorable mention to Lorena H. Galbraith; Eugene Carusi gold medal for highest average in the freshman class to J. Louise Roe and honorable mention to Robert D. Bransford; Siddons gold medal for the best final examination in constitutional law to Ugo J. A. Carusi, and hohorable mention to Donald S. Nace and Willa J. Reed; Emma Deal gold medal for the best final examination in equity jurisprudence to Paul Meininger, and honorable mention to William B. Greenwood; Callaghan & Co., prize for best examination in corporations to Leo Speer and Clarence B. Weise, tying contenders; F. H. Thomas Law Book Co., prize for best examination on real property to John R. Galbraith, and honorable mention to Peter Solem; John Byrne & Co. prize for best examination in bills and notes to Robert D. Brandsford, and honorable mention to Conrad Christel:

Faculty prize for the best debater to Stanley E. Otto; national executive council of Sigma Nu Phi Fraternity gold scholarship key to Lee Speer as Joseph H. Choate Chapter member having highest scholastic standing; Beta Chapter, Phi Beta Gamma Legal Fraternity, gold scholarship key to its member receiving bachelor of laws degree who had the highest scholastic standing for entire three years to Ralph P. Harris; Omicron Chapter, Kappa Beta Pi Legal Sorority, gold scholarship key to woman student receiving bachelor of laws degree who has highest scholastic standing during three years of study to Marie C. McCathran; Mu Chapter, Sigma Delta Kappa Fraternity, scholarship key to its graduating member who, attending National University for three years, has made the highest scholastic average to Charles Everett Lancaster, and the Charles Francis Carusi prize for scholarship to the degree candidate who, carrying full work, has attained the highest scholastic standing during the year in the School of Economics and Government to Louis Charles Smith, with honorable mention to Nathan Novick and Albert Franklin Sisson.

Dr. Hayden Johnson, chancellor of the university, conferred the degrees. Helen Burton Kelleher received the doctor of civil law degree; Mauro Baradi received the doctor of juridical science degree; Taghi Paknahad Koshneviss, chancellor of the Persian Legation, was made doctor of juridical science; James R. Armstrong received the degree of doctor of law and government; Willard Carleton Ayers, Rees Hagy Barkalow, A. Lane Cricher, Lewis Deschler, Robert Edward Manning, Mabel Benson Sakis and Laurence Elmer Voorhees received the degree of doctor of jurisprudence.

Dr. Johnson next conferred degrees upon Law School and School of Economics and Government candidates as they were presented by Dean Charles Pergler and Dean Bernard Mayo, respectively, of the two schools. The degrees were conferred as follows:

House Page Announces For Presidency in 1972

(United Press.)

"I'll be past 50 then," he said in an address here, "and shall go on record as one candidate who gave people plenty of time to look up his record and to discover and bring to light all the secrets of his public and private life."

Without a great deal of investigation, the young page found that "Congressmen are always talking and I think one would just naturally die if he found himself unable to talk."

"Pete" didn't say whether he was a Republican or a Democrat, but he said Representative Fiorello LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, is a "wonderful fellow," and Speaker John N. Garner "the grandest man in Congress."

Man Who Hit Alfonso Gets Six-Month Term

Marseilles, France, June 13 (A.P.).—Gonzales Macanares, who struck former King Alfonso of Spain several times in the face upon Alfonso's arrival here from Malta on May 13, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment today.

Fine Voted for Mailing Unordered Merchandise

(Associated Press.)

A penalty for sending unsolicited merchandise through the mails was approved yesterday by the Senate. It passed and sent to the House a measure, sponsored by Senator Hayden (Democrat), Arizona, providing that any merchandise for sale unsolicited by the addressee would be turned back by the Postoffice Department.

300 Are Expected At Clubs' Session

American Business Men Open Convention at Willard Today.

Approximately 300 members of the American Business Clubs from all sections of the United States are expected to be present for the first session today of their tenth annual convention at the Willard Hotel.

The convention will open with an invocation by the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, followed by the address of welcome by Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, Commissioner, District of Columbia. A sight-seeing trip will take place during the afternoon and a banquet at the Racquet Club tonight. A social program for the wives of the delegates, including a reception this afternoon, also has been planned.

Public Hearing Is Held On Highway Changes

The District Commissioners yesterday held a public hearing on nine proposed changes in the highway plan. The highway department was unopposed in its proposal that Thirty-eighth street between Military road and Livingston street, not be opened at this time because of the large expense.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission and District Surveyor M. C. Hazen disagreed as to the advisability of opening Patterson street, between Broad Branch road and Thirty-third street. The planning body objected on the ground that it would cut through its property, while Mr. Hazen held the street necessary.

A valuable miniature of Dolly Madison has just been included in the Bicentennial Historical Loan Exhibition in the Corcoran Gallery of Art. It has been loaned by Col. Mervyn Chandos Buckey, to whom it has come in the direct line from the original owner. The miniature was originally presented to Dolly Madison's sister, Mrs. George Steptoe Washington (Lucy Payne) and in whose home, Harewood, Jefferson County, Va., the beautiful Dolly Payne became the bride of James Madison.

From Lucy Payne Washington the miniature descended to the wife of her son, Mrs. Samuel Walter Washington. On her death, in 1882, it was inherited by Louisa Clemson Buckey, Mrs. Edmund Randolph Williams, of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Fielding Lewis Marshall, of Richmond and Washington, were among the visitors at the Bicentennial Historical Loan Exhibition at the Corcoran Gallery of Art last week. Mrs. Williams is the wife of a direct descendant of Edmund Randolph whose portrait appears in the collection. Mrs. Marshall is the wife of a direct descendant of Chief Justice Marshall, whose portrait by Robert M. Sully also is included in the exhibition. Mrs. William Channing Johnson, the wife of a great-great-nephew of Gov. Thomas Johnson, whose poprtrait by Charles Willson Peale is included in the exhibition, also was a visitor.

Another visitor to the galleries recently was Ida Bowie McMahon, descendant of Samuel Chase, whose portrait by John Wesley Jarvis was loaned to the collection by Mrs. Arthur D. Addison. Another portrait of Samuel Chase was loaned to the exhibition by the Maryland Historical Society.

Mrs. Thomas Kirby will entertain the Washington Alumnae Chapter of Delta Gamma at her home, 109 Grafton street, Chevy Chase, Md., this evening at 8 o'clock.

Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Gerald Flood, Mrs. Clarence Elder, Mrs. George Clark and Miss Dorothy Walters.

Crawford-Hatmaker Nuptials Announced.

Dr. and Mrs. G. G. Crawford announce the marriage of their daughter, Ellen Clarke, to Mr. Paul Castleton Hatmaker, of Washington, which took place at Open House, the home of the bride's parents in Strasburg, Va., Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. M. Crim, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, who used the Episcopal ceremony, before an improvised altar, the lower part of which was covered with cedar, and on which were the regular altar appointments of a brass cross, brass vases containing mountain laurel, and two candelabra, each bearing lighted cathedral tapers.

The bride was escorted and was given in marriage by her father. She was charmingly attired in an ivory crepe dinner gown with duchess lace eton jacket and moire slippers to match.

Another sister, Miss Jean Crawford, was bridesmaid.

Her frock was green organdy embroidered in pink roses; she wore pink crepe slippers and a corsage of pink sweet peas.

An interesting feature of the accessories of the bride and her sisters is that each carried a handkerchief which had been carried by an ancestor at her marriage. The one carried by the bride was of duchesse lace and was carried by her great-great-grandmother. The maid of honor carried one of rose point lace which had been carried by her great-grandmother. The one carried by the bride's maid was of Brussels lace and had been carried by her mother.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Eleanor Bafthis, at the piano, and Dr. Leon Slavon, of Mount Jackson, with the violin, gave a musical program. The best man was Mr. H. Herbert Hughes, of this city.

After the wedding supper, the bride and bridegroom left by motor for a trip through northern New York and Canada. They also will visit the former's parents in West Falls, N. Y. The bride's traveling suit was a tan silk knit jacket suit. After July 1, Mr. and Mrs. Hatmaker will be at home in Washington.

Mrs. Hatmaker is the eldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Crawford. On her maternal side she is the great-great-granddaughter of the late Judge John Preston White, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, and a great-granddaughter of the late Mrs. Ellen Clarke, of Hanover County, Va.

Became Bride on Saturday

Underwood & Underwood.

To Graduate Soon

Miss Mary T. McMillen (top), daughter of Capt. F. E. McMillen, U. S. N., and Miss Alice Severson, daughter of Lieut. Col. C. F. Severson, U. S. A., to whom A. B. degrees are to be awarded June 19 and 20 by Mt. Holyoke.

Mr. Hatmaker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Joy Hatmaker, of West Falls, N. Y. He is a mining engineer, employed in the Bureau of Mines in Washington.

The out-of-town guests were the bridegroom's mother and his sister, Mrs. Carl T. Danner, of Boston; Miss Mary Brestel, of Harrisburg, Pa.; Miss Gene Smith, of Roanoke, Va.; Mr. Harold Flannagan and Mr. Stanley Watkins, of Baltimore; Miss Emily Blake, of Laurel, Md.; Mr. Harry Rider, Mr. Alfred A. Green and Mr. Francis Lee Adams, of Washington, and Capt. M. C. Ramey, of V. M. I., Lexington, Va.

Dr. and Mrs. F. P. Barrier announce the marriage of their niece, Miss Mollie Herbert Brooks, of Alexandria, Va., to Mrs. Rafael Emil Ferrer, of Porto Rico, on Saturday, April 23, at Winchester, Va.

Beet and Beet Greens Are Delicious.

PORK CHOPS for tomorrow with tomato and onion to make of them a dish fit to set before the lord of any household, much less before a king! And speaking of "taking things home from the shop," one makes bold to hope that never in any circumstances does a shopper permit the vegetable boy to take off the beet tops and drop them in the waste basket under the counter. I've seen it done myself, times without number, while standing by awaiting my turn at service, and inwardly I have cringed at the thought that an extra two bunches of beets purchased by that housewife, tops and all, would give her one dinner with hot, buttered beets, as a green vegetable, one of beet greens and a third with pickled beets of a beet salad. All this because we are planning here in the column for tomorrow's repast a vegetable of beet greens, for which we suggest three or four bunches of beets to be treated in the aforementioned fashion. And, in addition, did you know that chopped beets in an aspic made of the water they are cooked in makes a tasty and attractive summer salad? And with or without the addition of chopped hard-cooked eggs, bits of watercress or carrots, or pineapple or celery?

WEDNESDAY'S DINNER.

Pork Chops with Tomato and Onion
Mashed Potatoes
Beet Greens
Grape Juice Salad
Orange Pineapple Sponge
Iced Tea or Coffee

Pork Chops With Tomato and Onion.

6 pork chops
3 onions, sliced
2 cupfuls canned tomatoes
1 teaspoonful salt
Dash of pepper

Brown chops slightly on both sides in a hot pan. Remove to a flat baking dish. Cover each chop with the sliced onions, salt and pepper and pour the tomato over all. Bake in a moderate oven until chops and onions are tender (about one hour). If the mixture dries, add a little boiling water.

Grape Juice Salad.

1½ cupfuls hot grape juice
1½ tablespoonfuls gelatin
¼ cupful orange juice
1-3 cupful sugar

Soak gelatin in orange juice five minutes. Add hot grape juice and sugar. Stir until dissolved and pour in mold to become firm. Serve on crisp lettuce with mayonnaise.

Orange Pineapple Sponge.

1 tablespoonful gelatin
¼ cup cold water
½ cupful boiling water
½ cupful crushed pineapple
½ cupful orange juice
1 tablespoonful lemon juice
4 tablespoonfuls sugar
Few grains of salt
2 egg whites

Soak the gelatin in cold water for five minutes and dissolve in the boiling water. Add the sugar, fruit and juices. When it begins to set, beat with a rotary beater until fluffy. Beat the egg whites with the salt until stiff. Fold into the gelatin mixture. Pour into moistened individual molds or one large mold. Serve with a vanilla sauce, using the beaten egg yolks, to which one cupful of scalded milk and one tablespoonful of sugar have been added. Cook in a double boiler for a minute or two. Cool and flavor with one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and a grating of nutmeg.

Refreshing Summer Beverages.

Summer days are thirsty days! And there are so many occasions when a sparkling, icy drink is most refreshing and welcome. It may be after a tiresome shopping day in town, a brisk game of tennis, or, perhaps, when friends "drop in" of a hot afternoon or evening. It really doesn't matter, for in our new folder you will find many suggestions for easily prepared, appropriate beverages—all equally delicious.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

NEW YORK, June 13.—What to wear to Mr. Somebody-or-Other's Roof?

That's quite a problem, 'case you want to know it. Oh, maybe not now, but when July and August come around—as they jus' nacherlly have a way of doing, the only idea in anybody's mind seems to be to get up and out—the higher the cooler, the outer the better.

And you can't wear just anything to Mr. Somebody's roof. Why, there are roofs and roofs, to begin with—some more dress-demanding than others. So when some one says "Let's dine somewhere on a roof," better ask them to be a wee wit more specific—so that you will not appear at the Merchants and Tailors roof dressed in a Paris gown—nor at the St. Biltcascareg in a linen sports frock.

Now, as to linen sports frocks. Yes, you can wear 'em to some Mr. Somebody's roof—and successfully. You must be a bit elaborate as to accessories, to be sure—and if I were you I would make that a pretty 'spensive and elegant dress, too, even though it were a cotton sports frock. Said cotton sports frock is nothing to be sniffed at, these days, either!

Some other roofs, which have a more formal atmosphere, call for either very nicely done afternoon frocks, sometimes called Sunday night frocks these days—worn with hats, or the type of summer night dinner frocks, slightly more decollette, which is worn without a hat.

But, do you know something? I don't like to see frocks in wispy chiffons, or bouffant organdies, or eyelet embroidered cottons—on town roofs! They are simply and absolutely more appropriate to resort evenings, that is all—and wearing them on city roofs might possibly infer that Miladi is not so well equipped with gowns.

* * * *

Black jet on yellow is a striking combination, one that only a very, very blonde lady or a very, very brunette one should attempt to wear. Worth dares to embroider the sleeves of an informal but very elegant evening gown in cream yellow colored, heavy silk, with black jet beads and black silk. 'N' then sends me a "croquis" to make a sketch from for you—like it? The gown, not the sketch!

* * * *

You can make a darling garter girdle for yourself, no more than three inches wide, and, oh, so very comfortable and light and washable! And then you can make yourself one of those summer girdles that have a zipper slide fastener, which is what we call a zipper opening in Europe—and have a bit more support than the little three-inch wide one gives, but as much coolness and comfort. 'Nif you think you can't make a girdle yourself, then take the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make both of these to your dressmaker, and have her make 'em—or—even to the corset department of one of the big stores. Oh, I almost forgot—you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post first, for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to go about all this making business!

* * * *

The very discreetly beaded yellow slippers and evening bag could be worn with the outfit sketched above—or not, just as you please. Or with a black chiffon? I sketched them—the bag and shoe, I mean.

Au Revoir.

PERFECT DEFENSE.

WHEN the opposing sides hold enough in honor-tricks and distributional values to force their opponents too high in the bidding, often it is a question of realizing to the full the defensive values of the cards they hold that determines the issue of the "battle." It is not, generally speaking, enough to hold the cards to defeat the contract, unless it is routine matter of taking in Aces and Kings. It is frequently a matter of timing the trick-taking so that, after winning a trick, you will not be compelled to make a lead which will redound to the advantage of your opponents.

The hand shown below was played in a recent Duplicate game in Madison, Wisconsin. It was sent to me by Mrs. R. W. Bardwell, who sat North. Mrs. Bardwell and her partner in the South were the only players who found the means to defeat a contract of five spades, to which their opponents had gone over their five heart declaration.

South—Dealer.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♡ | Dbl.(1) | 2♡(2) | 4♠(3) |
| Pass(4) | Pass | 5♡(5) | Pass |
| Pass | 5♠(6) | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

1—West's Double is not a particularly strong one, but the bidding would probably have followed the same course, in any event.

2—North's holding of 4 tricks in support of her partner's heart bid is enough for one Raise, which she should give at once. It is possible, although improbable, that it will shut out a bid from East.

3—East cheerfully responds to his partner's Takeout Double by bidding four spades. West is clearly marked with honor strength in the minor suits to have a sound Double.

4—South can not bid further, so passes to hear from his partner.

5—North fears that East can make four spades if South can not double. The five heart bid is a defensive overbid.

6—The opposing bid would indicate that East is probably very short in hearts, if, indeed, he holds any. The five spade contract is a fair gamble.

The King of hearts was opened, and East trumped, drew the adverse trumps and then followed with the lead of a small diamond from his own hand. South also played low and a small diamond was played from Dummy, which North won and returned a heart. This was trumped in the closed hand, and a second round of diamonds was won with the Ace and a diamond returned and trumped in the closed hand. With the hope that either South held the Club Ace or that North held not more than three diamonds, East now led a club from his own hand toward the ten-ace holding in Dummy. This gave Mrs. Bardwell the opportunity for more correct, although apparent, play.

To win this trick with the Ace would be to present the Declarer with his contract, as the return of a heart would permit him to discard his losing club and ruff in the Dummy, and the return of a club would obviously be equally fatal. She, however, refused to win the first club lead, and East's hope of scoring the game vanished. He returned to his own hand by ruffing Dummy's last diamond to lead a club toward the King in Dummy, but North's tenace holding, carefully retained until it could be used effectually, frustrated his plan of play.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Defensive Contract is not only a routine matter of cashing Aces and Kings, but often requires the subtle utilization of the entire defensive power of the holding in a suit. Many hands are made at Contract which could have been defeated by correct defensive measures.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

South—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

What Today Means

"GEMINI."

IF June 14 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:20 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:25 p. m.

June 14 is a day full of splendid possibilities, but the real prizes of the day will be out of the reach of slow-coaches and the less daring and enterprising people. Influences do not favor the spiritual side of life, but they are good for manual labor and open-air sports.

Children born on this June 14 will have abilities in several different directions. They will not lack enterprise and will be able to quickly apply and develop the suggestions of others. Their moral nature will be firm, and their resistance to influences strong. Both vanity and self-esteem are indicated.

Born on June 14, you are a very smug and circumspect-minded individual, endowed by heaven with considerable self-confidence. You clog your life with custom and habit; your feet are shackled with the chains of tradition and your eyes are shut to new ideas. Your outlook upon life is rather narrow, and many things are discolored through the dye of prejudice. You are very pro or very anti in your likes and dislikes. You are satisfied to look on your own country and everything connected with it as the best ever. Next to your country you are most satisfied with yourself.

There is no question about your capabilities, and you can sail through fair weather and storm without calling upon others for help. You are industrious, resourceful and gritty. Much could be gained, however, if you could learn to learn from others. In order to achieve that success to which you are entitled you should learn to conquer environment and not allow it to master you. As you grow older and know more of mankind you will expect less of it and be ready, as Dr. Johnson said—"to call a man a good man upon easier terms than you were formerly."

As a marriage partner you will be—whether man or woman—inclined to chafe at anything which brings in its train a change of habit.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

Plant your hydrangea in a lawn tub and set the container in a sunny place in your garden, unless your garden is near the ocean, in which case you may plant the hydrangea in the border. By the sea hydrangeas are hardy, while inland they are not reliably so. When in a tub they can be lifted into the house in winter. They will winter well in a light basement, where they will require water only twice a week. In the warm weather they require water daily, and in extreme weather twice a day. Do not prune your plant; merely remove the dead flowers. Plant in rich soil.

Please suggest a remedy for rust, which is even now attacking my hardy phloxes. MRS. CHARLES C. C.

Better spray your plants with bordeaux mixture. Make at least three applications about ten days apart.

Please tell me how to propagate a purple loosestrife. ALICE P. K.

Does candytuft require much sun and a moderately rich soil? That is the environment in which I am attempting to grow this plant. I might add that it is not doing very well. ELSA F. W.

Iberis, or candytuft, requires a great deal of water. It also requires sun and a fairly rich soil.

Please tell me when to prune a honeysuckle and a forsythia. MRS. KEARNEY S.

Prune honeysuckle severely in the spring; then, in order to keep it in bounds, prune it once a month. Prune forsythia at this time.

Will you kindly tell me if there is any way to coax a lilac to bloom? I have three in my yard and have watched every spring for twelve years for flowers, but in vain. One is on the northeast corner of my lot. The other two are small bushes in a southern location. MRS. C. D.

Root-pruning is one way to induce a lilac to bloom. Another is to dig a circular trench 3 feet from the main stems of the bush. Make the trench 6 inches wide and 6 inches deep. Fill this space with well-rotted manure to within 1 inch of the top. The remaining inch can be filled with good soil. This is one of the modern methods of inducing a lilac to bloom and is easier for the amateur than root-pruning. If you have made the mistake of pruning your lilacs each spring soon after growth starts that is likely the reason they have never flowered.

Please tell me when to prune rosebushes. Also, can I use chicken manure for flower food? If I can, when shall I apply it? MRS. J. F.

Climbing roses are pruned when they have finished flowering. Other varieties in the early spring. Unless I know the type of roses you have, I can not answer you more definitely. A little chicken manure may be used about the garden, but remember that it is very strong and is apt to burn the roots if it comes in direct contact with them. Use it in the early spring.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

CARE OF THE NEARSIGHTED EYE.

D. A. wants to know if there is any way to improve nearsightedness except by wearing glasses.

The question cannot be answered in the affirmative unless we add enough qualifications to practically change the answer.

Wearing glasses that meet the requirements so far overshadows all other measures of relief that these other measures are regarded as of small importance. Glasses that meet the requirements are those which cause the sight image to fall just where it should in the eye, and make it possible to see clearly without eye-strain and fatigue.

The text books used in the grades of the public schools compare the eye with the well-known camera. Since most school children know how a camera is built and how it works, and some of them have taken the things to pieces and know its anatomy, the comparison is a good one. It is an easy way of explaining the eyeball, which grade pupils are not supposed to pull apart. However, the comparison holds only up to a certain point.

When one wishes to sharpen the image on the camera plate he turns a screw which moves the plate forward or backward until it finds just the position in which the image is clearest. In the case of the human eye there is no screw to move the retina curtain forward or backward. To sharpen a blurred image the shape of the lens is changed by means of certain small muscles, located within the eyeball and not on its outside, called the ciliary muscles. To relieve these small muscles from fatiguing and often impossible tasks we make use of glass lenses of one kind or another.

The theory of exercise of the eyes, by rolling them in various directions, is based on the notion that the large muscles which rotate the eyeball squeeze it into unusual shapes. Really, these six muscles pull the eyes in different directions; they are not placed so as to squeeze the ball, nor are they attached in locations which would make for pulling it into different shapes. They are there to aim the line of vision toward the object looked at, and they do that with the smallest possible amount of pull or squeeze on the ball itself.

The nearsighted eye is one that is too long from front to back. The lens focuses the image in front of the retina instead of on it. Why this is can not be satisfactorily explained. Some say that the bony eye socket is too deep and narrow, but that is a poor explanation. Nature builds the body lavishly always and everywhere, and the eye socket is so much too large for the eyeball that the amount of orbital fat required for packing is considerable.

We say that nearsightedness, or long eyeball, is congenital, or that it is a peculiarity of the program of growth in a given case. But to say that is to state a fact or two, rather than to explain. There is a variety of nearsightedness which tends to be progressive, to get worse, until vision is lost. This fact proves that something somewhere can slowly change the shape of the eyeball in the other direction.

All that we can say now is that the person with nearsighted eyes should wear the kind of lenses that are needed to focus the image on his retina; that these lenses should be set before his eyes in the correct position; that they should be worn steadily. Of some secondary importance is regard for eye hygiene. This means using the right kind of illumination for eye work, holding the work properly, and refraining from eye-straining work. If one wishes to spend some time daily in rolling the eyes around, I know of no harm in doing so.

DANDRUFF.

H. L. writes:

1. What causes dandruff?
2. How can one get rid of it?

REPLY.

1. A snake sheds its skin in one piece. Man commonly sheds in minute pieces. Sometimes he sheds in flakes in the hair region. That is called dandruff. The tendency to shed in flakes may be due to neglect of the skin in that region. Possibly some cases are bacterial in origin. Since the microbes, called fungi, are being found to be the cause of so many skin troubles, we may find that they cause some cases of dandruff.

2. Wash the scalp with soap and water very frequently. A man should do this daily. After drying, it may be advisable to use a little grease. Spend considerable time brushing the hair vigorously. This treatment will cure the cases that are due to neglect. Those of a more severe kind will require the services of a physician.

ACNE OF THE FACE.

J. O. B. writes: Is acne of the face contagious? The person who has this touches face with hands, but it does not seem to spread.

REPLY.

It is not. It is true that the difference between acne and pimples is that the former is due to infection of pimples by staphylococci. But nobody needs to "catch" staphylococci from anybody. Every man has his own supply of this germ. His skin is rich in them and his pockets are full of them.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

COLOR counts in any number of beauty phases. In the hair, for instance, those glorious highlights are indeed an attraction worth cultivating; in dress, make-up, and in one's surroundings color can do worlds and wonders, enhancing, intensifying and glorifying a personality.

But where teeth are concerned, Nature is not to be outdone. She intended us humans to have sparkling, healthy, white teeth and dear Mother Nature certainly knows best. No dental creations of gold, silver, platinum or any other precious metals have served to outshine the healthy, natural span of white cared-for teeth.

Some time ago some source had it that teeth would soon go in for color. Frankly, I don't remember whether the prediction originated in Paris or Chicago (I took so little stock in it) and I can't recall whether the forecast had said teeth matching milady's locks or her eyes or her costume. I've waited these many months for evidence of this prediction, but have yet to see it. Fads may come and fads may go, but here is one that I predict women will not adopt—not, at least, so long as they retain their present sensible attitude toward health and beauty.

Give the Teeth the Care They Need.

For us, the rest of the world, however, let us give the teeth the care they need. They should have the regular twice or thrice daily brushings and massage your gums if they need this additional attention. Use your mouth wash, too, and dental tape every once in a while to make sure there are no tiny particles of food lodged in the tiny spaces between the teeth (very often the toothbrush can not get at these), and tiny food particles can do a lot of damage in the way of fermentation and tooth decay.

Dentist and Diet Important.

Of course, you should visit your dentist twice a year for a thorough check-up, and you should be especially careful of your diet all the time. My intensive research work in dental hygiene and my work with dentists have convinced me how important proper diet is toward preservation of healthy teeth and firm gums. Fresh fruits and fruit juices, vegetables, roughage, milk and coarse foods that provide teeth and gums with the necessary exercise build better teeth and bodies. And progressive dentists today often trace tooth decay not so much to neglect of the oral cavity itself as to the general condition of the system and to diet. Remember that it is smart to be healthy and it is smart to smile a sparkling white span on the world.

If you wish a general, well-balanced diet compiled with the aid of an expert dietitian, send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Here's a charming two-tone model.

Its clever lines are slenderizing for the stout woman and make the short woman appear much taller.

Style No. 2746 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust. Size 16 requires 2⅛ yards of 39-inch material with 1 yard of 35-inch contrasting.

You can also carry it out in one material as navy, black or beige silk.

For summer wear, choose tub silks, linen, batiste prints or woolly type cottons. Price of pattern, 15 cents.

You can save $10 in patterns, materials, &c., by sending 10 cents for this book to Fashion Department, The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York City.

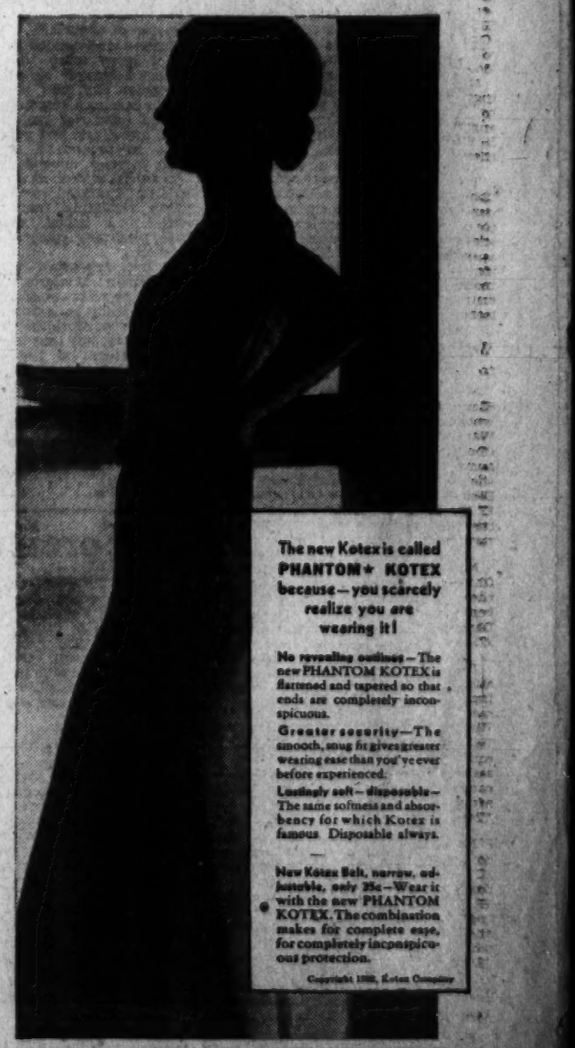
She's Up in the Air Again

Those she loves . . . are first to suffer when monthly pains shatter her nerves. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would ease that awful agony.

Strikingly, Radically New Phantom★Kotex

SANITARY NAPKIN (U. S. Pat. No. 1,857,854)

Most important improvement in sanitary protection since the invention of Kotex itself in 1920.



AT LAST! A radically new design in sanitary protection. You are scarcely aware that you have it on. Made, of course, by Kotex—originators of the modern sanitary napkin.

It is called PHANTOM ★ KOTEX. Why? Because the ends are so flattened and tapered that it leaves no outlines even under the closest-fitting of gowns. Not the slightest bulk suggested even under the filmiest of summer silks. And—for those who require extra protection — Super-Phantom Kotex is ideal. There's extra protective surface but the ends are so skilfully flattened as to be completely inconspicuous.

Kotex features retained

The special Kotex features you have always appreciated are retained, of course. It is soft after hours of use; wonderfully absorbent; treated to deodorize; can be worn, with equal protection, on either side; disposable, easily.

Insist upon getting genuine Kotex, when you buy it already wrapped. Each tapered end of the new pad is stamped "Kotex" now—so you can't get inferior substitutes.

Kotex prices are today the lowest in Kotex history. This new improvement comes to you at no increase in price. All dealers have the new PHANTOM KOTEX.

HOW SHALL I TELL MY DAUGHTER?

Many a mother wonders. Now you simply hand your daughter the little booklet entitled, "Marjorie May's Twelfth Birthday." For free copy, address Mary Pauline Callender, Room 2140, 180 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The new Kotex is called PHANTOM★ KOTEX because—you scarcely realize you are wearing it!

No revealing outlines—The new PHANTOM KOTEX is flattened and tapered so that ends are completely inconspicuous.

Lastingly soft—disposable—The same softness and absorbency for which Kotex is famous. Disposable always.

New Kotex Belt, narrow, adjustable, only 25c—Wear it with the new PHANTOM KOTEX. The combination makes for complete ease, for completely inconspicuous protection.

METHODISTS CLOSE FREDERICK SESSION

Appointments Announced and Reports Are Heard at Annual Conference.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., June 13.—The 148th annual meeting of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, embracing Maryland, District of Columbia and parts of Virginia and West Virginia, adjourned tonight after sessions lasting one week. Adoption of reports and resolutions occupied today's executive session followed by the announcement of appointments tonight.

Dr. Davis, Baltimore, president of the Lord's Day Alliance, made an address on the liberal Sunday laws recently enacted in Baltimore. He said approximately 290,000 citizens remained away from the polls. He attributed the victory of liberalization to this. He was commended on his address by Bishop Hughes.

The appointments, read by the Bishop, were as follows:

Washington District, Benjamin W. Weeks, district superintendent: Anacostia, T. S. Davis; Brightwood, S. C. Coale; Brookland, R. W. Edrds; Bruen, to be supplied; Washington Calvary, Vernon N. # THE THEATER

NATIONAL

"THE GHOST TRAIN." S. E. Cochran and Clifford Brooke present the National Theater Players in a comedy melodrama, in three acts, by Arnold Ridley. Staged by Mr. Brooke; scenery by Charles Squires. At the National Theater.

In reviving the eerie specimen of chills-and-fever drama, the National Theater Players go back well beyond the modern school of rapid transit melodrama, of which "Subway Express" might be cited as the outstanding example, and provide two hours of good old-fashioned, hair-raising, pulse-quickening blood-and-thunder, packed with suspense and not entirely untinged by suggestions of the supernatural—all of which prove to be strictly and surprisingly mundane in origin.

The entire action of the play takes place in the bleak waiting room of the station at Clear Vale Junction, Me., between the hours of 10:30 p. m. and midnight, on the twentieth anniversary of a horrible train wreck in which six passengers were killed outright, two died of their injuries and many were hurt. About this ghastly accident has sprung up a local legend that the station is haunted and that at certain times a phantom train, driven by the shade of its original engineer, starts a weird run from no known point of origin to a similarly nebulous terminus. Those who look upon this ghostly apparition are foredoomed to die.

This is the cheerful outlook that confronts a little band of travelers marooned at the way station for the night—a bride and groom, a married couple on the point of divorce, a crotchety, but bibulous, spinster and a quaint little Englishman, as irritating as a hair shirt. No sooner has the station agent told them the creepy story of why they had better not remain there through the night, and started on his way home, than he is found dead in partial fulfillment of the tale he has just unfolded. From that point on, almost to the fall of the final curtain, developments are shrouded in mystery—and suspense that was not always quite so tense as it should have been last night. As rapidly recurrent as the uncanny fulfillments of all the harrowing prophesies of the timorous station agent are comedy devices that creak a little to those whose tastes are gaited to a later era in the theater. However, laughter that frequently became frankly hysterical thickly punctuated the progress of the three acts last night.

The solution of all this piling up of mystifying complications, of course, may not be disclosed without jeopardizing the pleasurable excitement of future audiences.

Practically the entire roster of Mr. Cochran's repertoire company is enlisted in this penultimate of the season's endeavors. Donald Woods and Katherine Givney are the quarreling husband and wife; Freddie Sherman and Ona Munson, the newlyweds; Mrs. Hibbard, the carping Miss Bourne; Raymond Bramley the station agent and Clifford Brooke the prankish little Britisher, whose last-act metamorphosis makes him the hero of the party. Well along in the second act, Leona Powers, Forrest Orr and Burke Clarke make their entrances for purposes that are veiledly sinister and, in the last, Karl Nielsen bobs up as a helpful aid to retributive justice.

Easier familiarity with the trip-hammer lines and a considerably quicker tempo will make future performance even more zestful than last evening's worthy rendering of a slightly outmoded play.

GLEN ECHO PARK

All roads lead to Glen Echo Park these June days.

The magnificent swimming pool was one of the big attractions on Saturday. The roller coaster, airplane swings, whip and everything that moved hummed with activity.

Saturday evening one of the high lights was the dancing in the ballroom to the syncopated tunes of Mac-Williams and his talented musicians. Sunday the attendance figures were swelled by many who found the free-admission resort ideal for their outing. "Glen Echo" and "Cabin John" cars were busy, while many others visited the park by auto via Conduit road. As usual, plenty of free parking space was available.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

FRANK BUCK, author of the sensational book of adventure, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," will not be present in person when the screen version of his exciting narrative is presented at RKO-Keith's in celebration, with the RKO-Mayfair Theater in New York, of a joint premiere beginning Friday, June 24.

It was the original intention to have Mr. Buck appear in person in conjunction with the showing of his film on Fifteenth street, but RKO's home-office executives have since canceled the author's personal engagement.

This, however, should have little effect upon the popularity of what is described as the first genuinely authentic wild animal picture ever made of the ferocious denizens of the wildest jungles as they really live.

This Frank Buck occupies a unique position among both animal men and picture makers. For years he has been bringing animals back to American zoos and circuses from the far corners of the earth—everything from elephants to leopards; from lizards to toucans.

After the publication of his book, the RKO-Van Buren Expedition to the Federated Malay States was arranged, with Buck as director, Clyde E. Elliott, cameraman, and a considerable assisting technical and mechanical staff, to film the story of that book amid authentic surroundings and with the wild animals themselves as the stars of the story.

The picture is declared by those who have been privileged to preview it to contain more actual drama than anything of its kind that has ever gone before it into the motion picture theaters of this or any other country.

Thousands of people have spent thousands of dollars—it might be expressed in millions quite as truly—to apprehend the vicarious thrills of the prize ring. But they haven't seen anything in the way of real fights!

In Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" there is a grudge scrap between a 30-foot python and a tiger that nothing in the world could match for thrills. There is also a battle between a crocodile and a tiger and a finish bout between a crocodile and a python!

Primitive? Yes. A little terrorizing? Yes. But life, every bit of it, exactly as it is lived out there in the wild places where the only law is the survival of the fittest. Not one inch of the picture is faked.

Or am I too gullible?

Off to a flying start, despite some inclemency in the weather and mercury a little too near the bottom of the tube, the Arlington Roof tonight will inaugurate a series of "Celebrity Nights."

It is pointed out that "Celebrity Night" may fall something short of its intended significance because no night passes that a few celebrities are not be found among the patrons of this loftiest of the Capital's dine-and-dance resorts. But tonight, and subsequent Tuesdays, will be a little different in that the stars of the Washington theaters have been especially invited to be present at the dinner and supper dancing atop the centrally located Hotel Arlington. Here, then, is an opportunity to rub elbows and step on the toes of the famous—or let them step on yours, as the case may be!

Bert Milan and his orchestra, of course, will provide the hot rhythms to neutralize any chilly winds that may be blowing. And if old Jupiter Pluye keeps on being obstreperous, it will still be a gay night, celebrated in the ballroom instead of in the high open.

That young lady who sat behind us at the Earle Saturday afternoon evidently came from Chicago. So did we, almost, as far as that's concerned.

June Provines, writing in the Chicago Daily News, tells of the two girls discussing Katharine Cornell and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," according to that inveterate raconteur, Ray Henderson. A third girl who had been listening inquired:

"Is that play so good?"

"Oh," oh'd the third girl. "Do you mean 'Peaches' Browning?"

Then there is the one from the Los Angeles paper which remarks that "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" is thick with English accents—as it most assuredly is.

It seems that a certain Hollywood producer came out into the lobby shaking his head.

"What's the matter?" asked a friend. "Don't you like the show?"

"Strouble? Bad seat?"

"They should be bad seats!" growled the producer. "Vunderful seats. Second row."

"Well, then, what is it?"

"You're asking me?" groaned the groaner. "I'm asking you: Who should understand such a dialect?"

And speaking of Hollywood "gags," there is a more amusing one than the Will Rogers-Wallace Beery "Ay tank ay go home" bit of deception in connection with the Hollywood premiere of "Grand Hotel."

Confident that Greta Garbo wouldn't attend the opening, impresario Sid Grauman, who stages all of the big hurrahs on the West Coast, hired all the Garbo doubles he could find to double for her that night.

It was his idea, being the world's greatest practical joker, to startle and confuse the crowds by having a "Greta Garbo" drive up to the theater every five minutes throughout the preshow festivities.

Shortly before time for the "permeer" to get under way, an anonymous phone call informed Grauman that Garbo expected to be among those present. Frantically, Sid paid off all the doubles and told them to go home and stay out of sight.

As usual, of course, Garbo stayed home and out of sight, too!

Since Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, chief of police, estimates that 1,000 of the bonus marchers already have left for home, I presume we may momentarily expect the announcement that "The Lullaby of the Leaves" has been adopted as the department's theme song!

succed Davila settled the first major crisis in the new Socialist government. Davila resigned as head of the government last night partly because of opposition to his moderate policies and partly because of a rumored plot to restore former President Carlos Ibanez to power.

The finance minister said the junta could guarantee that the present nitrate work would be maintained, but said the Cosach organization would be obliged to hand over necessary letters of credit for foreign exchange.

"All negotiations concerning the possible reorganization or liquidation of Cosach must be established in Chile in accord with the policy of the government and interests of the country," he added.

"The aim of the government is to restore the nitrate industry to its former preponderant market within the bounds of justice. But this work involves analytical considerations which can not be carried out during moments of anguish."

Merino recommended to the ministry of labor today that an office "against sabotage" be established to investigate any part capital might have in causing a suspension of building and industrial projects. It also would investigate and punish any attempt to produce a strike which would increase unemployment.

An official statement declaring that the army was loyal to the junta, its officers refraining from mixing in politics, was issued, apparently to abate persistent rumors of military discontent.

Mendoza, Argentina, June 13 (A.P.).—Juan Esteban Montero, who was deposed as president of Chile nine days ago, said today he considered himself still the constitutional president of that country, but that he had no desire to return, as the office came without his wishing.

He came here after the coup that overthrew his regime.

The new ministry also will issue a decree tomorrow imposing a graduated tax, starting at 1½ per cent, on all persons who have jobs. The same decree will cut the dole for unemployed and war veterans, and will eliminate all exemptions from the turnover tax.

The German Broadcasting Corporation was informed that at 6:30 o'clock each evening an official spokesman will go on the air to inform the public of the aims and intentions of the new government.

Nomination of Patton Is Reported Favorably

(Associated Press.)

The Senate judiciary committee yesterday reported favorably on the nomination of Frank C. Patton to be United States attorney for the Western District of North Carolina.

Mr. Patton was nominated to take the place for which Charles A. Jonas was first named by President Hoover. The Senate refused several weeks ago to confirm Mr. Jonas, who had served a year under a recess appointment.

MRS. L. C. WALKER IS DEAD

Wife of Postoffice Inspector Was Active In Sports.

Mrs. Ethel Dunbar Walker, wife of Lloyd C. Walker, a postoffice inspector, died yesterday after a prolonged illness.

She was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and active in the First Congregational Church. Mrs. Walker was born in Sharon, Conn. Prior to her illness she was active in sports.

Mrs. Walker is survived by her husband and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan L. Dunbar. The funeral will be held at the residence at 1404 Twelfth street northwest, at 11 a. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in the Glenwood Cemetery.

ALEXANDRIA TO VOTE FOR COUNCIL TODAY

Little Interest Displayed as No Candidate Is Opposed; Officials Named.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

The polls will open this morning at 4:41 o'clock for voting on the Democratic nominees for city council, all of the nominees having no opposition, and consequently there is little interest displayed by the voters. The polls close at 7:35.

J. Edward Shinn, who was nominated inthe primary has withdrawn, owing to the ruling from the United States Civil Service Commission that a Federal employe can not hold office as a city councilman. The city Democratic committee has therefore named Marshall L. King as the nominee from the First Ward.

The other nominees by wards are as follows: Second, Judge Louis C. Barley; Third, Michael T. Dwyer; Fourth, Nicholas T. Lawler; Fifth, Henry O'Bannon Cooper, and Sixth, E. C. Davison.

Voting places and officials are:

First—The Armory, east side of Royal street, between Prince and Duke streets; Scott Grim, John P. Strauss and Louis Poss, judges; Bernard J. Pegan and Charles Sherwood, clerks.

Second—110 North Royal street; J. Frank Creighton, D. E. Robey and John Duncan, judges; W. Carlin Creighton and J. Frank Gaines, clerks.

Third—Odd Fellows' Hall, 218 North Columbus street; E. J. Fleming, H. H. Martin and J. R. Kretchmer, judges; Charles Corbett and M. P. Frasca, clerks.

Fourth—Friendship Engine House, west side of 100 block, South Alfred street; George H. Railing, Vernon Dyson and C. Raymond Gaines, judges; Howard Fannon and Richard Finks, clerks.

Maj. W. E. R. Covell, U. S. Army, executive officer at Fort Humphreys, will be the speaker at the Flag Day meeting of the Rotary Club, today at 12:30 o'clock in the George Mason Hotel.

---

The Alexandria Chapter of the American War Mothers, Mrs. Norman L. Williamson, president, will dedicate three memorail trees tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock, in memory of the Alexandria boys who paid the supreme sacrifice in the World War. The trees are located on the Mount Vernon boulevard, at the north entrance to Alexandria. The committee in charge of the services is composed of Mrs. L. L. Spofford, State president of the organization and a member of the local branch; Mrs. T. Clifton Howard and Mrs. James S. Douglas.

Glen Echo Heights Man Seized on Rum Charge

Richard V. Frizzell, 67 years old, of Glen Echo Heights, Md., was arrested yesterday by Montgomery County police on charges of sale and possession of intoxicating liquor. He later was released on bond for his appearance in Police Court at Rockville, Md.

Led by Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley and Sergt. Leroy Rodgers, the squad of policemen composed of Corp. Oscar Gaither and Policeman Windsor C. Poole and Theodore Vollter, found 108 bottles of alleged beer, a 12-gallon crock of mash and a number of empty bottles, they told Justice of the Peace Fred Van Court. Frizzell is said to be a former District Government employe.

Civic Federation Adopts New Resolution on Bill Taxing Commuters.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Reaffirming its objection to the passage of an income tax law for the District which would tax Maryland residents employed or occupied in the District, the Montgomery County Civic Federation last night, at a special meeting in the Bethesda School, adopted a new resolution.

J. Bond Smith, chairman of the legislation and legal action committee, was empowered to send copies of the resolution to the Senate District committee and to the senators from Maryland, the Bureau of Efficiency and the District Commissioners.

The resolution points out that the Senate committee had suggested two amendments to the bill, which would: 1, exempt all Federal employes not residents of the District, and 2, would authorize a reciprocal credit to citizens of Maryland on account of certain taxes on intangible property paid to the State of Maryland.

Approval of Amendments.

It declares that the federation approves of the amendments insofar as these amendments indicate a desire and intention to exempt Maryland residents from the operations of the measure, but that the federation expresses its disapproval, even as amended because it would be discriminatory and of doubtful legality because discrimination is made between classes of nonresidents; namely, Federal employes and, other nonresidents who are engaged in trade or business or practice of their professions in the District; that it is further objectionable because it is a tax laid without regard to benefits received, in that it is proposed to tax Maryland citizens at the same rate as District residents while ignoring that probably more than one-half of the income of the average resident of Montgomery County is spent in the District which benefits the District residents as well as the Government while at the same time continuing to pay all Maryland taxes.

Additional Income Tax.

The resolution further states that the Mapes bill is of doubtful constitutionality because it represents an additional income tax imposed by the Federal Government for which there is no specific constitutional authority. No opportunity has been afforded Maryland to consider the necessity for or to enact any legislation which may be deemed necessary to make applicable to Maryland residents the provision for a reciprocal credit.

It then reaffirms in toto the federation's objection to that part of section 10 which refers to taxation of Maryland residents and approved the statement already filed by the legislation and legal action committee with the Senate District committee, J. Bond Smith, chairman of this committee, had appeared before the committee to oppose the tax.

Contract for the collection of refuse for the year beginning July 1 will be awarded at the Saturday meeting.

Bladensburg Fund Adds $50.

A donation of $50 to the Bladensburg rescue squad ambulance fund was authorized last night by the ladies' auxiliary of the Bladensburg Fire Department, which also decided to give $50 to the fire department. The committee also plans to entertain members of the county auxiliary on July 1 at the firehouse in Bladensburg.

Unconventionalities

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—As delegates poured into Chicago to attend the Republican national convention, hotels began to take on real convention air.

At the Congress Hotel, headquarters of the Republican national committee, furniture was moved out of the lobby and off the mezzanine floor to make room for the visitors.

The first convention buttons made their appearance today. Oval-shaped white and red celluloids inscribed "we are going wet" were carried by pretty girls by the basketful into hotel lobbies.

Delegates were importuned to "wear one," and if they refused they got one anyway.

The largest button was found on the delegates from Wisconsin. It had a relief map of the State stamped on a white background with the State's name above it. "Here comes Wisconsin," some one shouted at a delegate half a block down the street.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General in charge of prohibition, is crossing no bridges on that subject unless she comes to one on the floor of the convention. She's a delegate at large from California.

"I'm following my regular policy," she told reporters. "I haven't said anything about prohibition since I left office and I don't intend to do it now."

Mrs. Ogden L. Mills came to "hear" the show.

"I've been sitting around in halls and listening," she laughed. "That's what I came for and that's what I like."

Somebody asked about prohibition, just after the Treasury Secretary, her husband, talked it over with the press, and Mrs. Mills gave back, "Wouldn't I be sensible to talk about that?"

Convention plans provide a box for the Cabinet ladies present or expected—Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Mrs. Walter Brown, Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde and Mrs. William N. Doak.

---

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms today made a vigorous but genial protest against being called "Mrs. McCormick."

"Stop calling me 'Mrs. McCormick,'" she called amid many greetings.

Then she explained that even when her husband, the former member of the House from New Mexico, introduced her as "My wife, Mrs. McCormick," she objected. They were married several months ago.

Asked if her husband would campaign for the Senate, she said: "Over my dead body."

Hollywood, June 13 (U.P.).—The billion-dollar motion picture industry faces bankruptcy within 90 days unless drastic measures are introduced to save it, Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of R-K-O and the National Broadcasting Co., warned fellow producers tonight. The first company that "sacrifices its pride" and applies for receivership will find every other major studio following, he declared.

Audubon, Minn., June 13 (A.P.).—Two men who robbed the Audubon State Bank of between $800 and $1,000 late today kidnaped the cashier, C. A. Netland, and drove away in his automobile.

---

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—Auburn Automobile Co. officials reported today that more than 700 additional employes had been put to work at Auburn, Ind., the last two days. All departments are operating on full six-day-a-week schedules.

---

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—Representatives of Illinois coal operators and union miners, in conference today in an effort to agree on a wage scale to replace the one which expired last March, adjourned this meeting after a lengthy session in which they failed to arrive at an agreement. They will resume deliberations Wednesday.

---

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—John W. Willys, Ambassador to Poland who resigned recently to return to active duty with the automobile company he founded 25 years ago, returned today on the Europa. He expressed confidence better business conditions lie ahead, but said "we must all get down to fundamentals and work our way out." He said he believed that the eighteenth amendment definitely has failed in its purpose and that "if we do not get rid of it it will have a decidedly detrimental effect on the future of the country."

San Francisco, June 13 (A.P.).—Patrick J. M. Moore, 63, former Federal judge at Zamboanga, Philippine Islands, died at a hospital here today after an illness of nearly a month. Taken ill in the Philippines, he was hurried here for treatment. He was a delegate to the Republican national convention in 1924. Two sons survive.

Dennis E. Murphy Dead at 60 Years

Father of Detective Sergeant Was Express Company Agent.

Dennis E. Murphy, 60 years old, died yesterday at his home, 1609 A street southeast, after an illness of a week. He was father of Detective Sergt. Dennis J. Murphy, of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Mr. Murphy was born in Ireland and came to America at the age of 10. He was formerly connected with the American Railway Express Company as special agent.

Besides Sergt. Murphy, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah Murphy; two other sons, Joseph James and Stephen, and three daughters, Miss Ellen Murphy, Miss Margaret Murphy and Mrs. Mary Spicer.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock from Holy Comforter Church and interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

NATS' SLUMP AGAINST BROWNS PUZZLES JOHNSON

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE heavyweight championship of the world which will be dusted off and exposed to the imagination and pocketbooks of the fight-fan public once more one week hence has taken on no added luster by reason of the tenancies of the last two champs, Max Schmeling and Gene Tunney.

The very manner in which Tunney and Schmeling came into their titles left much to be desired as far as the popular conception of a world heavyweight champion is concerned. For it is a matter of record that Tunney's replacement of Dempsey marked the first time in history that the championship passed on a decision; and Schmeling's victory over Sharkey the first time that the title has passed on a foul.

Despite Tunney's two defeats of Dempsey, there is noticeable hesitation in ranking the former marine in the same breath with such champions as Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Johnson, Willard and Dempsey in the hey-days.

The Dempsey that Tunney beat in 1926 and again in 1927 was a far cry from the Dempsey that beat Willard to a pulp in 1919 in that boiling cauldron at Toledo; the Dempsey who knocked out Bill Brennan in 12 rounds in 1920; who stopped Carpentier in four rounds in 1921; and Firpo in two rounds in 1923.

It was seven years after Dempsey's title conquest that Tunney met a doddering old man at the Sesquicentennial Exposition in Philadelphia and came into the championship on points only.

Tunney did beat Dempsey again, the following year in Chicago, but this time his victory was even more indecisive, benefiting as he did from Referee Barry's "long count" of 14.

Following the Dempsey battles, Tunney did virtually nothing to cement any claim to championship immortality. As champion he fought only one other opponent, hand-picked Tom Heeney, in the greatest financial flop ever staged by Tex Rickard. He knocked Heeney out, in 12 rounds, it is true, but a Tunney thumb that entered Heeney's eye in one of the early rounds helped him to do it.

Neither has the title occupancy of Schmeling served to capture the imagination of the fight public which has become inured to such conquering heroes as Dempsey and those champions who preceded him.

Schmeling earned a large degree of skepticism when he came into the title in a sitting posture as a result of Sharkey's low punch two years ago. Up until that point in the fight he had been taking an artistic beating from the American and looked no more the champion than does Caspar Milquetoast.

To earn his shot at the title, Schmeling beat only the second flight of American heavyweights, but in his only match since inheriting the crown on a foul, he did manage to restore a bit of the glory that belongs to the throne by stopping Stribling in fourteen rounds.

The Stribling fight, however, proved among other things that the erstwhile Georgia Schoolboy was ripe for a knockout by the first good man who crossed him. Years of touring on exhibitions through the canebrakes had "burned out" the young Georgian at a comparatively early age, and, never noted as a puncher, he could do no damage to the German Iron Man. So Schmeling beat him by wearing him down.

◆

Sharkey is the far more colorful figure of the two principals who will meet for the title next Monday. Virtually all the prefight ballyhoo has had to do with the former gob's fulminations against the German. There has been little of interest in Schmeling's training campaign. Among his other deficiencies he lacks that crowd-pulling "color" that even the erratic Sharkey boasts.

Schmeling Fit For Title Defense

Acquires Polish Not Possesed in Last Sharkey Bout.

Calm and Cocksure German Handles Mates Easily.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

KINGSTON, N. Y., June 13 (A.P.). Max Schmeling, who a week hence must prove his right to the heavyweight championship of the world, engaged today in a workout that stamped him fit for his 15-round duel with Jack Sharkey June 21.

Memories of the punch-absorbing German who battled the Boston sailor two years ago to win on a fortunate foul in the fourth round, and the steady, sturdy, improved warrior who plowed through young Bill Stribling in fifteen rounds last summer, faded at the sight of the Schmeling of today.

Handles Partners With Ease.

He handled three sparring partners—Lou Barba, Chester Matan and Dick Onken—with amazing ease, outboxing them through five rounds, belting them with short left hooks to the head, thumping their ribs with chugging rights. There was a calmness and cock-sureness about every move he made that set him far apart from the Schmeling of the past.

He still does not believe in punishing his assistants unnecessarily, working more as a student using a gymnasium for a laboratory. He failed to knock any one out, though he staggered all three men several times.

Boxes With Finesse of Champion.

He practiced blows today, with the finesse and polish of a champion, blows that he had not heard of when his title chance came to him two years ago.

Schmeling no longer blocks left hooks with his chin, standing helplessly, with his arms folded across his body, when an opponent looses his attack. Instead he carries both hands high, picking the leather off in the air, pulling away from punches, while he slips inside to whang short, jolting smashes to the body.

Today, while the rain dripped down outside and a former heavyweight champion—Jim Corbett—sat with the small group that watched the champion work indoors Schmeling displayed a right upper-cut to the head and body that nearly jolted the heads off the sparring partners. He appeared in splendid physical condition at 190 pounds, but is so fine, however, that he will do no more boxing for two days, resting until Thursday.

Corbett, although refusing to pick a winner, a custom in the past that always seemed to doom his candidate to failure, spoke almost in awe of the German's new-found ability.

"He has improved amazingly since his bout with Stribling," he said. "He's punching better with both hands, and shorter, and his boxing is a revelation. If Sharkey expects to beat this fellow, he had better do it very early or it will just be too bad for the American. Schmeling will get better the longer it goes."

Sharkey Floors Negro In Training Battle

Orangesburg, N. Y., June 13 (U.P.). Jack Sharkey boxed five rounds indoors today as the chief item of training week.

He worked at top speed against Lou Flowers, tall Harlem Negro, and scored at close quarters. Sharkey floored Charley Anderson, veteran Negro heavyweight from Chicago, in their one-rund meeting.

G. U. Places Ban On Scholarships

Aid for Athletes Discontinued Voluntarily at Hilltop.

In compliance with the recent ruling of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Georgetown University will, starting next September, discontinue athletic scholarships. In so doing, Georgetown voluntarily puts the rule into effect one year in advance of the deadline set by the association.

The association, in its ruling places a penalty of dismissal from its list of approved schools on any member institution that fails by September, 1933, to eliminate scholarships awarded only on the basis of athletic ability.

Eliminations of athletic scholarships at Georgetown will cut off regular replacement of graduating varsity players by more or less experienced material from high and prep schools, and will probably result in an intensive culling of the general student body for varsity players in years to come.

PLADNER GAINS DECISION.

Toronto, Ont., June 13 (A.P.).—Emile (Spider) Pladner of France, outpointed Willie Davies of Charlerol, Pa., in a 10-round bout here tonight.

Superior puncning ability, backed by an airtight defense, gave the Frenchman the unanimous decision of the judges and referee.

DALE ALEXANDER. ROY JOHNSON.

TIGERS GIVE RED SOX 2 FOR WEBB

Alexander, Johnson Traded to Boston for Outfielder.

BOSTON, June 13 (A.P.).—Making their third important trade in a week, the Boston Red Sox today sent Earl Webb, hard-hitting outfielder, to Detroit in exchange for Dale Alexander, the big first baseman, and Outfielder Roy Johnson. President Bob Quinn said no cash was involved in the transaction.

The deal, President Quinn said, will give the last-place Red Sox additional batting strength in the infield, for Alexander batted for .325 last season, and a polished outfielder in Johnson, whose 1931 batting mark was .275.

Webb led the American League in making doubles last year when he piled up a batting average of .333, the best Red Sox performance. He came to the club in 1930 and was a clumsy fielder during that year. He improved considerably last season, but this year he slumped badly, batting but .283 in 50 games and fielding for .959.

C. U. Seniors Nose Out Alumni at Baseball

The Catholic University Alumni baseball team went down to a 9-8 defeat at the hands of the Cardinal seniors yesterday afternoon at the C. U. Stadium. John Sweeney and Frank Kleha hurled for the winners. Jack Clarke, '23, instructor in biology at the university, was the losing pitcher.

Rough Water Hampers Workouts of Oarsmen

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 13 (A.P.).—Rough water and a steady drizzle today hampered the six college navies now on the course in their final training drive for the intercollegiate regatta, a week away.

Navy and Syracuse had long workouts despite the bad weather. The Midshipmen covered most of the 4-mile course.

Cornell and Pennsylvania, newly arrived, took easy paddles southward. California's stalwarts rowed 4 miles upstream, while Columbia's oarsmen confined their work to the vicinity of quarters.

Massachusetts Tech was due late today and Washington tomorrow morning, to complete the regatta lineup.

ROTHROCK FARMED.

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—John Rothrock, veteran outfielder obtained by the White Sox from Boston this season, was released to the Toronto Club of the International League on option today.

Rothrock came to the White Sox in the big trade that sent Smead Jolley, Johnny Watwood, Benny Tate and $7,500 for Catcher Charley Berry and himself.

BATTER STOPS PITCHER.

Danville, Ill., June 13 (A.P.).—Ab Wright, an outfielder for the Danville Three-I Club, angered because he thought the pitcher was trying to "dust me off," attacked Roger Wolff, Springfield hurler, last night at the conclusion of the game. Wolff was knocked down before clubmates restrained Wright from further violence.

Gomez Gains 12th Victory For Yanks

Saved by Fielding in Ninth as Cleveland Bows, 8 to 7.

2 Homers by Dickey; Ruth Hits 21st in Slugging Bee.

CLEVELAND, June 13 (A.P.).—Sensational fielding by Ben Chapman, Lyn Lary and Tony Lazzeri in the ninth inning saved Lefty Gomez today and enabled the star southpaw to hang up his twelfth victory as the Yankees nosed out the Indians, 8 to 7.

Trailing by two runs going into the last frame, the Indians scored once as Luke Sewell walked and Glenn Myatt, pinch hitting for Hildebrand, tripled against the fence, but the tying run was left on third base when Lazzeri made a great play on Porter's grounder to close the game.

Chapman cut off another run in the same inning when he made a sparkling, running catch of Kamm's drive in left field, and Lary tossed out Cissell on a hard chance. Babe Ruth clouted his twenty-first home run of the year in the fifth with one on. But it was Bill Dickey's big bat that eventually spelled victory. Dickey hit two four-baggers, also a single, drove across three runs and himself scored three.

Jack Russell, making his first start for Cleveland since he was obtained from Boston, went the first six innings and was pounded hard. Monte Pearson succeeded him to start the seventh and tossed the game away by issuing three passes before Hudlin was rushed to the rescue.

Property of Schmeling Attached by Carnera

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—An order attaching the property of Max Schmeling, heavyweight boxing champion, as the result of a suit brought by Primo Carnera, giant Italian boxer, was filed in county clerk's office today.

Carnera began the attachment proceedings on the eve of Schmeling's contest with Jack Sharkey, although he started the suit months ago. Carnera asks $100,000 damages for Schmeling's alleged failure to box him under a contract last September.

Schmeling's answer asserted the State boxing commission released him from the contract because of an injured finger.

Moody and Vines Pair For Wimbledon Tennis

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, national women's tennis champion, and Ellsworth Vines, holder of the men's title, will play together for the first time when they team for the mixed doubles in the English championships starting at Wimbledon, June 20.

Frank Shields, of the United States Davis Cup team, will pair with P. D. B. Spence, of South Africa, in the men's doubles, while Wilmer Allison will play with his Davis Cup teammate, John Van Ryn. Van Ryn teamed with George Lott to win the Wimbledon doubles crown last year.

Allison, Van Ryn and Shields will sail tomorrow night for England, where they will join Vines.

Hines Is Easy Winner In Mid-Dixie Tennis

Spartanburg, S. C., June 13 (A.P.).—Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., defending singles champion, had easy going today in the mid-Dixie tennis tournament, defeating Joe Grier, of Charlotte, N. C., 6—2, 6—1, in the opening round.

Lefty Bryan, of Chattanooga, Tenn., another seeded player, drew a bye for the first round as did Harvey Harris, of Raleigh, N. C., a University of North Carolina star.

Only men's singles matches were run off today, rain delaying the start of the tournament an hour or so and disrupting the play a little after mid-afternoon. Play in the singles and other divisions will be in full blast tomorrow.

Jack Mooney, of Atlanta, runner up to Hines last year was unable to enter the present tournament defaulted to John Groce, of Lyman. Major Gordon, of Fort Benning, Ga., defaulted to Harley Shuford, of Hickory, N. C.

Few of the favorites had difficulty in the opening matches, Burtz Boulwar, Tallahassee, Fla., defeated Cecil Sullivan, Laurens, S. C., 6—1, 6—3; Fred Andrews, Birmingham, Ala., downed Raven McDavid, Greenville, S. C., 6—0, 6—0, and Luke Abels, High Point, N. C., ousted Arthur Littlejohn, Spartanburg, 6—1, 6—1.

GIANTS FARM PARMALEE.

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—The New York Giants cut their roster to the new 23-player limit today by releasing Leroy Parmalee, right-handed pitcher, on option to the Indianapolis Club of the American Association.

GROVE HOLDS TIGERS TO 4 HITS

Foxx Hits 23d Homer as Box Ace Wins 11th Straight, 8-1.

DETROIT, Mich., June 13 (A.P.).—Robert Moses Grove, of the Philadelphia Athletics, won his eleventh consecutive game today, beating Detroit, 8 to 1, and allowing only four scattered hits.

Isadore Goldstein, young Tiger right-hander, gave Grove a fair pitching battle for seven innings, although at that point the Athletics were leading, 2 to 0, both runs being made by Max Bishop after he had doubled in the third and fifth innings.

In the eighth inning Goldstein's wildness and two Tiger errors gave the Athletcis four unearned runs.

The only Tiger run came in the eighth, when Rhiel, batting for Goldstein, doubled, advanced on Cramer's fumble and scored after the catch of a long fly by Davis.

Tommy Bridges replaced Goldstein in the ninth, with Jimmy Foxx the first man up. With the count at 3 and 2, Foxx slammed his twenty-third home run of the season over the left-field fence. It was one of the longest hits ever seen at Navin Field. Bridges yielded the Athletics another unearned run before retiring the side.

In the last inning Grove brought his total strikeouts of the day to seven by fanning Stone, Gehringer and Walker, in order.

Six Hilltop Athletes Seek Olympic Berths

Six Georgetown University track and field athletes, hoping to win Olympic berths, will depart next Sunday from New York for the I. C. 4-A championships on the coast. They are Al Kelly, Paul Connelly and Walter Kowalonek, sprinters; Wilmer Bradley, hurdler; Vic Burke, quartermiler, and Jim Kelly, half-miler. Coach Jimmy Mulligan will join them when the train stops here en route.

Chisox Rally to Win, 7 to 6, Over Red Sox

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—After being held scoreless for five innings today, the Chicago White Sox caught up with Eddie Durham and batted out a 7-to-6 victory over Boston.

The Sox nicked Durham for 2 in the sixth, and batted him out of the box in the seventh during a 5-run uprising. Wilcy Moore also was routed during the rally.

RAIN DELAYS BOY-JUNIOR TENNIS

Quarter-finals Booked Today in Divisions of Title Tourney.

HALTED by rain yesterday, the annual District of Columbia junior and boys' tennis championships will continue today at Wardman Park Hotel's courts, with quarter-final round matches in both events the program for the day.

Play in the boys' division starts at 3:30 o'clock, with Ned McLean, top seeded player, meeting Stan Dennison, Cooke Playground champion. Bob Doyle, diminutive son of Louis I. Doyle, former District champion, and a nephew of Connie Doyle, greatest player ever developed in Washington, meets Jimmy Holloran. Doyle is seeded No. 2. Pete Allnutt, who reached the semifinals of the event last year, plays Maurice Rosenberg, of Central High School, while J. R. Harris meets M. C. Oliphant.

At 4:30 o'clock the eight remaining juniors take the courts. The feature match promises to be the clash between Happy Jacob, seeded No. 1, and John Yeomans, unseeded.

Jacob is the popular favorite to win the junior event this year, but will have to be at the peak of his game to do so. His victory over Gilbert Hunt in the Playground tournament late last year earned him his top seeded position. Yeomans is the brother of Eddie Yeomans, District champion, and a prototype of the senior title holder.

Kent Boyle, of Friends, seeded No. 4, plays Al Sappington. Boyle has defeated Happy Jacob this year and is looked upon as the reigning dark horse of the meet. Al Perkins, second seeded player, plays the steady Spencer Howell, of Western, and Tom Moorhead, seeded third, meets Henry Glassie, former Westerner.

It is planned to hold the finals Thursday, with the extra added attraction of exhibitions by Paul Heston, internationally known pro, and also the final round of the women's City of Washington singles tournament, between Reba Kirson and Mrs. Ruth B. Martinez.

Semifinals Today In Women's Tennis

Mrs. Martinez Will Battle Mrs. Stone on Columbia Court.

The finalists of the annual Women's Tennis League tournament will be named today when Mrs. Ruth Martinez, first seeded player, meets Mrs. Frances Stone and Frances Walker plays Mrs. Dorette Miller. The matches will be played at Columbia Country Club at 4 o'clock.

They are the four seeded players of the field of nearly 50 which started out in quest of the title last Monday a week. Today's semifinal matches have been postponed twice by rain. The finals probably will be played tomorrow.

Two quarter-final round doubles matches also are on today's program at 4 o'clock. Matches bring together the teams of Mrs. Margaret Graham and Mrs. Lee D. Butler against Marion Butler and Sara Moore and Mrs. Stone and Abigail Sard against Ruth Widmer and Florence Meier.

Weaver Bids Today for 10th Win

Loss of Twin Bill Is Stunning Setback to Johnson.

Thomas Joins Club Today; Schacht and Fischer in Tiff.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 13.—Having lost today's scheduled game yesterday, the Nationals spent a blue Monday here, repenting their baseball sins. As warned against in the "Good Book," they too often have done the things that should not be done and have left undone the things that should have been done, the result being that all were in the doldrums today. Manager Walter Johnson was particularly disappointed at the manner in which his young men have comported themselves on the diamond of late. "Just think," he said this morning, "we've lost four games to the last place Red Sox and six of seven games to the sixth place Browns, and it is those games alone that account for practically the entire margin which the Yankees hold over us.

"That double loss yesterday almost makes me want to go back to the farm where I can calmly commune with nature and have no worries. With the addition of Pitchers Alphonse Thomas and Dick Coffman, coupled with our one-sided victory over the Browns Saturday, the boys were all pepped up and I figured we were off on a winning streak. But we not only lost twice yesterday, but looked like novices while doing so.

Club Puzzles Johnson.

"I frankly confess," the Nats leader concluded, "I don't understand this team of mine. It looks like the world's best one day and the world's worst the next. But that's baseball, I guess, and we'll simply have to forget what's already happened and look to the future. We can still even this series by winning tomorrow and I certainly hope that we will do that."

Monte Weaver, easily the outstanding pitching rookie of the year, will draw the pitching assignment tomorrow. He will be seeking his tenth victory of the season. He will have his work cut out for him, for George Blaeholder, another of the home gang who always has been a puzzle to the Nats, will oppose him on the hill.

Shortstop Joe Cronin had an X-ray photograph taken of his ailing thumb this morning, and it showed that the chipped bone has not yet healed and that he will have to remain inactive for at least four or five more days. Needless to say, having Cronin out is quite a handicap to the club, for Johnny Kerr can not approach him either as a fielder or hitter.

One of the surprising features of this year's races is the small number of hitters in both leagues who top the .300 mark at this time. Of those who have been to bat 50 or more times, only 22 in the National League and 21 in the American are in this select class, and among those on the outside in the junior circuit are such players as Goslin, Schulte, Morgan, Cronin, Ruth, Chapman, West, Byrd, Judge, Haas, Appling and many others rated as potential .300 hitters.

As the "rabbit" is still in the ball and the short fences and stands in the parks have not been moved back, one wonders if the pitchers as a class are coming into their own again, or if the hitters are slipping.

Fischer and Schact Have Words.

Winner Near Track Mark In Feature

Bostwick Scores on His Blind Bowboy, 8-1, at Aqueduct.

WASHINGTON Park, Ill., June 13 (A.P.).—Adobe Post conquered five other eligibles for the $50,000 American Derby here today at Homewood course at 1 mile and 70 yards. Ridden by Jockey C. Landolt, the Chicago-owned horse ran the distance in 1:41, which was one-fifth off the track record.

Yonkel was second, a half length back of the victor, and Sunmelus finished third.

Sunmelus, from the stable of Willis Sharpe Kilmer, was piloted by Jockey Willie Elliot, who rode the lamented Phar Lap in most of his Australian and American victories. Adobe Post paid $8.50.

Blind Bowboy Wins at Belmont.

Aqueduct Race Track, June 13 (A. P.).—Despite typical blue Monday elements, a fairly large scattering of turf fans visited the local course today to see a well-balanced card, featured by the Old Rosebud claiming handicap.

George Herbert Bostwick, familiarly known as "Pete," surprised the talent by riding his own colt, Blind Bowboy, to a handy score over 1 mile and 70 yards, at the lucrative odds of 8 to 1. The former Bradleyite registered by a length over John McCambridge's Flaming, with the Brookmeade Stable's Helianthus, favorite, beaten three lengths for the place.

Bostwick rode faultlessly on this occasion, leading from start to finish and covering the eight panels in 1:38 flat.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DAUDET, $8.20, $4.18, $3.32; MR. JOE, $3.90, $2.90; HOUR ZEV, $14.06.

DAUDET broke quickly and, after racing on practically even terms with MR. JOE until well into the stretch, carried the latter out slightly in the final furlong and drew out in the last sixteenth. MR. JOE dashed into contention soon after the start and ran a game race. HOUR ZEV showed improvement and was well up most of the way. GLYNSON saved ground. PREWAR bore out at the stretch turn and carried PANIC BLUES with him. KEATON, GO FETCH and BEAU CAVALIER were off poorly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. Summerdale Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:52½. Off at 2:56½. Winner, b. f. (4), by Westy Hogan—Mabel G. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46 3-5, 1:12 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DORIS JEAN, $6.68, $3.10, $2.78; VOLTAGREEN, $2.84, $2.58; CHU CHU, $4.38.

DORIS JEAN followed VOLTAGREEN closely to the stretch, then forged to the front and was going away at the end. VOLTAGREEN had the most early speed, but tired as if short. CHU CHU made up ground gradually to best JESSIE CAREY in the final drive. JESSIE CAREY was close up on outside for five furlongs, then tired. SIS AGNES began slowly. VIBA showed a flash of early speed.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. Rose Hill Purse. For 2-year-old colts. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:30½. Winner, Dixiana Stable's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ESSEFF, $6.12, $3.78, $2.46; LEVAAL, $4.56, $2.70; POLYPHOTE, 12.74.

ESSEFF, showing fine early speed, got to the front approaching the stretch turn and, continuing fast, drew out to an easy win in the stretch. LEVAAL got to the front soon after the start and, although tiring near the finish, lasted to hold POLYPHOTE. The latter was well up after going an eighth. LE BRUYERE could not keep up in the early stages, but was going well at the end. HIGH COMPLEXION met with interference in the stretch. GOOD SCOUT was outrun all the way.

FOURTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:03. Winner, E. Haughton's b. g. (3), by Wrack—Sandwich. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750, second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46, 1:11 2-5, 1:38.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANDWRACK, $39.22, $13.16, $6.14; UNENCUMBERED, $4.58, $2.98; ZEVAR, $3.60.

SANDWRACK saved much ground in the early stages and, in close quarters in the stretch, was taken to the outside to finish fast under hard riding and best UNENCUMBERED. The latter raced close up from the start, headed ZEVAR in the stretch, but lost the race in the closing strides. ZEVAR made the early pace and held on fairly well. PLAY AROUND showed a good effort. HATTERAS stopped badly in the run home. BRUSH DOWN was far back all the way. PARTIES performed poorly.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,200; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:32. Off at 4:34. Winner, Kinbekamp and Morris' ch. g. (3), by Cheroker—Ruth S. Trained by C. E. Gross. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:22 4-5, 0:45 2-5, 1:10 2-5, 1:36 4-5, 1:41

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ADOBE POST, $8.52, $5.28, $3.28; YONKEL, $6.54, $4.50; SUN MELUS, $9.14.

ADOBE POST, never far from the pace, forced to the front after going half the distance and lasted to hold YONKEL. The latter was outrun to the far turn, then came fast on the inside, but was in close quarters in the final furlong and, taken to the outside of the winner, was finishing rapidly. SUN MELUS showed fine early speed and held on fairly well. BIG BEAU could not keep up with the early leaders. OUR FANCY bore out. EVERGOLD met with interference in the stretch. MAD PURSUIT was badly outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:02. Off at 5:04. Winner, Mr. Jones' ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GUNFIRE $15.12, $8.76, $7.34; TYPHOON, $16.50, $10.72; DRAHA, $9.28.

GUNFIRE followed the pace of IN HASTE closely to the stretch, then went to the front and easily showed the way to the finish. TYPHOON raced close up from start and held the others. DRAHA saved all possible ground and outgamed BLUE LAW. The latter moved up strongly after leaving the back stretch, but tired in the final drive. IN HASTE tired badly in the stretch. ORMONTIME was never dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:32½. Off at 5:35. Winner, E. B. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TONY JOE, $20.42, $8.62, $7.60; PINNIC, $7.22, $5.78; CULLODEN, $9.58.

TONY JOE, in close quarters during the back stretch run, got clear approaching the stretch turn and, wearing down PINNIC in the run home, was an easy winner. PINNIC showed most speed and held on fairly well. CULLODEN, in close quarters on the far turn, was going well at the end. BRASS MONKEY raced into contention on the outside after leaving the back stretch, but tired in the last furlong. ZIDA stopped badly.

MISS IRWIN LEADS TOURNEY

90 Card Tops Municipal Golfers

Capital Group Seeks Honors Today at Gibson Island.

MISS VIRGINIA IRWIN, winner of third prize in the consolation class in the competition for the Mrs. Frank R. Keefer Trophy recently on the Chevy Chase course, was the medalist in the qualification round played on the Rock Creek Park course yesterday for the women's park championship. She had a card of 43, 47—90, 1 stroke better than the 91 scored by Mrs. Mae Hill.

Miss Virginia Williams, defending champion and recent winner of the Star Cup Tournament when she was registered from the Congressional Club, was 4 strokes behind the medalist. Miss Irwin should have easily broken 90, for she had four 7s on her card, one of the 7s being due to 4 putts on the eighteenth green. Her card:

Out..... 4 5 3 7 3 5 4 7 5—43
In..... 7 3 4 4 6 6 4 7—47—90

Although 51 players were entered, more than half the number failed to appear owing to the rain, and only 22 submitted cards. Sixteens were paired in the championship flight and six, with two byes, went into the second flight, the pairings being as follows:

Miss Virginia Irwin, 90, vs. Mrs. Gordon Rule, 110; Mrs. J. T. Powell, 98, vs. Mrs. Elizabeth Caviness, 99; Mrs. Nick Altrock, 105, vs. Mrs. Fisher; Mrs. Wilda Martin, 99, vs. Mrs. Evelyn Glavis, 94; Miss Virginia Williams, 94, vs. Mrs. Florence Godfrey, 103; Mrs. David McPherson, 103, vs. Mrs. J. M. Jester, 96; Mrs. C. A. White, 101, vs. Mrs. Marjorie Groesbeck, 111; Miss Louise J. Goodall, 107, vs. Mrs. Mae Hill, 91.

Second flight—Mrs. Nina Owings, 120, vs. Mrs. C. E. Gibson, 120; bye vs. Mrs. Bradburry, 116; Mrs. H. J. Zindell, 117, vs. bye; Mrs. W. B. Rice, 120, vs. Mrs. G. W. Curtiss, 118.

Owing to inclement weather the tournament staged for yesterday on the course of the Army-Navy Club was postponed and will probably be played next Friday.

A group of Washington women golfers will leave this morning for Gibson Island to compete in the annual women's golf tournament. The party will include Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, the defending champion; Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, Mrs. J. F. Gross, Mrs. H. B. Shipley, Mrs. R. C. Mitchell, Miss Elizabeth Harris, and Miss Sue Gantt.

Tomorrow a team of fifteen women golfers will meet an all-Richmond team on the course of the Country Club of Virginia.

Mildred Strickland's 97 Leads at Gibson Island

Baltimore, Md., June 13.—Rain during the earlier part of the day held the qualifying field in the Gibson Island Golf Tournament down to ten women. More than 50 entries have been received. The remainder qualify tomorrow.

Mildred Strickland, Maryland Country Club, shot the best card today with 51, 46—97, while her mother, Mrs. F. H. Strickland, playing from Rodgers Forge Golf Club, was second best with 99. Miss Strickland nabbed a birdie 4 on the tenth. Women's par for the nine-hole course is 35.

SANDLOT DUST

ALTHOUGH the Dixie Pigs are leading the Industrial League by a wide margin, the number of postponed games remaining on the first-half schedule of the loop make it possible for Washington Terminal to win the bunting. Therefore this week, beginning today, postponed games will dominate the schedule.

Big Print Shop will play the Dixie Pigs today. Tomorrow Terminal engages the Constructioneers, following with a game with Gulf Refining the next day. The Dixies and Constructioneers tangle Friday in the final game listed. In case of rain the schedule will be set back one day.

Games are wanted by the Clover Insects. Call Manager Johnny Strong at Columbia 3429-M after 8 p. m. The team is especially anxious to hear from the lads it lost to last Sunday.

The Ballston A. C. will practice today at 5:30 p. m., in preparation for Sunday's game with St. Mary's Celtics. A meeting will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. Stitzer. All players are requested to attend.

Games for Saturday and Sunday are wanted by the Indianhead Seniors. Call Manager Len Groves at Atlantic 2193-J after 5 p. m.

Public Documents and Naval Communications will battle today at 5 o'clock on diamond No. 4. All players are requested to report promptly.

Members of the Corby Bakery Team and their friends will make merry on a moonlight trip down the river tonight on the steamer City of Washington. Prizes will be awarded the champion waltz and fox trot teams. Harry Slye is in charge of arrangements.

The I. B. O. B. Local No. 4 Baseball Team will battle People's Drug Store today on Diamond No. 1 at 5:15 o'clock. Dumford will pitch for the union team.

Honors Widely Distributed In School Sports Circles

1931-32 Saw Crowning of New Champions; Competition Keener Than Ever; Baseball Series Feature of Public Group.

THE curtain is closing down on a school year wherein athletic strife reached new peaks and the spoils of war were widely distributed. Eastern, Tech, Central and Western added cups to their schools' trophy board. Gonzaga, St. John's and Georgetown Prep held sway among the private schools.

Tech once more won the high school football championship, but disappointed thousands of local scholastic sports followers when it refused to meet Gonzaga, which last year had its best team in more than half a decade. The teams lost one game during the season, both to Swavely, and both by 13 points. Western finished strong to take the high school runnerup position. Gonzaga had no rivals. Leading grid figures were George Sachs and John Gormley, of Tech; Jackie Lynham and Jim Draper, of Western, and the Mills brothers and Joe Keegin, of Gonzaga.

Eastern Annexes Court Title.

Eastern won the high school basket ball series, nosing out Tech at the end in a stirring finish. It went on to win the Washington and Lee tournament. St. John's and Georgetown Prep were the class of the prep school teams. St. John's won The Post's Prep School tournament by beating the Garrett Park team on Mike Scanlon's great field goal with little left of the game. High school court figures were Barney Kane, of Eastern, and Everett Russell, of Tech. St. John's won the city championship, 130-pound section, in The Post's—A. A. U. tournament. Fred Scheele and Gabby Hartnett shone.

The public high schools stole the baseball show and produced some of their best ball in ten years. The series wound up in a three-way tie among Eastern, former holder; Western and Central. A play-off failed to break the deadlock. The pitching was perhaps the best ever offered in the series, with Bill Payne, of Western; Dick Lanahan, of Eastern, and Jack DeBettencourt, of Central, hurling in fine style.

Central staged a comeback in track, winning the high school meet after a win moratorium of eight years. It had one of the best teams in years, with fine sprinters in Naylor, Ditzler, Price and Smith, and field men in Gibbins, Kocsis and Fitzwater. Eastern, helped by the otherwise ineligible Bob Slye, greatest high school hurdler, won the "C" Club meet, the Maryland interscholastics and the Catholic University indoors. The prep schools once more neglected track.

Western had matters its own way in winning the tennis title of the high schools, but Georgetown Prep and Friends fought it out to the last doubles match to decide the prep school crown, with Georgetown Prep winning.

STAR GROUP SIGNED BY CITY CAB

Unlimited Team Has Lyon, Owen, Corkins for League Play.

DYED-IN-THE-WOOD sandlot fans will readily recall the powerful Gibraltar A. C. Team that carried off the city championship in that memorable 1921 series. The same fans will also recall that Al Meinberg piloted the team and his brother, George, was one of its stars. The 1932 season has marked the return of the Meinberg brothers to the diamond. Al is pilot of the City Cab aggregation in the Capital City League, and George is again a star player.

But George is just one among a veritable milky way of stars. City Cab has signed "Skip" Gartland, Bob Lyon, Lem Owen, Gayety Hamel, Freddy Noone and Frank Corkins, not to mention a half dozen others, for the Capital City League race.

In its first game it received an 11-8 setback at the hands of the pace-making Ciro's Village outfit. Late in the fray an argument halted play, and when the game was resumed two of the Cabmen's best players were holding down bench seats. Meinberg thinks his team would have won the game had these players not been ousted.

The second time out found the team pitted against the Dixie Pigs, but City Cab, rated just another set-up for Hugh Waldrop's gang, surprised by holding the suburbanites to a 7-2 score. Two weeks ago the Hackers struck their true stride and jolted Highway Department to the tune of 19-5.

Meinberg expects much of the team in its future games. Well he may, for the club has the players. If they can be welded into a well-knit, smooth-playing team, City Cab will be a tough nut for the others to crack.

Stolen Mitt Changed Fieber to Good Pitcher

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—But for some one's act of petit larceny a half dozen years ago Clarence "Bud" Fieber might not be a big leaguer today.

Fieber, the former San Francisco University southpaw, signed by the Chicago White Sox, says it was the theft of his first baseman's mitt when he was a grammar-school flash that decided him to try his skill as a pitcher.

That mitt was a special one of his own making, and he was virtually helpless on the initial sack without it.

But he has done well enough since deserting first base for the mound to become a contracted big leaguer at the age of 18. And he got credit for a victory in his second appearance as a Sox by virtue of a rousing ninth-inning rally.

Capital City League Schedule for Sunday

SWANN NINE TURNS OVER NEW LEAF

Capital City League Juniors Respected by Rivals.

GIVEN little consideration as a pennant contender at the outset of the race, Swann Service has surprised the fans by its sterling work in the junior division of the Capital City League, sponsored by The Post.

Manager Sam Huston predicted great things for his charges at the start of the campaign, but he made similar predictions before the 1931 race got under way, and they failed to materialize. This time, however, Sam has redeemed himself as a prognosticator, for his team is in the thick of the fight, deadlocked with Georgetown for second place with a record of three victories and one defeat.

Lost Game to Dixie Polish.

Only a step ahead, a half game to be exact, is V. M. Lawrence's Dixie Polish aggregation. The Servicemen lost a 15-5 decision to the Dixies when the team went to pieces midway in the fray. But that game has been charged to profit and loss, and now the boys are concentrating on the task that lies directly ahead of them, that of trimming Georgetown for the runner-up berth.

Two players who were named on the mythical all-high team this year are on the team. Schneider, short-stop, and Mullock, first baseman, are the lads. Together with Jake Fradin they are helping supply the punch lacking in the earlier stages of the campaign.

Graduates to Teach Neyland's Grid System

Knoxville, Tenn., June 13 (A.P.).—Six University of Tennessee football players who will be graduated this year have expressed their intention to enter the coaching profession and to spread the "Neyland system" of football.

Ty Disney, Middlesboro, Ky., half back, one of the six, has taken a course in coaching at the university. Others are Greenie Greenblatt, J. Alvin Setliffe, Laird Holt, Quinn Decker and Robert Lyons.

Gene McEver and "Shack" Allen, who played with the team last fall, already have signed coaching contracts, bringing the number of the 1931 eleven who expect to coach to eight.

Several proteges of Coach Bob Neyland already are making names for themselves as coaches, including Bobby Dodd and Buddy Hackman.

RETZLAFF VS. MARRINER.

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—Charley Retzlaff, Duluth, Minn., heavyweight, and Les Marriner, former University of Illinois athlete, will meet in a 10-round bout at White City June 28.

WINS THREE CUPS

MISS ELEANOR BOEHS,

3129 Twentieth street northeast, with the three trophies received upon her graduation from the Eastman School. Maintaining the highest average in all studies, she was presented the scholarship trophy. After receiving the tennis cup, she was also awarded the trophy for excellence in athletics.

TURNER ADDS TOUGH ONES TO CARD

Corrigan Faces Zarnos, Brunowicz Meets Kotsonaros.

TWO more matches were added yesterday to Thursday night's mat program at Griffith Stadium. The mastodons concerned are Frank Brunowicz and George Kotsonaros and Jim Corrigan and Jack Zarnos, both matches being confined to 30 minutes.

Brunowicz and Kotsonaros both stand high in Eastern wrestling. Brunowicz relies largely on stiff elbow blows and a wrist flip taught to him by Karl Pojello. Kotsonaros has a definite following. He holds two early victories over Jim Londos and is the possessor of a "career" in the movies. He is the shortest well-known wrestler and rolls up like an armadillo when attacked.

On top of Thursday's card is the meeting between Fred Grobmeier and Chief Whitefeather. This match has many of the cynics in a dilemma. In the first place the popularity of Grobmeier has long since been thoroughly established, so why, they argue, should he rassle a "bad man?" Some believe that the Chief is on the way to big things here, and this may be the first step.

Rudy Dusek, who made wrestling a big league sport here, returns in the semiwindup, meeting Jim McMillen. The two went to a 45-minute draw here a year ago.

Until further notice there will be no radio broadcast of the matches, Promoter Turner announced yesterday. Women, accompanied by paying escorts, will be admitted free of charge.

War Profits Levy Supported by Mills

(Associated Press.)

Supporting the principle that profits made out of war should be brought into the Treasury, Secretary Mills yesterday informed the Senate it did not seem possible to prepare a measure designed for that purpose in advance of a possible combat.

The Secretary's comment was in reply to a Senate resolution asking his opinion on the War Policies Commission's recommendations for a levy of 95 per cent on war profits. As for a 95 per cent tax, Mills said:

"Where the rate of tax is moderate, errors in determination do not have vital consequences and average out over the year. If, however, an attempt is made to take 95 per cent of the war profits through current tax collections, inevitable inaccuracies in the calculation of such profits and taxes might lead to disastrous results."

Framer of Temperance Plank Put on Committee

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—Henry W. Marshall, Lafayette publisher, who wrote the "temperance" plank adopted last week at the Indiana State convention, was selected at the Indiana caucus here tonight as a member of the national platform committee.

Marshall's selection for this important post was considered significant, in view of the fact that the Lafayette newspaper owner brought along his plank and will seek to have it put into the national platform, at least in substance. It asks Congress to submit a proposal for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Will H. Hays, former Republican national chairman and delegate at large from Indiana, was chosen a member of the rules committee.

Civil War Veteran Sits Up Following Operation

Detroit, June 13 (A.P.).—Showing his disregard for the surgeon's knife, a 92-year-old Civil War veteran sat up in bed and smoked a cigar today a few minutes after an operation had been performed in an effort to save his life.

He is Alexander W. Blain, one of the pioneer landscape engineers of the country. His son, Dr. Alexander W. Blain, was with him during the operation, which was performed by Dr. Ira G. Downer. The operation on the abdomen was performed under a local anesthetic. Despite his refusal to become alarmed over the operation, Blain is in a serious condition, due to his advanced age, the son said.

Fatal Ohio Blast Laid to Gas.

Columbus, Ohio, June 13 (A.P.).—The explosion in the new Ohio State Office Building here last April 14, in which 10 men were killed and 60 injured, resulted from leaking gas from a main of the Columbus Gas & Fuel Co., Attorney General Gilbert Bettman reported today to the State Office Building Commission.

POLICEMAN IS FINED IN RECKLESS DRIVING

18 Guilty in Laurel Court of Traffic Violations; Dukas Wins Acquittal.

Walter O. Scott, a Mount Rainier, Md., town policeman, was fined $5 yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court on charges of reckless driving arising out of an auto accident several days ago in which Virginia May Brooks, of 1019 G street southeast, received lacerations of the face.

Louis Dukas, of 709 Eighth street northeast, who also was charged with reckless driving after the wreck, was acquitted. Charges against both men were brought by State Policeman T. T. Griffin, who investigated the crash in Cottage City.

Morris Hershowitz, of 4926 Seventh street northwest, was acquitted on speeding charges in Laurel Police Court when he presented proof that he was taking an elderly woman to Baltimore for emergency medical treatment. Hershowitz was arrested by State Policeman M. H. S. Pearsaul.

Thirteen persons were fined or forfeited collateral at Laurel for exceeding 40 miles per hour speed law, while five were convicted of exceeding a reasonable and proper speed. Constable H. E. Hodges, of Laurel, brought a total of 26 charges against 14 persons for a variety of traffic offenses ranging from reckless driving to failing to keep to the right.

Widow Kills Daughter And Self Over Finances

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. Katherine Kirby, 50, a widow, today shot and killed her daughter, Mary, 18, and then took her own life. The woman left a note which stated that financial difficulties brought about her act.

St. James' School Awards Diplomas

27 Are in Graduating Class of Institution at Mount Rainier.

A graduating class of 27 received their diplomas at the first annual commencement of St. James' Parochial School in Mount Rainier, which was founded five years ago and now has an enrollment of 375.

Those who received certificates at the hands of the Rev. J. Edward Malloy, pastor of St. James', were:

Dolores Agnes Driscoll, Margaret Anna Farrell, Mary Catherine Fisher, Mary Roes Goheen, Eugenia Mary Hepburn, Hannah Lawson, Elinor Catherine Middleton, Bernadette Agnes O'Connor, Catherine Bernadine Plumer, Norma Margaret Rieman, Helen Marjorie Reiser, Virginia Julie Rogers, Doris Ellen Shields, Dorothy Elizabeth West, Claude John Colley, Joseph Paul Glynn, William John Grove, Herbert Louis Landolt, Joseph Arthur Mayhew, John Cornelius McCarthy, Henderson Ignatius Raley, Richard Thomas Roland, James Joseph Raley, Ambrose Joseph Walsh, Clarence Vincent Wenzel, Leo Patrick Baldwin and Francis Edward Klopfer.

Falls Church Council Hit For Neglecting 2 Streets

Indignant housewives and residents of Jefferson and Columbia streets in the town of Falls Church, Va., took the town council to task at its monthly meeting last night on the eve of the biennial election of mayor and three of its six members. The council, especially its road board, composed of Mayor L. P. Daniel, chairman ex officio, and C. R. Gage, of Ward 1; J. V. Turner, of Ward 2, and Frank L. Birch, of Ward 3, was criticized for hard-surfacing Grant avenue with no houses on it and neglecting two of the oldest streets of the town.

Housewives on Jefferson and Columbia streets declared that for the last five years they had not been able to open their front doors and windows in the summer because of the dust. The streets were classed as dangerous because of holes and ruts. The citizens claimed no improvements had been made in the roadways for many years except by private citizens.

Members of the road board answered that Grant avenue was improved because it was felt that East Falls Church should receive its proportionate share of town funds and this street was considered the most urgent.

The council stated it could do nothing at present because of lack of funds and would not promise what the next administration, which assumes office on September 1, would do. Members stated that if they were in office at that time they would do all they could to have the two streets surfaced.

The water committee submitted a report recommending that the annual water rent be reduced from $30 to $20 and the meter charge be reduced $10, with credit given to those who paid the original charge. Action on the report will be taken next month.

Premier Defeated In Newfoundland

Sir Richard Squires' Slate Fails to Win in General Election.

St. Johns, N. F., June 13 (A.P.).—Sir Richard Squires, prime minister who refused to resign his post despite two attacks on his legislative chambers by angry citizens, has been removed from his governmental position by the electorate, some of whom once threatened to throw him in the harbor.

Returns from the general election held Saturday showed today that Sir Richard personally was defeated in Trinity South, while five of the candidates he supported in six other constituencies also were beaten. Final returns from the six constituencies showed only one government victory.

Further Parleying On Erin Forecast

Secretary for Dominions Tells Commons of New Outlook.

London, June 13 (A.P.).—J. H. Thomas, British secretary for dominions, told the House of Commons today that a further communication was expected from President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Free State on the Anglo-Irish differences, after the president had consulted his colleagues.

Conversations between Eamon de Valera, of the Irish Free State, and British cabinet ministers at Dublin and London last week ended with the two governments apparently as far apart as ever on the Anglo-Irish differences.

The main points at issue are President De Valera's bill to abolish the parliamentary oath of allegiance to the British crown and his declared intention to withhold land annuities hitherto payable to the British.

GRAY RANKS MARCH IN CAPITAL JUNE 25

Little Rock High School Band to Be Official Players on Confederate Day.

The High School Band, of Little Rock, Ark., has been designated as the official band for the Sons of Confederate Veterans at the Confederate day parade here on the morning of June 25.

Official notices have been received by Maj. R. S. Hudgins, grand marshal, which indicate that there will be a host of marching units in the procession.

Several bands, including the Marine, Army and Navy bands, the Third Cavalry Band, Fox Boys Band, Firemans Drum Corps, the Elks Boys Band and American Legion Drum Corps will lead marching units of United States troops, the Red Cross, High School Cadets and Boy Scouts.

The Confederate Veterans will arrive at 10 o'clock. They will march up Pennsylvania avenue to Fifteenth street and thence to Constitution avenue.

Gen. De Sussuaer, commander in chief of the Confederate Veterans, has notified Maj. Hudgins that there will be a large contingent of Veterans with official ladies and guests to participate in the parade.

The committee is in need, it was announced, of automobiles to transport the veterans in the parade and to Manassas, Va., where a picnic will be held afterward.

The Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade will give a luncheon in honor of Gen. De Sussuaer at the Willard Hotel following the procession.

Exploding Stove Burns Camper.

William Henry Barbee, 20 years old, of 401 Sixteenth street northeast, was badly burned about the face, arms and shoulders when an oil stove he was attempting to light in a camphouse on the Potomac 2 miles above Glen Echo exploded. He was taken to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition is undetermined.

Home Loan Banks Approved by Mills

Sends Favorable Report on Pending Legislation to Senate Group.

(Associated Press.)

A favorable report on the pending legislation to create a system of home loan discount banks was submitted to the Senate banking committee yesterday by Secretary Mills.

"The Treasury," Mills said, "believes that a better organization of facilities for financing home mortgage loans would be highly desirable and that the provision of a Nation-wide system of Federal home loan banks for the purpose of extending credit accommodations to member institutions engaged in making home mortgage loans would greatly improve the country's financial structure.

"The organization of such a system of banks should relieve the pressure not only upon savings banks, insurance companies and other institutions operating in this field, but also upon present owners of home properties. It should, moreover, promote home ownership. The Treasury, therefore, fully approves the purpose of the proposed legislation."

House Excise Tax Amendment Voted

(Associated Press.)

The House yesterday voted to amend the new billion-dollar revenue law so that excise taxes can be collected on purchases contracted for but not delivered before June 21.

The resolution, sponsored by Representative Crisp (Democrat), Georgia, was approved to prevent the placing of large orders before June 21, the date new taxes are effective, for delivery after that date and thus avoid payment of the excise tax.

Crisp explained that it would prevent the loss of approximately $50,000,000 which the manufacturers excise taxes were originally estimated to produce.

Hyattsville School to Get Flag.

An American flag will be presented to the Hyattsville High School this morning at 9:15 o'clock by Snyder Farmer Post, No. 3, of the American Legion. Raymond W. Bellamy, Federal director of unemployment for the State, will make the presentation speech in the auditorium of the school. Robert W. McCullough is in charge of arrangements for the ceremony.

WHEELAN SERIAL
TERRORS OF THE TOMB
EPISODE 8
PROF. TAYLOR WAS SOMEWHAT UPSET AT JOE TURNER'S STORY OF SEEING ALICE WEST IN PROF. STARK'S ROOM UNDER THE TEMPLE, AND NOW HE HURRIED TO HER TENT
WHY, HERE SHE IS, JOE!! SAY IS ANYTHING THE MATTER, BILL?
I'LL SAY THERE IS!! SHE'S IN SOME SORT OF MYSTERIOUS COMA, JOHN! I FOUND HER STRETCHED OUT ON THE FLOOR!
THE PHOTOGRAPHER OF THE EXPEDITION STILL STUCK TO HIS STORY THAT HE HAD JUST SEEN THE GIRL DOWN IN THE CATACOMBS
ON THE LEVEL, PROFESSOR, I SAW HER JUST AS PLAIN...
SH-H... DON'T LET DR. ROBERTS HEAR YOU!!
JOE, KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT ABOUT WHAT YOU SAW IN THAT ROOM UNDER THE TEMPLE!! I THINK I'M BEGINNING TO UNDERSTAND THINGS NOW!!
WHAT DO YOU MEAN, SIR?!
The George Matthew Adams Service, Inc.
WHILE DR. ROBERTS WORKED FRANTICALLY TO RESTORE HIS SWEETHEART TO CONSCIOUSNESS, PROF. TAYLOR WHISPERED HIS SUSPICIONS TO JOE
IT IS THE RESULT OF BLACK MAGIC OR SOME ANCIENT OCCULT SECRET WHICH I'M SURE PROF. STARK HAS REDISCOVERED DURING OUR EXCAVATIONS!! HE IS USING THIS POWER TO STEAL ALICE AWAY FROM BILL!!
WHICH WAS PRECISELY WHAT PROF. STARK WAS DOING
ALICE WEST, YOUR ASTRAL BODY STANDS BEFORE ME!!

Back to Normalcy

YOU WERE RIGHT ABOUT PRIGGY, SQUINT. HE'S MEAN AND I FOUND IT OUT. AND WE'VE QUIT.
OHO! HE GOT THE AIR! WELL IT'S GOOD YOU GOT WISE IN TIME, LORA. I HAD THE HUNCH ALL RIGHT, HEY?
COUSIN PHYLLIS, YOU NEEDN'T WORRY ANY MORE ABOUT PRIGGY AND ME WHILE YOU'RE ON THE TRIP. EVERYTHING'S ALL OFF!
LORA! ARE YOU SURE? YOU DON'T SEEM TO BE TAKING IT SO HARD.
NO, I'VE BEEN THINKING OVER WHAT SQUINT TOLD ME ABOUT BEING MEAN—AND HE HAS PROVED IT HIMSELF.
I'M GLAD I DIDN'T WANT TO SAY TOO MUCH. I WAS COUNTING ON YOUR GOOD SENSE.
WELL, MY JOB SEEMS TO BE DONE, WALT. LORA HAS TOLD OUR FRIEND PRIGGY WHERE TO GET OFF—AND HE'S GOT.

Put Prisoners in Cooler

By Phil Nowlan and Dick Calkins

ONE OF KANE'S MEN HAD ATTACKED US BUT WE KNOCKED HIM UNCONSCIOUS—AS WE WERE TAKING HIM TO THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE GREENLAND POLICE IN DOME CITY, ANOTHER OF KANE'S MEN TRIED TO STOP US—I BOWLED HIM OVER WITH A BOLT FROM MY PARALYSIS GUN.
THE CROWD HAD ENOUGH—IT FADED.
WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO, BUCK?
TAKE THIS STIFF ALONG TOO—HE'S WEARING A DEGRAVITY BELT—I GAVE HIM THE FULL KICK OF THE GUN—HE WON'T COME TO FOR HOURS!
COPYRIGHT JOHN F. DILLE CO. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS—
HELLO, CAPTAIN!
WE'VE GOT A COUPLE OF PRISONERS FOR YOU!—THEY'RE KANE'S MEN!
I'LL BET YOU CAN'T PROVE IT ON THEM!—NO ONE EVER DOES ANYTHING ON THAT BIRD—OR HIS GORILLAS!
THE CAPTAIN OF THE G.P. SEEMED HALF-HEARTED ABOUT IT ALL.
NOW LISTEN!! YOU DO WHAT I TELL YOU!!
OR IT WILL BE WORSE FOR YOU!!
ALL RIGHT—ALL RIGHT—I'LL LOCK 'EM UP—AND CALL YOU WHEN THEY COME TO—THEN YOU CAN QUESTION 'EM—FOR ALL THE GOOD IT WILL DO YOU!!

CONVENTION FAVORS BANKERS OF CAPITAL

Los Angeles Session Names Several From District on Committees.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, again received considerable recognition at the national convention of the institute at Los Angeles, Calif., last week. Richard A. Norris, an assistant cashier, Lincoln National Bank and president of the local chapter, has telegraphed word of appointment of local bankers on four national committees of the institute.

T. Hunton Leith, assistant cashier, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, was named chairman of the resolutions committee. Miss S. Winifred Burwell, assistant trust officer, National Metropolitan Bank, was elected a member of the women's committee.

Frank M. Perley, of the American Security & Trust, becomes a member of the public education committee and Aubrey O. Dooley, assistant trust officer, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., will serve on the departmental conference committee.

Leith's Banking Activities.

Mr. Leith is now completing a three-year term as a member of the national executive council and has long been active in both local and national institute affairs. He is a past president of the local chapter. Miss Burwell was chairman of the local women's committee last year.

Mr. Perley is past president of Washington Chapter and last year was a member of the chapter's administration committee. He was chairman of the finance committee of the local chapter during the past administrative year and his work was praised by Mr. Dooley, retiring president of the chapter, at the convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association at Hot Springs, Va., last week. Mr. Dooley has served on another national committee, having been chairman of the institute's publicity committee two years ago.

In addition to these honors, the local chapter's publication, Dollars and Sense, edited by Norman E. Towson, an assistant treasurer of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., received honorable mention in the magazine award. This publication has twice previously won first prize for the best chapter publication.

Capital Publicity Wins.

The district within which Washington Chapter is located, received the award for having the largest amount of publicity. The work of Robert H. Lacey, cashier of Columbia National Bank, as publicity chairman for the local chapter during the last administrative year, contributed substantially toward this accomplishment.

Appointment of Frederick V. McNair, retired commander in the United States Navy, as general agent of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. in Washington, D. C., was announced yesterday by the company's home office in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Commander McNair, who retired from the Navy after 32 years of service, has been in the insurance business for six years. He maintains his residence in Annapolis, but his office is in the American Security Building, Washington.

Exchange Seat Price Mounts to $83,000

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—Arrangements were made today for the sale of a New York Stock Exchange seat at $83,000, an advance of $6,000 over the previous sale and $15,000 above the recently established low price for 1932, which was also the lowest price for a membership since 1919.

WHEAT SELLS DOWN ON LACK OF BUYERS

Crop and Export News Adds to Market Nervousness; Other Grains Lose.

Chicago, June 13 (A.P.).—Fifty-cent wheat instead of the old-time standard of a dollar a bushel formed the rule in the trading pit today, with buyers backing away from sellers, the market flattened out, and all deliveries of wheat wavered uneasily around the season's lowest figures. Reports that the 1932 wheat harvest was in progress as far North as Hutchinson, Kans., led to widening of the price difference between Kansas City and Chicago, and had a bearish effect here, as did the continued absence of export business in wheat from the United States.

Wheat closed nervous, 1 to 1⅜ cents under Saturday's finish; corn, ¼ off to ⅜ up; oats, ⅛ to ¼ down, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to a rise of 5 cents.

From the outset, wheat showed a notable downward drift, more on account of lack of buyers than because of any unusual pressure to sell. Bears laid stress on the instability of the stock market, and also emphasized auspicious weather for spring wheat Northwest, as well as reported prospects of a big wheat yield in France.

Spring Wheat Situation.

Special attention was given to United States and Canadian spring wheat developments, the latest Government report having indicated practical certainty that the domestic winter crop would be of only moderate size at best.

It was admitted that the critical time for the domestic spring wheat crop was still ahead, but bears contended that the conditions so far had proved remarkably favorable. On the other hand, a leading authority expressed fears regarding the crop outcome in large sections both south and north of the Canadian border. The gist of his statement was that three seasons of drought had tended to sour and deaden soil productiveness, and that there was decided mistrust whether ordinary rains after a so-called complete breaking of the drought would bring a normal crop.

Corn showed resistance to selling pressure, notwithstanding declines in wheat and despite official reports indicating that the new corn crop was in good condition.

Kreuger Bankers In U. S. Are Cited

Boston and New York Concerns Are to Face Loss Inquiry.

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—Summonses were served today upon Lee, Higginson & Co., and the Guaranty Company of New York, who participated in the original sale of $50,000,000 International Match Corporation bonds in this country, to see if either or both are liable for losses suffered by investors.

The action was brought by Mrs. Florence Bramson, of New York City, through the law firm of House, Holthusen & McCloskey. Mrs. Bramson claims she purchased a $5,000 par value ten-year 5 per cent convertible gold debenture bond of the International Match Corporation on January 27, 1931, paying $4,808. She asks that the original sum advanced be returned to her by the bankers.

The action, which will serve as a test case involving the entire $50,000,000 flotation and determine whether the underwriting houses can be forced to return that amount to the buyers, was instituted in the Supreme Court of New York.

At today's closing price, the bond for which Mrs. Bramson states she paid $4,808 was selling at $82.50.

On this basis, the original $50,000,000 issue would have a market valuation of $425,000.

World Phone Net Drops to $689,186

Quarter's Income Equals 11 Cents Per Share; Paid 43 in 1931.

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—Consolidated net income of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation for the first quarter of this year amounted to $689,186, or 11 cents a share, compared with $2,832,301, or 43 cents a share for the same period in 1931 it was shown in the company's quarterly report, issued today.

The drop in income was partly due, it was stated, to charges of associated companies, general interest and interest charges on the corporation's bonds. This latter charge amounted to $2,778,679, compared with $2,475,669 for the first quarter of 1931.

Total notes payable of the corporation and its associated companies were reduced from $44,217,772 outstanding on December 31 last, to $42,623,670 on March 31.

The Postal Telegraph & Cable Corporation, an associate of I. T. & T., reported net loss for the first quarter of 1932 of $196,432, compared with a net loss for the same quarter in 1931 of $285,490. The company's gross revenues amounted to $7,651,228, against $8,864,166 in the first three months of the previous year.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—Electric output of the Associated Gas & Electric system for the twelve months ended May 31 totaled 2,637,420 kilowatt hours, a decrease of 4.4 per cent from the amount produced during the same period last year.

Wall street looks for a reduction in the Sears-Roebuck dividend when the board meets for action later this week. Sales up to May 21 showed a drop of $27,000,000, and while further economies have been effected they have not been sufficient, it is understood, to offset the decline in gross profits occasioned by the decrease in sales.

Directors of the Adams Express Co. today omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.25 due on the preferred stock at this time.

Prices hold well on all major items of canned goods, encouraging the belief that prices have touched definite resistance levels, dealers report. Some changes may be expected as the new packing season starts, but costs on future operations have been adjusted to a point where no more radical declines are believed likely.

Conditions in the petroleum industry registered further improvement last week, market observers report. Bulk gasoline advanced rather sharply in the Mid-continent, while fractional increases were also recorded along the Atlantic seaboard.

London—Trading on the stock exchange was cheerful. A hopeful outcome of the forthcoming international conferences and the oversubscription of the ten million sterling electricity issue assisted the tone. All sections improved and closed firm.

Paris—The bourse was favorably impressed by the Anglo-French communique. Under the lead of bank shares. Prices in all sections advanced with one exception, namely the French rentes which were slightly lower. The closing was firm.

Berlin—Trading was more active on the boerse and the slight gains registered at the opening were lost later, prices closing at previous levels.

Foreign Bonds Advance.

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—The bond market was without enthusiasm today, with traders and investors generally waiting for something to happen in Washington, in the Republican convention at Chicago or in the various European hot spots.

As a result of the marking time attitude, prices drifted fractionally lower. The average for 60 corporate loans was off four-tenths of a point and sales totaled but $7,086,000, the smallest full day's volume since April 25.

At the same time there was a slight flurry in foreign department, with issues of Austria, Australia and Germany climbing from ½ to around 5 points. French loans, under pressure most of the day, also rallied moderately near the close of the session. British 5½s eased.

Strength of the Australians was atttributed, in part, to the defeat of the Lang regime in New South Wales. Bonds of Germany and Austria were in demand on reports that the allied European governments might decide to lend these countries between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 to aid them in overcoming their present financial difficulties.

The railway average was the lowest of the domestic groups, although various high-grade carrier loans were comparatively steady. Santa Fe general 5s gained moderately and Union Pacific 4½s were up 2 points. Softness was shown by some loans of Baltimore & Ohio, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Pennsylvania, St. Louis Southwestern and Southern Pacific. Pennsylvania general 4½s, however, advanced 1⅛ points.

The industrials and utilities were featureless. Some bonds of Armour & Co. were in demand and New York Traction loans were higher. Replogle Iron & Steel 5½s were up 4½ points. Power and light company issues were easy.

The United States Government list was steady throughout, the majority of Libertys and Treasurys retaining modest gains.

Byrd Aid to Give Lecture Tonight

Lofgren to Show Films at Burroughs Center; Public Invited.

Charles Lofgren, personnel officer of Admiral Byrd's famous South Pole expedition, will give an illustrated lecture tonight at 8 o'clock at Burroughs Community Center, Eighteenth and Monroe streets northeast, under auspices of the Brookland-Woodridge Business Association. Five reels of selected motion pictures will be shown by Mr. Lofgren in conection with his tales of the sea, the ice and snow, of the south polar region.

The public is invited to be the guests of the business association. John Fowler is president of the association.

Another event of interest this week to take place at Burroughs Community Center will be the colonial reception and ball Friday night, under auspices of the Northeast Suburban Bicentennial Committee, at 8 o'clock. Dancing, cards, a musical program and refreshments will be included. Colonial costume is requested, but not required.

Altar Boys to Make Excursion Thursday

The tenth annual excursion of the altar boys' guild of St. Aloysius Catholic Church, North Capitol and I streets, northwest, will be held Thursday at Chesapeake Beach.

Four parish priests and about 100 boys will leave for the beach by train in the morning. Francis X. Curley will be in charge of the party and is arranging a program of entertainment for the youngsters which includes a picnic, rides on the various amusement devices of Seaside Park and a swim in the salt water pool.

Alpha Chi Sigma Opens Three-Day Convention

A three-day national convention of Alpha Chi Sigma, professional chemical fraternity, opened yesterday at the University of Maryland with the registration of 127 delegates and a reception by the national officers of the body.

The first business session will be held this morning after an address of welcome by Dr. L. H. Broughton, head of the chemistry department of the university.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

NOBODY seems to know just why, but the seventh inning in baseball is supposed to be the luckiest period of the game. As a matter of fact, statisticians point out, the eighth inning is the luckiest * * * and unluckiest * * * for more games are won and lost in the eighth than in any other inning.

An explanation for this fact is offered by observers, who say that pitchers, aware of the legend of the seventh inning, tire themselves out in that frame and become easy prey for hitters in the eighth.

* * * *

It was while standing before the judge, in answer to a charge of street fighting in Flint, Mich., that Roger Bernard got his inspiration to become a professional fighter. It was not exactly an inspiration—it was a sentence. The court is quoted as having said:

"Now young man, you are continually being brought before me on charges of fighting. It seems that it runs in your blood. The prize ring is the place for you. There you will be paid for fighting, and you won't be in the way of important court work. I, therefore, sentence you to do your future fighting in the ring."

Bernard immediately became a professional and has since gained the distinction of being the only fighter who twice beat Battalino, the featherweight champion.

The late Paul Doumer, martyred President of France, had noticed that the number 13 occurred in various phases of his political life. Shortly after his election as thirteenth President of France, on May 13, he remarked, "I can not consider 13 my unlucky number."

Any reader wanting further proof of anything depicted here should address the author, care of The Washington Post, and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

HOUSE GROUP URGES $6,500,000 AS LUMP SUM IN DISTRICT AID

Senate Conferees to Hold Out for $8,550,000 in Supply Bill.

JOINT MEETING ON ISSUE MAY BE CALLED TODAY

Representatives Will Refuse to Change Instructions, Mapes Predicts.

House conferees on the District appropriations bill will hold out for a $8,500,000 Federal "lump sum" contribution, unless the House "changes its instructions," Representatice Clarence Cannon, chairman of the House group, declared last night.

Indications were that Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, acting chairman of the Senate conferees, will be just as firm for the $8,550,000 "lump sum," voted by the Senate. Conferees on the bill were named by both chambers yesterday. They will meet today or tomorrow.

Change May Be Refused.

That the House will not change its instructions was prophesied yesterday by Representative Carl F. Mapes (Republican), Michigan, whose $4,000,000 tax program for the District led to the House adopting the $6,500,000 Federal total.

Pointing out that the Senate had failed to act on his tax bills, even though the Bureau of Efficiency favored four of them "in principle," Representative Mapes admonished Representative Cannon that the House vote for the Mapes report had been "virtually unanimous." He asked that he stand by the House position.

Afterward, Chairman Cannon said he could not speak for the other conferees, but he would not recede without first consulting the House.

List of Conferees.

Besides Chairman Cannon, House conferees named yesterday were Representative Simmons (Republican), Nebraska; Holaday (Republican), Illinois; Blanton (Democrat), Texas, and Granfield (Democrat), Massachusetts.

Senate conferees named were Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, who has designated Senator Nye to act for him while he is attending the Republican convention; Senator Nye, Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas; Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, and Senator Kendrick (Democrat), Wyoming.

WAR SHOWED NEED OF PREVENTING BODY DEFECTS, IS CLAIM

CITES ENORMOUS COSTS OF RELIEF TO VETERANS

New Yorker Raps Dry Law as Impediment to Proper Prescription Ethics.

"It is estimated that in ten years our veteran relief bill will amount to $1,500,000,000, which will mean that out of every dollar of Federal taxes more than 35 cents will go to a former service man," Dr. Joel T. Boone told delegates to the Homeopathic Society convention last night during the second day of their eighty-eighth annual meeting at the Washington Hotel in his second public address since his appointment as White House physician.

This prohibitive cost of veteran payment, he said, was the result of the physical imperfection of the male population drafted into the World War because of the failure to practice preventive medicine before the war, in the eradication of potential physical deficiencies. This physical unpreparedness has resulted in thousands of veterans being made "financial wards of the Government," he said.

Influence of Physicians.

"In this period of economic dislocation," he asserted, "we must face the fact that power of restoration to normalcy lies within ourselves. Our illness, to a great extent, is a state of mind. As a people we have lost our grip. We have become frightened. Our imaginations have taken possession of our natural self-assurance and our inherent stability. Because this state exists, the physician is the most potential extrinsic human factor in our recovery from the ills that beset us.

"The influence of you physicians is limitless. That fact is a challenge to you today. Is your influence to be for good or evil? In our economic dislocation, we see a sick nation. The physician should by experience and training, recognize the complex symptom of that illness and contribute his specialized knowledge to the application of its relief."

The physical disabilities of the male population should be corrected in preparedness of the possibility of another war, Dr. Boone asserted. The appalling number of physical defects discovered during the draft would have given sound reason for national alarm if the war had continued. The public should take seriously the soaring cost of veteran relief, Dr. Boone stated.

Specialization Discussed.

Specialization of young physicians also was discussed by Dr. Boone. He said that "economic forces may effect a revival of family practices" and that the reversion of doctors to rural and community service was a crying need among the people. A restoration to normalcy, he said, will only come with a return of the faith of our forefathers in our fellowmen and in God.

State Senator William Lathrop Love, of New York, who addressed a session of the meeting on "An S O S to the White Collar Professions," told the convening physicians that if they would make no move in reducing the rates and fees for their services, the Legislature would take the matter out of their hands and fix prices of service by legal process. "You can no longer remain asleep at the switch of economic obligations, or you will be engulfed in the maelstrom of State supervision of physicians, which spells State control of medicine," Dr. Love said.

Effect of Dry Law.

Referring to the effect of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution, on the medical profession, he said that the right of the physician to practice his profession according to the instruction of the science was nullified by the legal measure and that the red tape connected with the renewals of prescription books has caused many of the physicians to neglect their continuance in prescribing the drug. "Many young doctors," he said, "have, under economic pressure, sold their prescription books to bootleggers."

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners of the District, welcomed the convening group to the city. Dr. A. C. Christie, president of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, addressed the meeting. Sessions of the convention will extend through Thursday.

An exhibition of commodities used by the medical profession is on display near the meeting rooms of the organization in the Washington Hotel. The most recent appliances and apparatus in the field are demonstrated by their manufacturers during the convention.

ABBOTT INDICTMENT IN ROADHOUSE CASE IS NOLLED BY STATE

Prosecutor Doubts He Has Evidence to Convict Man of Killing.

PRISONER HAD 10 READY TO SUPPORT HIS ALIBI

Wounds Will Prevent Trial of Thomas Simone Before Autumn.

A murder indictment returned against Peter Abbott in connection with the fatal gun battle in a Bladensburg, Md., roadhouse last fall was nolle prossed yesterday by State's Attorney Alan Bowie eight days before Abbott was to have gone on trial in Rockville Circuit Court.

The quashing of the charge against Abbott will have no effect on a similar indictment pending against Thomas Simone, who was injured in the same gun fight, according to the State's attorney. John Wallace, of Philadelphia, who was arrested for murder several weeks ago, will also still be held in the Marlboro Jail, Mr. Bowie said.

Doubts Conviction Chance.

Mr. Bowie, in explaining his decision not to prosecute Abbott, said that he was convinced he did not have sufficient evidence to gain a conviction. While he is not sure that Abbott's alibi is true, he doubted that a jury would bring in a guilty verdict. Abbott, at the time of his arrest at his home in Philadelphia, announced that he would have ten persons in court to swear that he was in the Pennsylvania city on the night that Grover T. Amick, of this city, was killed during a holdup. After his arrest he was identified by a woman in the house as having been one of the bandits who invaded the tea house.

Severance Was Granted.

Simone, whose address is also Philadelphia, and Abbott were indicted together, but their attorneys obtained a separate trial at the same time Abbott's trial was removed to Montgomery County. Simone is still suffering from his wounds and can not be tried before next fall. Wallace was arrested in Baltimore several weeks ago, but county officials refused to say whether he gave testimony which tended to clear Abbott. Wallace was not indicted, but is being held on a murder warrant.

DAVIS SURRENDERS IN HENRY'S KILLING

Booked for Investigation, Suspect Denies Knowledge of Crime.

Henry Davis, 34, of Philadelphia, Pa., wanted here as the driver of the automobile used in the killing of Millsie Henry, 35-year-old local gambler, surrendered to Detective Sergt. Joseph Waldron at headquarters yesterday.

A warrant was issued for Davis on a murder charge by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage last Wednesday, but, despite the warrant, Davis was booked at headquarters yesterday for investigation. He was questioned and then sent to the Fifth Precinct station.

He told police he came here from his home in Philadelphia when friends there told him he was wanted in connection with the killing. He admitted being in Washington on April 21, the day of the slaying, but denied having any knowledge of the crime.

Frankie Blum, 35, also of Philadelphia, was arrested in that city several days ago on a warrant of murder issued by Commissioner Turnage, but police refused to turn him over to Detective Sergts. John Daiglish and Dennis J. Murphy when they arrived there. They wanted to question Blum in connection with several crimes committed there.

According to Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, Blum will be brought here today.

Davis' arrest makes the third one within ten days in connection with the Henry case. Mrs. Lillian A. Maddock, 32, was taken into custody in Atlantic City a week ago on a warrant charging her with being an accessory in the murder, but she was ordered released last Saturday by Commissioner Turnage.

Crude Note Hints Harm To Children

A note which threatened the safety of his two children, Jane, 7, and Lockwood, 6, has been received by Lockwood J. F. Wright, of 316 Van Buren street northwest, he told police yesterday. He said he had taken the letter to postal authorities but was referred to local police. The man, a draftsman for the Victor J. Evans Co., said he received the note June 7.

"This is to notify you folks." It read, "that you must lieve this naborhood by June 30. If you fail to compli it will be too bad with your two."

The note was signed "P. G.," which police believe was an attempt to simulate the work of the notorious "Purple Gang" of extortionists working in Middle Western cities. The note was scrawled as though the writer had held the pencil at long range.

FAMILY TAKES MAN IN ALLEGED ROBBERY

Mrs. Goodacre Ignores Gun and Corners Assailant, Retrieving $3,000.

The Goodacre family all participated in the capture of a man who is alleged to have held up George L. Goodacre, proprietor of a chain of local lunchrooms and robbed him of $3,000 as he was driving his car out of a garage in the rear of his home at 7617 Morningside drive, yesterday morning.

A 56-year-old grandmother, the wife of the victim cornered a man after a chase up the street and Mrs. Edith Dilli, 32 years old, Mr. Goodacre's daughter and her child, Joy, who is 14 months old, also participated in the capture.

According to Mr. Goodacre, the robber jumped on the side of his car as he started to leave and was waving good-by to his family and said: "Stick 'em up and give me your money or I'll shoot." The intruder then grabbed a satchel and a metal box filled with money, as well as Mr. Goodacre's purse. He dropped all but the satchel when the lunchroom owner started to grapple with him, and ran.

Mr. Goodacre started after him in the car after calling his son-in-law, Carl W. Dilli. Mrs. Goodacre followed the man and cornered him on a neighbor's front porch. Disregarding the gun which the marauder was holding, she made him surrender his stolen booty and the family joined her in holding the man at bay until police arrived to place him under arrest.

LOADING PLATFORMS TERMED NECESSARY

Street Car Company Seeks to Shift Upkeep of Safety Zones to District.

Experts on traffic testifying yesterday afternoon at the public hearing of the Public Utilities Commission on street car loading safety zones, agreed that a raised platform with an inclined buttress is necessary on all streets where the traffic is congested, and that this should be lighted by the beacon type of illumination. They did not, however, agree on what types of safety zones are needed on main thoroughfares in residential districts.

Hawley S. Simpson, American Electric Railway Association engineer, and John A. Beeler, traffic expert, who made a surve, for the street railways in 1917-18, were the chief witnesses during the afternoon.

Street car representatives and District traffic officials were unanimous in opposing the use of iron posts or rails to protect safety zones. They declared that such guards were actually a menace to the safety of both the motorists and the pedestrians.

Representatives of the railways attempted to show that most cities pay for the construction and maintenance of loading platforms and safety zones and that practically all, save Washington, bear some part of the expense. William McK. Clayton, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, told the commission that the body he represented went on record recently as in favor of the continuance of the present policy of requiring the railways to pay for their upkeep.

Since 1928 the District government has been prohibited from building or maintaining loading platforms or safety zones.

Evidence was introduced to show that these safety areas are of benefit to the street cars, pedestrians and to vehicular traffic in general. Considerable testimony was submitted as to the costs of upkeep of the various types of loading platforms.

12 DIPLOMAS GIVEN IN IMMACULATE HIGH

Rev. L. J. Sheahan Talks to Graduates, Urging Ideals as Success Guide.

The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, presented the diplomas to the twelve graduates of the Immaculate Conception High School for Girls at their commencement exercises in the Parish Hall, Eighth and N streets northwest, last night.

The necessity of character as an element of success in life was the theme of the address to the graduates, delivered by the Rev. Lawrence J. Sheahan, assistant director of Catholic charities. "We can not hope to attain any lasting success unless we are inspired by lofty ideals," he told the class.

"An ideal," Dr. Sheahan said, "must be the sum total of all the moral principles that a person holds and puts into practice. If you have come through school without these principles, your education in its most fundamental aspect has been a failure. If your ideal is to be a well-rounded one, it must embrace all the civic virtues. You must come forth in the world, not concerned with your own welfare, but with the welfare of the society in which you live and with the welfare of the church in which you believe.

"We look forward to the Catholic graduates to be examples of Christian principles. If an ideal is to be of any lasting value, it must be embodied in some concrete form. To accomplish anything effective, you must join the Catholic organizations and work ceaselessly to give Catholic organizations a noble ideal and to help accomplish this ideal in the world."

Miss Vera Crawford and Miss Catherine Hackett were awarded special honors for high attainments in their studies.

Lansburgh Elected To Dry Goods Body

Association Session Opens at Pittsburgh; Higher Prices Urged.

Mark Lansburgh, secretary of Lansburgh & Bro., Department Store, was elected to the board of directors of the store management division of the National Dry Goods Association at the opening session of the convention in Pittsburgh, Pa., yesterday.

Problems that confront all divisions in the operation of department stores were discussed by leaders in merchandising fields throughout the country.

E. T. Slattery, of Boston, Mass., president of the association, pointed out that the public is tiring of the trend to "unload inferior goods" in an effort to increase sales volume. He urged the consideration of better quality and higher-priced goods to obtain a more stable profit.

Hearing in Purdy Case Postponed to June 20

The hearing on charges that Mrs. Elizabeth Fields Purdy and her husband, Dr. Frank L. Purdy, obtained $19,000 from Mrs. Florence Means Kay, of 1840 Mintwood place, to bring a chest containing $60,000,000 in cash to this country was continued yesterday by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Deferred at the request of Assistant United States Attorney C. B. Murray and the defense counsel, the case is scheduled for hearing June 20. Dr. Purdy was released in $5,000 bail. Mrs. Purdy has not been located. She was recently sued on two $20,000 promissory notes by B. N. Wende, of the Investment Building, who said he acquired them from Mrs. Kay. The Purdys are charged with false pretenses.

Short Circuit and Blaze Delay Rush-Hour Crowd

Home-bound workers and shoppers were delayed more than a half hour last evening when the plow on the trailer of a Washington Railway & Electric Co. two-car train short-circuited and the electrical connections under the car burst into flame at Columbia road and Twentieth street northwest at 5:30 p. m.

Firemen responding from Engine Companies 21 and 11 soon extinguished the iridescent flames, but it was some time before the train could be put into running order.

Two Boys Still Missing; One Trying to Be Sailor

Two boys who left their homes in Washington Saturday were still missing last night. One of the boys is believed to be attempting to sign on a ship, while there is no intimation where the other one went, according to his relatives.

Edward Guy Dennis, 17-year-old Western High School student, is the youth who is supposed to be seeking a life at sea. He was reported missing by his father, Edward G. Dennis, chief pharmacist's mate, U. S. N., of 3801 Benton street northwest. The other boy, Philip Soaegerer, 14, was reported missing by his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Magruder, of 2519 University place northwest.

Community Chest Board Is Reduced

President Graham Cuts Committee Personnel to 14 Members.

Membership of the executive committee of the Community Chest has been reduced to fourteen, besides the president, in accordance with the by-laws of the Chest, according to President E. C. Graham, who yesterday announced the new members of the committee. Mr. Graham named:

Thomas E. Campbell, Joshua Evans, jr., William J. Flather, jr., Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, Arthur Hellen, Arthur May, Dr. Kelly Miller, Dr. Charles P. Neill, Newbold Noyes, Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, H. L. Rust, jr., Lloyd B. Wilson, J. Bernard Wyckoff and Mrs. W. A. Roberts, ex-officio.

Joseph D. Kaufman has accepted the chairmanship of the publicity committee and Mrs. John Jay O'Connor the chairmanship of the Speakers Bureau. President Graham announced. Other committee chairmen will be named in the near future.

Boy Is Hurt by Alleged Hit-and-Run Motorist

A woman was sought by police last night in connection with an alleged hit-and-run accident in which a 12-year-old boy suffered a fractured left arm and bruises about the back.

Police said John Charles Haggerly, of 1950 Bladensburg road northeast, was riding his bicycle on Bladensburg road at the District line when the woman struck him. He was taken to Casualty Hospital in the Fifth Precinct radio car. The woman was driving a car bearing Texas license plates.

Post Model Home To Remain Open

Increase of Visitors Results in Extending Inspection Period.

Because of the increasing number of visitors to The Washington Post model home, this dwelling will remain open for public inspection several weeks longer.

More than 10,000 persons have visited the home since its opening May 22. Many have inspected daily the attractive dwelling at 6318 Beechwood drive, in Beechwood, Chevy Chase, Md., residential development of G. F. Mikkelson & Son, builders of the house.

Visitors are impressed with the thoroughness of the home's construction and the convenience of its arrangement. The home is completely furnished by the interior decoration department of Woodward & Lothrop.

Old Liquor Law Laxity Is Denied

Commissioners Answer Suit and State Sheppard Act Is Obeyed.

The District Commissioners yesterday denied they were delinquent in their enforcement of certain sections of the old Sheppard prohibition law in the District in their answer to a suit for mandatory injunction filed last week by John B. Mahoney.

Mahoney's suit asked that the District Supreme Court order the Commissioners to obey the mandates of the Sheppard law, and Justice Jesse C. Adkins issued a rule requiring the Commssioners to show why they should not be made to see that the law is obeyed.

Yesterday the Commissioners, through Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride and Vernon West, came into court and asserted they were obeying all laws now in force. They contended that the Sheppard law had been virtually repealed through new laws, such as the Volstead and Jones "5 and 10" laws. Justice Adkins directed both sides to file briefs supporting their declarations. These are to be placed in his hands Monday.

Street Middle Parker Defeats Traffic Charge

Louis W. Rapeer, charged with parking his machine in the middle of the street in front of the Veterans' Bureau, yesterday escaped a penalty in Police Court when he testified that five years ago middle street parking was permitted there and that he did not know there had been a change in the regulations.

C. U. to Welcome Students' Parents

Reception Planned Today on Eve of Graduation Exercises.

Gathered here from all parts of the country to witness commencement day exercises at the Catholic University of America tomorrow morning, parents and friends of the members of the graduating class will be welcomed by the Right Rev. Mgr. James H. Ryan, rector of the university, at a reception to be held in Gibbons Hall this afternoon.

Catholic University seniors are scheduled to take part in their final university social function as undergraduates this evening, when the members of the Washington Chapter of the Catholic University Alumni Association honors the seniors at a smoker which will be held at the Columbia Country Club.

The seniors held their annual farewell banquet at the Arlington Hotel last night. John V. Ambrose, of Worcester, Mass., was toastmaster.

Two Capital Men Get Alpha Tau Chapter Bids

Bradley W. Edelblut, of 3607 South Dakota avenue northwest, and Shorey Allan, of 1313 Farragut street northwest, have received bids from the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Chapter of Alpha Tau.

Both are sophomores in the department of printing and publishing of the college of industries at Carnegie. Mr. Allan is a member of Delta Tau Delta, social fraternity, and Mr. Edelblut, of Beta Theta Pi.

Barton Brothers Pesented on Air

"Dick and Sandy" Offered in Post's "Mystery" Program Series.

In another of a series of "mystery" program, presented each Monday evening from Station WOL. The Washington Post last night introduced "Dick and Sandy—the Barton Brothers," who sang a number of popular numbers, with Miss Ruth Adams as piano accompanist.

The designation "mystery" is derived from the fact that talent for the programs is selected indiscriminately from the names of thousands of amateur contestants in the recent Washington Post-RCA Victor recording contest. Before appearance at the studio, it is seldom known whether the invited broadcasters play or sing, or in just what direction their talents lie.

This policy of selection results in surprising variety that seems to meet with the approval of radio listeners who send in their comments in increasing numbers from week to week.

South Trimble Reports Loss of Box of Papers

South Trimble, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported to police yesterday that he lost, or had stolen, several days ago an oak box containing books and papers valued at $100.

Mr. Trimble said he left the box near the elevator in a downtown building. It was to be sent to the national Democratic committee in Chicago.

Lumber Firm Wins New Trial in Herfurth Suit

In a decision rendered by Justice William Hitz in District Court of Appeals yesterday, a new trial was ordered in the case of Hugh Herfurth, jr., against Murphy & Ames, lumber dealers, who had been ordered to pay Herfurth $1,870 as damages for the breaching of a contract to furnish lumber.

The higher court held that the District Supreme Court erred in saying that there had been a contract entered into by the lumber people and Herfurth, who was to build an addition to St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Because of this error, a jury awarded Herfurth damages, and the decision yesterday set aside that award and ordered a new trial. Attorneys for Herfurth were Charles A. Douglas and Edmund D. Campbell, while Paul V. Rogers and William E. Furey represented Murphy & Ames.

Street Car Pins Taxicab Driver to Door of Auto

Pinned between a street car and the open door of his taxicab Isaac Williams, 49 years old, of Alexandria, Va., was taken to Emergency Hospital last night with serious injuries.

Police said Williams had stopped his cab in front of 3141 Mount Pleasant street northwest. As he got out and stood by the open door, he was struck by a northbound Washington Railway & Electric Company car. He was taken to the hospital in the fire rescue squad ambulance, where it was found he had suffered back injuries and internal hurts.

2 Injured Women Will Get $11,500

District Loses Appeal in Accident Caused by Rough Street.

The District government will have to pay Mrs. Mary Chessin $10,000 and Mrs. Celia Levinson $1,500 because of injuries they sustained January 7, 1929, when an automobile in which they were passengers struck two depressions in the street at Sixteenth and Irving streets northwest and threw them to the top of the car.

The awards were originally given in the District Supreme Court and yesterday the District Court of Appeals affirmed both. Attorney T. Morris Wampler appeared for the two women, while Robert V. Lynch and W. W. Bride appeared for the District.

It was the contention of the District that there were no depressions in the street and also that if there were any, the existence of them had never been called to the attention of the municipal government.

Judgment Is Upheld In Limitations Case

The statute of limitations operating in a suit for damages brought up on a question of malicious prosecution does not begin to operate the very day the cause for the action originates, the District Court of Appeals held yesterday in affirming a judgment given in the District Supreme Court against D. M. Freeman in favor of Frank Pew.

The statute says that such actions must be filed within one year. In this case, Pew filed his suit January 20, 1928, while the cause for the suit arose on January 20, 1927. It was contended by Robert Hardison, attorney for Freeman, that the suit had not been filed within the one year allowed by law, but Attorneys James A. O'Shea and John H. Burnett contended that the day on which the action arose should not be computed in figuring the limitation as to time, and were upheld by the higher court.

$50,000 Is Sought After Fatal Crash

Chesapeake Beach Railway Is Sued by Survivors of Two Victims.

Two $25,000 damage suits were filed in District Supreme Court yesterday against the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co. as an aftermath of a crash between one of the company's trains and an automobile at Browns Crossing, near Ritchie, Md., November 26, 1931. Two persons were killed in the accident and their administrators filed the suits.

Through Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer, Jessup M. Milstead, administrator of the estate of Roderick G. Milstead, of Indianhead, Md., asked for $25,000 Roderick Milstead was the operator of the automobile. It is the contention of the attorney that the railway was negligent in guarding the crossing and in failing to have a watchman stationed to warn motorists.

The second suit was filed by Mary E. Rogers, administratrix of the estate of Carrie Rogers, of 214 A street southeast, who was a passenger in the machine. Both Mrs. Rogers and Milstead were instantly killed. Under Maryland law, the survivors of a person killed in an accident may maintain an action to recover damages.
